LEWIS LEAVES DOOR OPEN

OTHER DELEGATES GO HOME

OWNERS READY TO COMPLY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The coal operators of the central competitive district and the representatives of the United Mine Workers of America failed to reach an agreement today.

The miners flatly rejected the offer of Fuel Administrator Garfield, in behalf of the Cabinet, for a 14 per cent. increase in wages. Various other proposals failed to bring harmony. As a result of this condition of affairs the operators and miners adjourned sine die.

John L. Lewis, Acting President of the United Mine Workers, said that he would remain in Washington until 4:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to hear "suggestions" and the operators have left a permanent committee in Washington with authority to get. This leaves the situation in a deadlock.

The last word of the operators is that they will accept the Government's edict for an advance of wages without any advance in the price of soft coal, but point out that it will force some mines to close.

A spirited session of operators and miners was held today with no definite outcome. When the operators agreed to accept the Government's offer, the miners voted in the negative. The miners insisted that Secretary Wilson's suggestion that wages be advanced 31.61 per cent. should prevail, and to this case the operators voted "no." Finally the operators proposed the question be submitted to arbitration. This was rejected by the miners.

"The operators are pretending to accept Dr. Garfield's proposal, but as they do it they state they are unable to operate many of their mines under it. It would be foolish for us to attempt to make an agreement unless miners are to be given work.

"Our position is unchanged. We hold the United States Government cannot break its word. The pledge of Secretary Wilson to grant us a 31 per cent. increase must be redeemed. In my judgment Dr. Garfield and the Cabinet have committed the most colossal blunder in the history of our nation. They are blindly following an academic theory, without regard to justice to the mine workers or effects on the people of the United States.

Puts Responsibility on Government.

"Responsibility for the crisis now confronting the nation must be with those statesmen using the powers of Government to oppress and deny justice to a great element of its citizenship directly concerned in industry.

"I cannot believe the people of our country will indorse such a policy of oppression and repression, which means continued industrial chaos and intense suffering on the part of the mine workers and our citizenship."

Mr. Lewis was asked by a NEW YORK TIMES correspondent tonight if his statement meant "civil war." He did not answer the question directly.

"I don't know what's going to happen," he said. "We will not accept the offer and there you are."

Apparently the Government is firmly behind the position announced by Dr. Garfield. There was a bitter fight in the Cabinet, but Dr. Garfield, backed by Attorney General Palmer, was sustained. There can be no compromise, so far as these officials are concerned; that much Dr. Garfield made plain last night, and he has not wavered from that course today.

Dr. Garfield and Attorney General Palmer are in a mood to see it through, but still are hoping that they will not be forced to go to an extreme course. There was no talk tonight to the effect that the Government would take over the mines. The rumors go to the other extreme; that the Government will promise protection to mine owners and workers to operate the collieries.

Dr. Garfield's offer is to meet the increase in the living cost and does not preclude an advance later which would deal with other economic conditions. This is apparently the sole hope of an amicable settlement.

The operators again attacked ex-Secretary McAdoo today for his charge that they made enormous profits. They sent another statement to Mr. McAdoo,

Hundreds Volunteer to Dig Coal in Kansas; Two Big Cities Close Schools to Save Fuel

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 27.—The first rush of volunteers for service in the Kansas coal fields which came pouring in to Governor Allen today, indicated that more than 1,000 men would respond to the call by night. In addition to these men, the Governor is receiving offers of help from other States. Experienced men are telephoning offers of personal services as well as offers of equipment.

WICHITA, Kan., Nov. 27.—The American Legion Post of this city has 200 men signed up and ready to respond to Governor Allen's appeal for men to mine coal. Among the volunteers are the owners of five steam shovels, who offered their outfits, which the Governor said would add materially to the coal-digging possibilities. A steam shovel, he said, was capable of uncovering from 300 to 400 tons of coal in a strip mine a day.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Nov. 27.—Volunteer workers who come into the Kansas coal fields to dig coal under the State receivership plan will be considered strikebreakers, Thomas Harvey, Secretary-Treasurer of the Kansas miners announced today.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 27.—A strict prohibition against public gatherings of all kinds will become effective Sunday as a fuel conservation measure. The closing order was issued today by the Fuel Administration after conferences with committees from the Chamber of Commerce of both Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kan., the administrations, and industrial interests.

All places of amusement, lodge halls, clubs and all public gathering places are to be closed by the order beginning Sunday. Public schools will not reopen Monday, now being closed for the holiday. Churches are ordered to hold only Sunday services. Office buildings are ordered to be open only from 9 A. M. to 4 P. M.

7 KILLED, 6 HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

TAXI WILD ON BROADWAY

Seven persons were killed, including a woman and five small children, and six others were hurt in automobile accidents in this city yesterday.

An automobile owned and driven by David Davis, of 316 Stanton Street, Brooklyn, ran into a group of persons crossing Twenty-third Street at Fourth Avenue about 10 o'clock last night, killing a woman and a baby and seriously injuring another woman.

Mrs. Casenthino Callabria, 40 years old, of 233 East Twenty-second Street, with her son and daughter-in-law and her infant grandchild, Frances, were in the group. The car swerved just before it reached them and struck Mrs. Callabria, knocking the child from her arms. It died almost instantly. A woman who was a stranger to the persons in the group, was the other victim. In her case also death was instantaneous.

Mrs. Callabria was taken to New York Hospital with a possible fracture of the skull. The dead woman was about 50 years old and well dressed. Davis was arrested, charged with homicide.

A taxicab out of control jumped into the midst of a holiday crowd on Broadway, between Fiftieth and Fifty-first Streets, early in the evening, and, running through the jam of people buried itself in a plate glass window amid a shower of flying glass. When it stopped, with the front wheels inside of the store at 1,695 Broadway, the chauffeur, Henry J. Lawson, known among taxi drivers as "Scotty," was found dead at the wheel, and several pedestrians were lying on the sidewalk, two of them seriously injured.

It will take an autopsy to determine whether Lawson was conscious when the taxi began its eccentric course. Dr. Homan of Roosevelt Hospital said the driver might have fainted at the wheel. Another theory is that the steering apparatus went wrong.

Plunges Across Sidewalk.

There was an unusually large crowd along Broadway when the mishap occurred. The people on the sidewalk scarcely knew what had happened until the taxi had plowed its way across the sidewalk. The men struck were Robert E. Walsh of 1,216 Ninth Street, Washington, who was tossed several feet, and Conrad Rosenstein of 101 West Fifty-second Street, who was knocked down by the fender. Two passengers who were in the cab disappeared after the accident.

Fifteen policemen from the West Forty-seventh Street station were called out by Sergeant Urquahart to handle the crowd that assembled, stopping traffic for several minutes. Lawson's body was taken to the police station and from there to the morgue. The injured men were taken to Roosevelt Hospital, where it was found Walsh

ITALY PROMISES TO CURB D'ANNUNZIO

Said to Have Told Jugoslavs She Will Prevent Seizure of Spalato.

JUGOSLAVS WARN COUNCIL

Say Italian Aggression May Compel Resort to Protective Military Measures.

BASLE, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—A dispatch from Belgrade, dated Nov. 25, has been received by the Laibach (Jugoslavia) Correspondence Bureau, stating that the Italian Government has informed the Government of Jugoslavia that Italy will observe the decision reached by the Paris Peace Conference with regard to the Dalmatian question and will itself prevent any attempt in the direction of Spalato by Gabriele d'Annunzio.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—The Jugoslav delegation has sent a note to the Supreme Council calling attention to the serious troubles all around the Adriatic, and saying that the situation may so develop as to oblige Jugoslavia to take military measures to prevent further encroachments.

Receipt of the note by the Supreme Council was announced today.

ROME, Nov. 27.—King Victor Emmanuel will open Parliament next Monday, according to announcement here. There has been some uncertainty as to whether he would appear on this occasion because of the supposed attitude of Socialist Deputies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Advices from Rome today indicated that as a result of the recent elections in Italy there is a feeling in some quarters there that the Nitti Government will not be able to maintain itself in power and that the resignation of the entire Cabinet is a possibility.

Developments affecting Fiume and the Adriatic situation are expected to have a deep influence on the decisions of the Italian Government and Chamber as well, and apprehension is represented as being felt that Captain Gabriele d'Annunzio will force the issue contemporaneously with the opening of the new Italian Parliament in December or immediately by sending an expedition to occupy Sebenico, north of Zara.

The supreme danger is held to be the possibility of resistance by Jugoslavia to such a movement, thus bringing d'Annunzio's forces into armed collision with Jugoslav troops. This peril was emphasized in the note delivered to the State Department yesterday by the Minister from Jugoslavia calling to the attention of the American Government the very critical situation now existing and the possibilities involved in it.

In Jugoslavia circles here it seems to be the idea that war between Jugoslavia and Italy is possible unless a settlement of the Adriatic question is soon reached and that a conflict will be unavoidable if d'Annunzio's followers attempt to encroach further upon Jugoslav territory.

Italy Retires 21,800 Officers.

ROME, Nov. 25.—An official decree issued today puts on the retired list 200 Generals, 1,600 superior officers ranging from Colonels to Majors, and about 20,000 subaltern officers. This is the first step in the reduction of the army to the lowest possible limit.

Huge Meteor Falls Into Lake Michigan; Explosion Shakes Buildings in Cities.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 27.—That a meteor of tremendous size plunged into Lake Michigan last night, causing earth tremors felt in a dozen southern Michigan cities and sending a pillar of flame hundreds of feet into the air, which was visible for a radius of more than fifty miles, was the theory generally accepted early today in explanation of the earth shock which at first was believed to have been caused by a terrific explosion at some industrial plant.

From reports from various Michigan, Indiana and Illinois cities, where the blinding flare was visible, it appeared the centre of disturbance was near the lower end of Lake Michigan.

Residents of Battle Creek, Kalamazoo, South Bend, Grand Haven, and other Western Michigan cities fled from their homes in panic, fearing an earthquake. Houses were shaken, the country was illuminated as by a bright sun's rays, so all-enveloping it was imposible to tell from which direction the flare came, the earth trembled half a moment and then came a deep prolonged rumbling as of a terrific explosion.

The rumblings were heard as far as South Bend and Laporte, Ind., while the flash of light was said to have been visible at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Evidence that the great flare visible for a few seconds last night in portions of three States bordering southern Lake Michigan, came from a huge meteor, was obtained today.

A lighthouse attendant at Grand Haven, Mich., described the phenomenon as follows:

"What looked like a ball of fire appeared to fall in the lake about fifteen miles south of me. I thought it to be a falling star. In its rush downward at terrific speed, I could clearly hear it whistle. When it seemed that it was striking the water, a flash of flame shot into the air and caused a great disturbance."

GREEKS IN SMYRNA BY SECRET TREATY

Barbarous Warfare Has Been Waged by Greeks and Turks for Six Months.

MARSEILLES, Nov. 26.—That conditions around Smyrna and in the whole of Western Anatolia are most deplorable and alarming is the news brought here by people who have arrived from Constantinople.

Of course, it is nothing new that the general scramble for territory in Asia Minor and the countries southward has created trouble. These matters have been discounted and put aside as unavoidable. But the reports I have just heard from men I know to be well informed are calculated to cause the gravest anxiety. They indicate that a barbarous state of war has been maintained for the last six months and has been virtually authorized by the Entente Powers and America.

About May 15 Premier Venizelos of Greece, after consultation with the Big Four and after having received authority to send "military forces" to Smyrna, proceeded to send, not a few troops, which would have sufficed, but a whole Greek division. It was understood last May that the intention of Venizelos was to occupy only Smyrna and the immediate neighborhood; but the Greeks proceeded immediately to push out into the hinterland, and have ever since waged continuous war in the whole country around Aidin and devastated the beautiful valley of the Meander River, which is the garden spot of Turkey. The Turks offered resistance there, and for months a war characterized by the most cruel methods has been going on, first the Greeks and then the Turks being successful.

The Greeks first captured the city of Aidin and burned the Turkish part; then the Turks drove the Greeks out and burned the Greek part. The rich vilayet of Aidin has been pillaged and devastated.

In Smyrna and its vicinity, and in one or two other localities to the north, the majority of the population is Greek; but to the eastward the hinterland is Turkish four to one. The Greek claim to Smyrna was considered equitable, but it now seems that Venizelos had no idea of confining Greek pretensions to Smyrna and the district adjoining it.

It has become known that in 1917, when the adhesion of Greece to the allied cause was indispensable, Lloyd George made with Venizelos one of those secret treaties which have been the source of so much mischief elsewhere. Under this treaty Greece received an oral, if not a written, promise of a slice of Anatolia, about one-third the size of France. It was to stake out and occupy this territory, and not merely to hold Smyrna, that Venizelos sought and received permission to send troops across the Aegean last May.

President Wilson was probably not informed of the secret treaty of 1917 between Lloyd George and Venizelos. Even yet this treaty, as well as others dealing with Turkish territory, remains more or less a secret; but it is likely that within the next few weeks the British Prime Minister will be pressed for information about it in the House of Commons.

VIENNA, Nov. 26.—According to plans of Hungarian Legitimists, headed by Admiral Hortsy, the question of the recall of King Charles is to be settled by a special plebiscite next February or March. King Charles is expected to resign in favor of his eldest son, the Crown Prince Otto, and Archduke Joseph would be intrusted with the regency.

According to today's court depositions eight men are implicated in the assassination of Count Tisza on Oct. 31, 1918, among them being a member of the Bolshevist Cabinet, Pogany, who is at present confined in Austria, and the well-known author, Paul Kerb.

BULGARIA SIGNS THE PEACE TREATY

2 BALKAN STATES BARRED

Serbia and Rumania Not Permitted to Sign Until They Accept Austrian Treaty.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—The treaty of peace between the Allies and Bulgaria was signed this morning at Neuilly, just outside of Paris. The ceremony was lacking in pomp such as attended the signing of the treaty of Versailles, but it was by no means lacking in human interest.

The Commissioner who signed for Bulgaria was M. Stambuliwski. It was he who, when Bulgaria turned on her Allies and joined her fortunes with the Central Powers, warned King Ferdinand that he was signing the death warrant of the nation. He was then chief of the Peasants' Party and not a big man in the affairs of Bulgaria. And here he was today at Neuilly as Bulgaria's Premier, signing the document which provides for Bulgaria the penalties of which he warned Ferdinand when that grasping monarch made the worst guess of his guessing career.

Premier Clemenceau opened the ceremony. Looking at M. Stambuliwski, he said simply: "We are here to sign the treaty between the Allies and Bulgaria. Here is the treaty you are to sign."

Stambuliwski, who is the incarnation of the popular conception of a Bulgar, with his heavy frame, thick black hair and upturned mustache, rose quickly and affixed his signature to the treaty, taking less than a minute to do so.

Next it was the turn of Frank L. Polk, head of the American delegation. As Mr. Polk took up his pen an audible murmur ran around the room. It was a murmur in many tongues, but there could be no mistake as to its meaning. It was comment upon America's signing another treaty built upon the League of Nations. Mr. Polk, who appeared tired and worn, took more than twice as long to sign as did Stambuliwski. Then the representatives of the other powers signed the document.

Two Powers Not Represented.

But there were two powers missing. They were Serbia and Rumania—not large powers in the general sense of the word, but very important in any attempt at the restoration of order and peace in the Balkans, which, after all, is the main purpose of the Bulgarian treaty. The absence might lead the frivolous to ask: "When is a treaty not a treaty?" For to this document, aiming to create a strong régime in the Balkans, the signature of the two Balkan powers immediately adjoining Bulgaria would seem essential.

Serbia and Rumania are deadly enemies of Bulgaria. Rumania has generally been at odds with her neighbors, and when Bulgaria, on top of the German successes, turned on Serbia, she created a cause for hatred which does not die easily. And so today the Bulgarian treaty was signed without the concurrence of the two nations whose acceptance of it is most necessary to its effectiveness.

Both Rumania and Serbia refused to sign the Austrian treaty because of their objection to the provisions for the protection of racial minorities. The Supreme Council notified both nations that they could not sign the Bulgarian treaty unless they first signed the Austrian. Since, despite the various promises given and rescinded and given again, Rumania and Serbia had not signed the Austrian Treaty, they could not sign the Bulgarian treaty, and therefore the Balkans are still technically in a state of war.

It might be mentioned in passing that Rumania and Serbia were not permitted to sign the Austrian treaty with reservations on the minorities clause, which they regarded as improper in that it was regarded as admitting interference by the League of Nations in the internal affairs of those two nations.

Greece's Hour of Triumph.

PARIS, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—The Peace Treaty with Bulgaria was signed at 10:42 o'clock this morning, with a lack of formality that marked the decreasing interest in the work of the Peace Conference; though for certain powers, such as Greece, today's

LANSING RECEIVES MEXICO'S REFUSAL; WILL HOLD CONSULTATIONS ON NEXT MOVE; OUR NOTE EXPRESSED SURPRISE AND ANGER

Text of the Note Demanding Jenkins's Release, Expressing Exasperation at Mexican Action

EL PASO, Nov. 27.—The following is a re-translation of the Spanish version of the note sent to Mexico by the State Department of the United States on Nov. 20, expressing its surprise and exasperation at the second arrest of Consular Agent Jenkins and demanding his immediate liberation:

American Embassy, Mexico City, Nov. 20, 1919.

To Hilario Medina, Sub-Secretary of Foreign Affairs, Mexico City.

Sir: Referring to previous communications in the case of the Consular Agent of the United States at Puebla, William O. Jenkins, I have the honor of informing you that I have received telegraphic instruction to notify the Secretary of Foreign Affairs of Mexico that, in connection with the losses and injuries already suffered by Mr. Jenkins as the result of his being kidnapped—occasioned by the inability of the Mexican Government to give due protection and his first arrest by Mexican authorities—the Government of the United States of America is surprised and exasperated to learn that Mr. Jenkins again has been arrested.

His new arrest seems to my Government, according to the evidence before it, entirely unjustified and an arbitrary exercise of public authority.

The Government orders me to add that the persistent persecution and subsequent harassing of Mr. Jenkins cannot but have a very serious effect on the relations between the two countries, for which the Mexican Government will be solely responsible.

Therefore, I am ordered to demand the immediate liberation of Mr. Jenkins. Accept, Sir, &c.

(Signed) GEORGE L. SUMMERLIN, Chargé d'Affaires.

SAYS AMERICA MUST GIVE AUSTRIA AID

Lloyd George Has Urged Us to Share in a Big International Loan.

LONDON, Nov. 27, (Associated Press.)—Premier Lloyd George again today stood on the floor of the House of Commons and for a considerable time gave answers to a long list of questions on all subjects, mostly, however, in connection with the European economic and military situation arising from the war.

One of the most important of the questions related to conditions in Austria, concerning which Commander Viscount Curzon, Coalition Unionist member for Battersea South, asked whether the Supreme Council in Paris, including the United States and Great Britain, were taking steps to deal with the situation.

The Premier declared that the Supreme Council had reached the conclusion that only a comprehensive arrangement for a large international credit would adequately meet the situation, and that it was essential for the success of such a proposal that the United States should contribute that part of the expenditure which would have to be incurred in dollars.

"Urgent representations have accordingly been made to the United States Government in this sense," the Premier added.

Questioned regarding whose duty it would be to summon the first meeting of the Assembly and the first meeting of the Council of the League of Nations, in view of the fact of the American Senate's refusal to ratify the Versailles treaty, Mr. Lloyd George said that Article V. of the Peace Treaty stipulated that the President of the United States should summon the meeting. He added that he did not understand that this was in any way affected by the refusal of the American Senate to ratify the treaty.

Another inquiry, made by James M. Hogge, Advanced Radical and Scottish Home Rule member for Edinburgh, was whether Lloyd George gave any undertaking to President Wilson in the course of the Peace Conference that he would endeavor to settle the Irish question. This brought a direct negative reply.

Answering still another question, the Premier said that the effect of the American Senate's action with regard to the treaty provisions for plebiscite and other commissions in Germany would be only indirect. It would be necessary for the other powers to find a larger quota of representatives for these commissions.

The Premier said that the Anglo-Franco-American treaty providing for the defense of France in case of wanton attack was contingent on its ratification by the United States Senate, but that American refusal to ratify the Peace Treaty would not necessarily affect the tripartite treaty provided the United States ratified the tripartite compact separately.

The relief work being done in Europe by the United States seems to be misunderstood or its extent is little realized in England. The statement made by Mr. Lloyd George last Thursday that the British had already given aid to the Government at Vienna amounting to £15,000,000 caused much comment among Britons and Americans in London.

CABRERA DENIES WRONG TO JENKINS

WOULDN'T LEAVE THE JAIL

Says Jenkins Declared He Had Been Advised to Make the Government Use Force.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 23.—Reviewing the Jenkins case Governor Cabrera of the State of Puebla told to THE TIMES correspondent this afternoon that it was not only misunderstood in the United States, but that there had been no attempt made on the part of Jenkins or the official investigators who had arrived at Puebla to ascertain the truth. The Government of the State of Puebla had not interfered in the case, which was in the hands of the local judge.

Governor Cabrera said he was only interested so far as seeing a fair trial and that the truth was established. Personally he had no interest in the matter and had even exceeded his power when he had suggested to the Judge that Jenkins be allowed to stay in his own home. He had indirectly offered through friends to arrange for the small sum demanded for bail, $500, in case Jenkins did not have the ready cash or friends who would give bail.

Jenkins's statements that he was continually bothered by officials was untrue, Governor Cabrera said, and the proof was that Jenkins daily wrote eight letters, directed to the United States, which were allowed to be mailed without interference.

Cabrera related several incidents of the last few days. He said Jenkins was accustomed to make the trip from the jail to the office of the Judge in an automobile, accompanied by one man. Then Jenkins refused to make the trip in the automobile, saying that the Government would be obliged to use force and that he would not leave willingly, unless soldiers were brought.

The warden of the jail remonstrated with Jenkins, saying it was strange that until today he had taken the trip by automobile without complaint. Jenkins answered that he had been advised that he should oblige the Government to use force. Naturally, said the Governor, we allowed Jenkins to have his own way. The Judge made the trip to the jail to see him, which is contrary to our proceedings.

"We cannot understand," said Cabrera, "why Jenkins does not ask for bail and wait peacefully at his own home until the court decides on his case. He could attend to his personal business without any trouble.

"Another thing," said Cabrera, "the Judge has found several serious contradictions. In the first statement of Jenkins about the payment of the ransom money to Cordoba he said he was accompanied by Lawyer Mestre and made the trip in a hack to the outskirts of the town carrying the full amount of money demanded in a canvas sack. Mestre, however, stated that the money was carried in 20-peso pieces in a wooden box. When Jenkins was asked about the contradiction he answered that he had only delivered 30,000 pesos in a small package, but the coachman who drove Jenkins and Mestre to deposit the money swears that the men had no

LANSING SILENT ON NOTE

Congressmen Express Dissatisfaction With Carranza's Stand.

THREE STEPS DISCUSSED

FIRM STAND LOOKED FOR

Believed That the Government Will Not Retract Its Demand for Agent's Release.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Relations between the American and Mexican Governments have become more tense as a result of the reply of Carranza's Foreign Office to Secretary Lansing's note of Nov. 20, calling for the immediate release of William O. Jenkins, the American consular agent at Puebla, Mexico, who has been arrested on allegations that he was in collusion with the bandits who kidnapped him and demanded $150,000 ransom.

The Carranza Government's note reached the State Department during the day and was decoded but the official text had not been seen tonight by Secretary Lansing, who had a number of Thanksgiving Day engagements which occupied his time during the day and evening.

The Secretary of State declined in any way to comment on the text of the note as printed in the newspapers and it was impossible to obtain from any official source a definite statement as to how the Government would deal with the situation developed by the delivery of Carranza's reply.

The State Department was not ready tonight to give out the official text of the Carranza reply or its original note of Nov. 20, in which this Government called for the immediate release of Jenkins. It has not been the practice of the department in recent months to make public the text of its notes to Mexico except after arranging with the Mexican Government for publication of these communications.

Dissatisfaction with Reply.

While officials refrained from commenting on the Mexican note it was evident in Congressional circles that there was dissatisfaction over Carranza's reply, which flatly refused to release Jenkins, on the ground that the Executive could not order the release of a foreigner on trial before a State tribunal in Mexico, and took the ground that the American Government was relying upon power and might rather than right in its demand for the immediate release of Jenkins.

In one official quarter it was asserted tonight that the Carranza Government appeared to be taking a position somewhat similar to that which was taken by the United States Government in the Mafia cases at New Orleans some years ago and again in certain Japanese cases in California, in later years, when it was contended that the Federal Government could not interfere with the local authority of the States.

On its face the Carranza note seeks to make it appear that Jenkins will be accorded a fair trial in Mexico, and if that were the whole truth of the complicated elements involved in the case of Jenkins and conditions were different in Mexico, the Carranza Government's answer might be regarded in a different light. But there are officials who look below the surface of the situation, and are inclined to take the view that the whole carefully framed reply of the Carranza Foreign Office involves mere subterfuge in dealing with the situation.

Much is made in the Carranza note of the contention that the autonomy of the States is guaranteed by the Mexican constitution and that it is impossible for the Mexican Federal authorities to interfere with trials of foreigners or natives in the courts of the States.

It was pointed out here tonight that Paragraph VI. of Article 104 of the Mexican Constitution, signed Jan. 31, 1917, and promulgated Feb. 5, 1917, by the Carranza Government to take the place of the Mexican Constitution of 1857, specially stipulates that the Mexican Federal tribunals shall take cognizance of all cases concerning diplomatic agents and consular officers. This article provides:

Article 104—The Federal tribunals shall have jurisdiction over:

VI.—All cases concerning diplomatic agents and Consular officers.

Jenkins was a "Consular Agent" of the United States. If his case is properly coverable by the article of the Mexican Constitution just quoted it is pointed out that the Mexican local Judges at Puebla had no jurisdiction over his case and that the charges brought against him should have been brought to the attention of one of the Mexican Federal Tribunals, and not State Judges.

It was reported tonight that the Mexican note would be considered at a Cabinet meeting to be held tomorrow, and it was probable that the members of the Cabinet would recommend to the President that the American Government instruct George T. Summerlin, its Chargé d'Affaires at Mexico City, to demand his passports, and thta passports be handed to Ygnacio Bonillas, the Mexican Minister at Washington, thus severing diplomatic relations.

There was also a rumor that the Secretary of State might invite the Chairmen of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations and of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs to confer with him regarding the situation and possible measures to be taken by this Government. It was also suggested that instead of referring the matter to the Cabinet, the State Department might send another note to the Carranza Government reiterating its call for the release of Jenkins, and asking for the facts upon which his various arrests and detention are based.

It was impossible, however, from any authoritative official source to confirm any of these reports. While it seemed to be taken for granted that there would be a Cabinet meeting held tomorrow, one prominent member of the Cabinet stated tonight that he knew of no plans for holding such a meeting. This member of the Cabinet, in fact, stated that he had received no notice for such Cabinet meeting, and that, when Friday Cabinet meetings were held he usually received advance notice the night before. It would, of course, be possible for Secretary Lansing to call a special meeting of the Cabinet tomorrow if he so wished.

While officials were not only reticent but silent tonight, there was no indication that the American Government contemplated receding from its position in favor of the immediate release of Jenkins. The note of Nov. 20 was almost in the form of an ultimatum, but carried no time limit beyond calling for the "immediate release" of Jenkins. While the text of the Lansing note has never been made public, it has been officially announced that it not only called for Jenkins's immediate release but pointed out that the United States Government was "surprised and incensed" to learn of the reimprisonment of Jenkins, particularly in view of the suffering and losses already sustained by him in connection with his kidnapping "through lack of protection by the Mexican authorities," and also declared that the rearrest of Jenkins was regarded by this Government as being "absolutely arbitrary and unwarranted."

The announcement of Nov. 20 concluded with the statement that the United States Government "warns the Mexican Government that further molestation of the Consular Agent will seriously affect the relations between the United States and Mexico, for which the Government of Mexico must assume sole responsibility."

REVIEW HELD AT EL PASO.

All Branches of Border Army Manoeuvre Before Big Crowds.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Nov. 27.—The publication of the Mexican Government's reply to the demand of the State Department for the release of Consular Agent Jenkins has started all kinds of rumors in El Paso, where rumors start easily.

This afternoon at Rio Grande Park thousands of El Pasoans and as many more Mexicans saw the mounted reserve, the tanks, the artillery, and the air force in action. The tanks crashed through all sorts of obstacles, the artillery boomed, while above the city and along the American side of the Rio Grande the airplane squadrons manoeuvered.

There is no secrecy about the American forces stationed on the border.

There is now at Fort Bliss a completely equipped military motor transport train. There are over 2,300 great army trucks in the big column which, if necessary, could transport a complete division with all necessary equipment and supplies.

Army officers will not discuss the situation. General Howze, commanding the El Paso district, spent Thanksgiving in his office at Army Headquarters in the Mills Building, being constantly, it is reported, in communication with Washington and with the Southern Department Headquarters at San Antonio.

At Fort Bliss, a few miles from El Paso, are the entire 7th and 8th Cavalry under command, respectively, of Colonels S. R. H. Tompkins and the 82d Field Artillery under Colonel H. L. Newbold, while at Camp Courchesne is the 9th Mounted Engineers commanded by Captain F. W. Conant. The 5th Cavalry is in the Big Bend country, while the 12th and 14th Cavalry Regiments are on the New Mexico line. The 19th Infantry is at El Paso. Based on San Antonio are the cavalry and infantry organizations at Eagle Pass, Laredo, and points east to Brownsville. Major Gen. Dickman commands the entire border organization.

MRS. ANGELES NOT YET TOLD.

Children Still Keep News of General's Death from Widow.

Fearing that the news of General Felipe Angeles's death on Wednesday at the hands of a Carranza firing squad would mean the death of the wife of the General, who is dangerously ill at her home at 348 West 118th Street, her children have not yet informed her of it. As Alberto, the twenty-two-year-old son of the General said yesterday, he is afraid the family would have to lament another loss if his mother were told the news.

Mrs. Angeles was confined to her bed from nervous exhaustion immediately upon her arrival from Mexico about three months ago, her son said, and since then has not been able to read any newspapers. For that reason he is not afraid that the news of General Angeles's execution will be made known to her until she is informed at some future time by the children themselves.

The children of the General term the shooting an "outrage" and assert that since their father had always been a loyal Mexican he should have been spared.

"If Carranza had shown any magnanimity or any clemency toward my father," said his oldest son, "he would have won a great deal of prestige among his countrymen, but as it is, he is bound to lose many of his warmest adherents. The killing of my father is sure to cause a reaction and it will not help to solve Mexico's problems by any means."

CABRERA DENIES WRONG TO JENKINS

package or bundle, not even walking sticks.

"When Jenkins was asked to explain the differences he refused to talk; saying he had stomach trouble and could not make further statements."

"You see, continued Cabrera, "we are obliged, in view of these contradictions, to proceed to clear up these points. There are many more points in which the testimony is contradictory which I am not at liberty to explain at present, as that might defeat the investigation.

"One thing more," added Cabrera, "We want the truth established. That is all, even though we are sure that the case has been misrepresented in the United States. The State of Puebla would not foolishly persist in carrying the case through if it were a personal affair. We are not looking for trouble. The case will be cleared up and you may be sure that justice will be done without fear or favor."

Predicts Action in Mexico.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Nov. 27.—Commenting on the recent statement of General March as to the probable number of men required to pacify Mexico, El Tiempo of Cananea comments editorially: "From this it is easy to understand that it signifies the latent desire in the spirit of the Government of the United States to intervene in our affairs and that in the no distant future these latent desires will bring about action."

MEXICANS PLOTTED TO INVADE TEXAS

STATES PROMISED NEGROES

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 27.—The Federal Government as well as the State of Texas are in possession of documentary and other evidence which shows that in 1915 prominent Mexicans, all of them, it is stated, partisans of Venustiano Carranza, entered into a plot to invade the State of Texas and that in the late Spring of that year and up until the October following, various raids by Carranzistas were made across the border, as a result of which between thirty and fifty Americans, among them several soldiers of the regular army, were killed and as many others wounded. In one instance a soldier of the regular army was captured, taken to Matamoras in the State of Tamaulipas, tortured and then killed, after which the head was cut from the body and paraded about the streets of that Mexican town on a pole.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent has seen the official evidence bearing on the invasion of 1915. Included among the witnesses who will give confirmatory testimony are officers of high rank in the United States Army, officials of the State of Texas, as well as of the Federal Government, and more than a score of Texas citizens.

The attempted invasion of Texas was in furtherance of the effort that was made in 1915 to carry into effect what is known as "the Plan of San Diego, Texas," which was signed in the City of Monterey, State of Nuevo Leon, Jan. 6, 1915, by nine Mexican citizens, all of them alleged to be adherents of Carranza. It is also charged that Nicefero Zambrano, one of the most prominent Carranzistas in Mexico, was concerned in this plot, and was in Monterey when the plan was approved and shortly before the efforts to put it into execution began.

Plot An Ambitious One.

The "plan of San Diego" called for the re-annexation to Mexico of the States of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and California, in this respect furnishing what is pointed out to be an interesting parallel to the promises made by the German Government in the now famous Zimmermann note to Carranza. The plan also called for the utilization of the negroes of the United States who were to receive six States of the American Union as a country of their own, and provided for the summary execution of all white Americans who fell into the hands of the Mexicans.

The full official text of the "plan of San Diego," as now on file in the official archives of Texas, is as follows:

"(Provisional Directorate of the plan (plot), of San Diego, Texas, Jan. 6, 1915).

"We, who in turn, sign our names, assembled in the revolutionary plot of San Diego, Texas, solemnly promise each other, on our word of honor, that we will fulfill and cause to be fulfilled and complied with, all the causes and provisions stipulated in this document, and execute the orders and the wishes emanating from the Provisional Directorate of this movement, and recognize as Military Chief of the same, Augustin S. Garza, guaranteeing with our lives the faithful accomplishment of what is here agreed upon.

"1. On the 20th day of February, 1915, at 2 o'clock in the morning, we will arise in arms against the Government and the country of the United States of North America, one as all and all as one, proclaiming the liberty of the individuals of the black race and its independence of Yankee tyranny, which has held us in iniquitous slavery since the remote times, and at the same time and in the same manner we will proclaim the independence and segregation of the States bordering on the Mexican nation, which are: Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, and Upper California, all of which States the Republic of Mexico was robbed of in a most perfidious manner by North American imperialism.

"2. In order to render the foregoing clause effective, the necessary army corps will be formed under the immediate command of military leaders named by the Supreme Revolutionary Congress of San Diego, Texas, which shall have full power to designate a supreme chief, who shall be at the head of said army. The banner which shall guide us in this enterprise shall be red with a white diagonal fringe and bearing the following inscription, 'Equality and Independence,' and none of the subordinate leaders or subalterns shall use any other flag (except only the white flag for signals). The aforesaid army shall be known by the name of 'Liberating Army for Races and Peoples.'

"3. Each one of the chiefs shall do his utmost by whatever means possible to get possession of the arms and funds of the cities which he has beforehand been designated to capture, in order that our cause may be provided with resources to continue the fight with better success, the said leaders each being required to render an account of everything to his superiors, in order that the latter may dispose of it in the proper manner

"4. The leader who may take a city must immediately name and appoint municipal authorities in order that they may preserve order and assist in every way possible the revolutionary movement. In case the capital of any State we are endeavoring to liberate be captured there will be named in the same manner superior municipal authorities for the same purpose.

All Prisoners to Be Shot.

"5. It is strictly forbidden to hold prisoners, either special prisoners (civilians) or soldiers, and the only time that should be spent in dealing with them is that which is absolutely necessary to demand funds (loans) of them, and whether these demands are successful or not they shall be shot immediately without pretext.

"6. Every stranger who shall be found armed and who cannot prove his right to carry arms shall be summarily executed, regardless of his race or nationality.

"7. Every North American over 16 years of age shall be put to death, and only the aged men, the women, and children shall be respected, and on no account shall the traitors to our race be spared or respected.

"8. The Apaches of Arizona as well as the Indians (Redskins) of the territory shall be given every guarantee, and their lands which have been taken from them shall be returned to them, to the end that they may assist us in the cause which we defend.

"9—All appointments and grades in our army which are exercised by subordinate officers (subalterns) shall be examined (recognized) by the superior officers. There shall likewise be recognized the grades of leaders of other complots which may be connected with this, and who may wish to co-operate with us, also those who may affiliate with us later.

"10—The movement having gathered force, and once having possessed ourselves of the States alluded to, we shall proclaim them an independent republic, later requesting (if it be thought expedient) annexation to Mexico without concerning ourselves at that time about the form of Government which may control the destinies of the common mother country.

"11—When we shall have obtained independence for the negroes, we shall grant them a banner, which they themselves shall be permitted to select, and we shall aid them in obtaining six States of the American Union, which States border upon those already mentioned, and they may form from these six States a republic, and they may therefore be independent.

"12—None of the leaders shall have power to make terms with the enemy, without first communicating with the superior officers of the army, bearing in mind that this is a war without quarter, nor shall any leader enroll in his ranks any stranger, unless said stranger belong to the Latin, the negro, or the Japanese race.

"12—It is understood that none of the members of this complot (or any one who may come in later) shall, upon the definite triumph of the cause which we defend, fail to recognize their superiors, nor shall they aid others who, with bastard designs, may endeavor to destroy what has been accomplished by such great work.

"14. As soon as possible, each local society (junta) shall nominate delegates, who shall meet at a time and place beforehand designated for the purpose of nominating a permanent directorate of the revolutionary movement. At this meeting shall be determined and worked out in detail the power and duties of the permanent directorate, and this revolutionary plan may be revised or amended.

"15. It is understood among those who may follow this movement that we shall carry in a ringing voice the independence of the negroes, placing obligations upon both races, and that on no account will we accept aid, either moral or pecuniary, from the Government of Mexico, and it need not consider itself under any obligations in this, our movement.

"'Equality and Independence,' San Diego, Texas, Jan. 6, 1915.

"(Signed) L. FERRICO, President,

"A. S. Garza, A. A. Saenz, Manuel Flores, E. Cisneros, B. Ramos, Jr., Porfirio Santos, A. G. Almarez."

There were immediately organized secret juntas in various parts of the border States and Colorado and the heads of these juntas were selected. The names of those selected are known to the authorities and a copy of the commission that was issued to the man selected to head the Brownsville Junta is in the possession of THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent.

Attempt to Carry Out the Plot.

Here follows the story of what happened in Texas when the Mexicans sought to carry the plot into effect. The narrator is an official thoroughly familiar with all the facts. His name as well as those of the corroborating witnesses will soon be made public.

"By studying the documents with reference to the plan of San Diego," said this official, "you will see that Nocefero Zambrano, who was Treasurer of Mexico in 1915 and later Governor of Nuevo Leon in the Carranza government, came from Mexico City to Monterey in company with a Carranza General. They arrived at Monterey just prior to June 16, 1915, and there met General Louis de la Rosa, Mauriq Rodriguez, De Los Santos Fierro, Lieut. Col. Villareal, Captain Mendoza, and other Carranza officers. The evidence shows that they began at once to organize a force composed of Carranza soldiers and civilians to invade the United States in furtherance or along the lines of the plan of San Diego, that was formed in Monterey, Mexico, and San Diego, Tex., on January 6, 1915.

"They then came to Jirita, a few miles south of Nuevo Laredo, and there separated, Lieutenant Colonel Villareal with six men crossing above Laredo, with orders from General Rodriguez to guard the bridges and cut the wires at Webb Station, a few miles north of Laredo, Texas. This was to be done in order that General Rodriguez could attack Laredo successfully. Upon their arrival at Webb Station with oil, &c., one of his men deserted and informed the Hill brothers of their intentions. They promptly got a posse together and killed Lieutenant Colonel Villareal, who was in a Carranza uniform, with a Carranza commission in his pocket. The balance were captured and four of them made full confession. The others, including seventy-five Carranza soldiers left Jirita Station and went to San Ignacio.

"Prior to their arrival Captain Ruecker, United States Army, in charge at San Ignacio, heard of the movements in his direction of this band. He at once went to Captain Federico Gutierrez Zapata, who was then and is now in command of the Carranza rear guards at Nuevo Laredo, and informed him of their approach. Zapata replied that he would send his 'brush' men out to intercept them, but instead of doing this, he piloted them safely to San Ignacio and participated in the attempted assassination of our soldiers at that point. In the fight that followed several were killed and others were captured. In the pocket of one of the dead Mexicans they found a commission signed by Generals De La Rosa and De Los Santos, who were of the Carranza army. The four captured at this point were tried before the State Court in Laredo, Texas, and they were convicted and sentenced to death.

"The next we hear of this invasion was when General De La Rosa invaded Texas with a mixed band of Carranza soldiers and civilians on July 22, 1915, in which Bernard Boley, an American, was murdered near Raymondville. July 31 they murdered Bonafacio Benavides, an American, near Los Indios, Texas. Early in August Sonny Huff was wounded by invaders when they fired on automobiles on the Point Isabel Road, near San Benito, Texas.

"August 4 Private McGuire, Troop A, 12th Cavalry, was killed and Deputy Sheriff Monahan wounded in battle with invaders at Los Tolitos Ranch. August 7 A. L. Austin and his son Charles were murdered by invaders, following a raid on Sebastian. They were taken to their home, stood up and shot before Mrs. Austin, the house robbed, and guns and ammunition taken.

"Aug. 7 Charles Jensen, night watchman at Lyford Cotton Gin, while making his rounds was killed by invaders. Aug. 8 there was a raid in which Frank Martin, George Forbes, Corporal Mercer, Private Ready and Private Woods were rounded up by seventy-five Carranza soldiers and civilians picked up on both sides of the river by them and under the command of General De La Rosa. There was also a Mexican woman killed in this fight. Aug. 10, Private Waterfield was killed near Palm Garden, Cameron County.

"Aug. 17 the Progresso crossing was raided and Corporal Williams killed and Lieutenant Roy C. Henry and Private Jackson were wounded. Carranza soldiers on the Mexican side fired volleys at our people in protecting the invaders to cross the river.

"Sept. 2, R. E. Donaldson and J. T. Smith, Americans, were murdered at the Frenos tract near Brownsville, following the firing into automobiles and burning of bridges near Barreda the night before. Sept. 13 Privates Anthony Kraft and Harold Fourney were killed and Sergeant Joseph Walsh wounded by invaders during the battle at the Galveston ranch. Invaders surrounded soldiers at night while asleep and attempted to massacre them all.

American Soldier Tortured.

Sept. 25—Private Henry Stubblefield was killed and Captain A. V. P. Anderson of the Rangers wounded in the battle known as the Progreso raid. Private Johnson was missing. Mexican invaders fired a store and attacked the soldiers. Mexicans captured later confessed that Private Johnson had been captured and taken into Mexico. His ears were cut off and given to the Carranza Captain as souvenirs. His legs were hacked with knives to make him tell the number and location of other United States camps along the river. Later his head was cut off, stuck on a pole and paraded to the Carranza camp at Los Palados. The body was thrown in the river and later found by United States soldiers.

Sept. 28—Miss Carter, living near Harlingen, was shot in the arm by invaders who appeared at her home.

"Oct. 19, the day Carranza was recognized by our Government, Dr. E. S. McCain, State Health Officer; Engineer H. H. Kendall, Fireman B. B. Woodall, and Corporal Albert T. McBee were killed and Harry J. Wallace, Capt. O. H. Leighton and Private Claude B. Brazure wounded when invaders wrecked a train near Brownsville, Texas. The train was robbed as well as the passengers. District Attorney Kleiber lost his clothing and even his shoes. In order to save his life he smeared blood over his body and lay still. They shot the train to pieces.

"Oct. 21, during a fight with invaders near Brownsville, Private Herman Moore received injuries from which he died the following day. Gordon Parmelee, an American citizen, was killed near Mercedes, Hidalgo County.

"During this time there was another raid known as the Ojo de Agua raid by the invaders, in which they destroyed the United States wireless station near the mission. Several soldiers were killed and wounded and one Japanese was killed.

"As the invaders returned from a raid at Norias a soldier was killed near Mercedes. During these raids they robbed the Peterson store and United States Post Office at San Sebastian. They also killed an American boy, Marshall Bailes, near Mercedes. There was another fight with Carranza soldiers over the river when they were protecting the invaders to return to Mexico, at what is known as Cabasos Crossing, in which soldiers were killed and wounded. They also killed Mr. Powell near San Sebastian. There was another raid near McCallen, in which Rafael Rios was killed and from his person a partial list of the invaders was secured. He wore a Carranza uniform.

"About this time Captain Everett Anglin, who was then a river guard, was captured by Carranza soldiers and sentenced to be shot but was finally released.

"Since that time Juan B. Alameda, Philigoni Cuella, Carbos Esparaza, Guillermo Rodriguez, Mato Rodriguez, Frank, Martin and Joe Vela, who acted as guides and assistants to the officers during these raids, have been picked off one at a time by the De La Rosa gang, who still frequented the south bank of the Rio Grande River. The last of these men was picked off a few weeks ago.

"The last invasion was on Oct. 21, 1915, by this band. During these raids General Nafarette was the Carranza commander at Matamoras, and De La Rosa and his officers, who were leading these raids into Texas, made their headquarters in the Carranza camps, and men, ammunition, and guns were furnished them by General Nafarette.

"Soon after the recognition of Carranza the raids ceased. Nafarette was called to Monterey, wined and dined by the Carranza faction and credit was given to him for forcing our Government to recognize Carranza. He was raised one grade in rank, elected a Senator, and was up to within a few months of his death at Tampico one of Carranza's most trusted allies.

"The testimony of some of the army officers who participated in these fights with Mexicans will show that the Mexicans were well equipped not only with modern rifles and ammunition, but also with bombs and hand grenades. One of the men killed on the Mexican side proved to be a Japanese. And it is stated that proof exists which shows that among those engaged in manufacturing bombs for the invaders were four Japanese.

"Captain Rucker of the Fourteenth Cavalry and his command came very near being bombed by the Mexicans. Five dynamite bombs that were to have been used were afterwards found by Captain Rucker. The latter in a deposition for the Texas authorities has sworn that the men who attacked his command at San Ignacio were "Carranzistas, or soldiers from Mexico," and that on one of the bodies was a commission that showed that the dead man had been a Major in Carranza's army. The name of the Major was Cruz Ruiz.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—There was no evidence at today's meeting of the "Triple Alliance" of any crisis or any approaching breakup. J. H. Thomas gave an exhaustive account of the events leading up to the stoppage of the railways and a resolution was carried congratulating the railway men on the result of the strike.

A resolution was also adopted and is to be cabled to Samuel Gompers as follows:

"That this joint meeting of the Triple alliance offers its strong disapproval of the wholesale arrests and continued imprisonment of trade unionists in the United States, who can only be charged with nothing more than the ordinary trade union activities."

BRITISH AWARD $75,000 TO DESIGNERS OF TANK

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The credit for designing and producing the tank in a concrete, practical war shape is given by the Royal Commission on Inventions to Sir William Tritton and Major Wilson, who claimed it jointly; £15,000 is awarded to them by the commission appointed to decide what royalties and awards should be paid to the inventors of war instruments.

The commission devoted several weeks to hearing evidence in support of the various claimants to the discovery of the tank. In their report, issued tonight, other awards of £500 and £1,000 are made, and high tributes are paid in several cases where no money award is possible because of the conditoins of service.

Special praise is paid to Winston Churchill. The Commission desires to record its view that it was primarily due to the receptivity, courage, and driving force of Mr. Churchill that the general idea of the use of such an instrument of warfare as the tank was converted into practical shape:

"Churchill has very properly taken the view that all his thought and time belonged to the State and that he is not entitled to make any claim for an award, even had he wished to do so."

The report states that the proportion of absentees has increased slightly.

There are 18,007 teachers engaged in instruction, an increase of 264 over the preceding year. There was a noticeable decrease in the number of men on the teaching staff. The teachers' payroll for the year was $2,701,725 more than last year. Eighteen new school buildings have been provided. All of the normal schools show a decrease in the number of students.

POINDEXTER URGES FIRMNESS TO MEXICO

Says Former Military Expeditions Were Withdrawn Too Soon and Were Futile.

HERE LOOKING AFTER BOOM

Senator Thinks Foreign Policy Will Be the Chief Issue in the 1920 Campaign.

A firm hand, if not the strong arm, in our dealings with Mexico, is emphatically demanded by the American people, according to Senator Miles Poindexter, who was in this city yesterday conferring with Republican friends regarding plans for carrying his fight for the Presidential nomination into the East.

"There is a general feeling in the part of the country I come from and other parts which I have visited that the Mexican situation has been trifled with by the Administration in Washington and allowed to become unnecessarily acute and complicated through weakness and vacillation," said the Senator to a TIMES reporter. "Judging from the situation today, which could easily have been avoided, the expenditure of men and money involved in our several military expeditions into Mexico during the present Administration has been to no purpose, because they have invariably been withdrawn before they have accomplished the purpose for which they were sent. Incidentally, this futile policy has brought the United States into disrepute not only with the Mexicans, but with the peoples of other foreign countries, where, as a result, our prestige as a nation has been seriously impaired.

"Think of it! We have been temporizing for seven long years—an unconscionable period considering that all during that time the lives and property of Americans lawfully in Mexico remained in jeopardy and frequently were lost while our Government failed to realize or rise to its responsibility of protecting its citizens abroad in their lawful rights, one of the first duties of every Government."

Senator Poindexter expressed doubt when questioned regarding the prospect of some workable compromise on the Peace League covenant being reached at the regular session of Congress which will begin next week. The failure to reach an agreement, the Senator thought, would inevitably bring the treaty question as one of the dominant issues into next year's Presidential contest.

"The entire foreign policy and the question of substituting common sense and simple business principles at Washington for the futile idealism of the present administration, unless I am mistaken, will be the dominant issues in the coming campaign," Senator Poindexter added.

Senator Poindexter said that in his opinion Congress would adopt the Lodge resolution, declaring this country at peace with Germany.

"There is nothing in the treaty or our action on it materially to affect either this country or Germany," said the Senator. "Any outstanding questions after the peace resolution has been adopted can be settled through the usual diplomatic channels without much trouble or ado."

Senator Poindexter said that in all likelihood his Presidential boom would be domiciled in an Eastern headquarters in this city within three or four weeks. The Senator is only one of three candidates who will contend for the support of Republicans in the Pacific Coast and Inter-Mountain States. The others are Senators Hiram W. Johnson of California and William E. Borah of Idaho. Senator Poindexter said that Senator Johnson, his most formidable rival in that section of the country, undoubtedly would have the support of the delegates from his own State. He also regarded it as not unlikely that some modus vivendi would be arranged under which the delegates from the States immediately concerned in the three booms, acting in concert, would throw their support at the psychological moment to the one of the three who had the prospect of getting the nomination.

Senator Poindexter was asked what progress the Presidential boom for General Leonard Wood was making on the Pacific Coast.

"I heard more of General Wood among Republicans out my way some months ago than I am hearing now," was his reply.

The Senator said there has been a strong reaction in political sentiment in the Pacific Coast States since 1916.

"I do not know of any mistake that we could make that would lose us those States, or any one of them, in the election next year," said the Senator.

"We have waited twelve hundred years for this day," said a member of the Greek delegation on entering the Hall of Ceremonies in the Mayor's office at Neuilly, which is not to be compared with the Château of Versailles and St. Germain as the setting for such an event.

The simple staging of the ceremony and the clouded skies, combined with the probably inadvertent but complete isolation of Bulgaria's delegate at the peace table, spread a gloom over the proceedings. M. Stambuliski occupied a seat at the extreme corner of the table nearest the outside door with a number of vacant seats between him and the neighboring delegates.

All the other delegates were in their seats when M. Stambuliwsky was announced at 10:40 o'clock. The Bulgarian Premier, with bushy black hair, sharp black eyes and robust physique, saluted with cold formality as he entered and took his seat. Premier Clemenceau, as President of the Peace Conference, rose immediately and invited him to sign. Two minutes later the first signature had been appended to the Treaty of Neuilly.

Frank L. Polk, American Under Secretary of State; Henry White, and General Tasker H. Bliss signed for the United States, followed by Cecil B. Harmsworth, British Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and Sir Eyre Crowe, Assistant Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, for Great Britain; Sir George H. Perley, Canadian High Commissioner in London, for Canada; Andrew Fisher, Australian High Commissioner in London, for Australia; Reginald A. Bankenbergh for South Africa, and Thomas McKenzie, New Zealand's High Commissioner in London, for New Zealand. Sir Eyre Crowe also signed for India.

Premier Clemenceau, who was in fine form and high spirits after his rest at the seashore, signed with Louis Lucien Klotz, Minister of Finance, Captain André Tardieu, Minister of Blockade and the Invaded Regions, and Jules Cambon, General Secretary to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, for France. Then followed William Marconi and Signor de Martino for Italy; Baron Keishiro Hatsui, Japanese Ambassador to France, for Japan; Baron van der Heuvel and M. Rolin-Jacquemyns for Belgium; Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo-Sao Ke and S. Alfred Sze, Chinese Minister in London, for China; Rafael Martinez-Ortiz, Cuban Minister to France, for Cuba; Eleutherios Venizelos, the Greek Premier, and Nicholas Politis, the Greek Foreign Minister, for Greece, and Rustem Hadjar for the Kingdom of the Hedjaz.

The other powers followed in alphabetical order, with the exception of Rumania and Jugoslavia, whose signatures await previous signing of the treaty with Austria.

The ceremony was finished at 11:05, and at 11:10 M. Stambuliwsky, accompanied by his attachés, left the building. He was saluted by the guard of honor and remained uncovered as he passed the line of troops.

The bearing of the Bulgarian delegate throughout the ceremony seemed to reflect consciousness on his part of the distinction made between this event and the preceding ceremonies. It was explained there was no intended slight in the selection of the modest Mayor's office for the ceremony, but that it was thought necessary to give the treaty a different name than the others. Hence, as no convenient place was available within easy distance of Paris, it was decided the document should be called the "Treaty of Neuilly," and the Mayor's office was selected as the best available place for the signing.

Principal Terms of the Treaty.

By the conditions of the treaty which was signed yesterday at Neuilly, Bulgaria is called upon to surrender all works of art and valuables taken from allied countries during the war and to pay an indemnity of approximately $445,000,000. Bulgaria is deprived of Thrace and also loses Strumitza, a small triangular section of territory, the latter being assigned to Serbia. Proposals which would give Bulgaria a corridor through Thrace to the Aegean are left to the future disposition of the allied Governments. The boundary between Rumania and Bulgaria is chang in only minor details.

Compulsory military service in Bulgaria is abolished by the treaty terms the Bulgarian Army being limited to 20,000 men, with a gendarmerie, or police force, not exceeding 10,000. All arms and ammunition exceeding the amounts laid down by the treaty must be turned over to the Allies. A commission composed of allied representatives has power to punish crimes committed by Bulgarians during the war, and also to deal with the repatriation of prisoners.

ROBBERS BLACKJACK A CITY MAGISTRATE

CAPTURED AFTER A CHASE

Subdued After a Fight and Held Without Bail on Three Charges.

City Magistrate Louis H. Reynolds was blackjacked early yesterday morning while on his way to his home at 575 Sixteenth Street, Brooklyn, by two men whom he surprised attempting to gain entrance to a drug store.

Leaving his automobile in a nearby garage, the Magistrate started to walk to his home. When he was nearly there he saw the two men standing in front of the pharmacy. As he approached one of them put a foot through the window. Mr. Reynolds went up to the men and asked them what they were doing. In reply, both produced blackjacks and hit him several times over the head.

Although stunned by the blows the Magistrate managed to get to Windsor Place just as a bus came along. He halted it and enlisted the aid of two men passengers. As the party returned to the drug store the robbers fled. Magistrate Reynolds and his aids gave chase and caught the men. After a hard fight they were subdued and turned over to the police.

Arraigned before Magistrate O'Neill in the Fifth Avenue Court the men, who gave the names of Rudolph Stults of 427 Eighteenth Street and Ludwig Schnapper of 474 East Second Street, were held without bail for the action of the Grand Jury. Magistrate Reynolds charged the men with felonious assault; Meyer A. Levison, the druggist, entered a complaint of attempted burglary, while Philip Rich of 597 Greene Avenue, accused the men of robbery, alleging that in the scrimmage that preceded the arrest one of them took $70 from him. Magistrate Reynolds's injuries did not require hospital treatment.

Jacob Hupsch, a prisoner in Flower Hospital charged with burglary, died early yesterday morning from a bullet wound inflicted by Policeman George Stio of the East Fifty-first Street Station.

Hupsch, according to the police, was one of three men who tried to break into a fruit stand at Second Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street. Policeman Frank Wanzer, also of the East Fifty-first Street Station, said that he sighted the men making their attempt and started toward them, whereupon the three men fled. Wanzer fired after them in an effort to halt their flight. Stio, who joined the pursuit, also fired several times in the air, but when Hupsch failed to obey his command to stop, Stio said he shot straight ahead. The two other men got away.

Lawson, who was 35 years old, lived at 190 West Sixty-first Street. His wife and a son survive.

Benjamin Poly, 4 years old, of 322 East Twenty-second Street, was run down and killed last night by an automobile owned and driven by Samuel Spiegel of 1,239 Madison Avenue in front of 334 East Twenty-second Street. The boy was taken to Bellevue Hospital, but died shortly after his arrival. The accident was unavoidable, the police say.

Nicholas Scatcni, 12 years old, whose parents live at 3,160 Villa Avenue, the Bronx, was instantly killed by an automobile on the Grand Concourse at 205th Street yesterday as he was begging pennies from passing machines with other youngsters. Richard Candia, 113 West Forty-ninth Street, driver of the car, took the body to Fordham Hospital, where Dr. Burlington said the boy was dead.

Candia was not held, as the accident was considered unavoidable. The boy ran in front of the automobile to avoid another machine.

Five-year-old Nathan Chodes of 199 Forsyth Street was run down by a taxicab last night at Forsyth and Houston Streets. The boy died shortly after arriving at Gouverneur Hospital from internal injuries.

Following the accident the driver notified Patrolman Michael O'Neill of the Fifth Street station, who summoned the ambulance. There were no witnesses to the accident, according to the police.

Theodore Meyerwitz, 4 years old of 218 South Third Street, Brooklyn, was knocked down and killed last night at 8 o'clock by an automobile owned by the S. S. & T. Garage Company of 1,116 St. John's Place, Brooklyn. The machine was driven by Gerson Goldenberg of 388 South Second Street, Brooklyn.

Moses Gillman, 62, of 230 Clinton Street, is in the Volunteer Hospital with a possible fracture of the skull, received when he was run down by an automobile at Broome and Lafayette Streets last night. The car drove away after the accident. Patrolman Muller of the Elizabeth Street Station stopped an automobile and took Ginman to the hospital, where it was said his condition was serious.

Michael Gugliene, 10 years old, of 2 Spring Street, was run down near his home last night by William Burns, a negro, who said he lived at 2,246 Fifth Avenue. Burns was held in the Elizabeth Street Station on a charge of felonious assault. It was said he had no driver's license. Gugliene was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital with internal injuries.

Vivian Johannes of 2,758 Kingsbridge Terrace, the Bronx, was knocked down by an automobile owned and driven by James Collins of 321 West Twenty-second Street at Broadway and Sixty-ninth Street last night. She was taken in the car to Roosevelt Hospital where Dr. King said she had received a possible fracture of the skull. Witnesses told the police the accident was unavoidable.

WILL ASK NEW LAWS TO DRIVE OUT REDS

Congressional Committee Considering Plans to Tighten Up Loose Points.

TRANSFER OF AUTHORITY

Deportation Cases May Be Taken from Department of Labor and Given to Justice.

Several suggestions for strengthening the weak spots in the immigration laws have been developed as a result of the hearings of the House Committee on Immigration at Ellis Island, and new legislation will undoubtedly be prepared in Congress after the investigation has been completed. One plan is to take the authority for passing on deportations of undesirable aliens away from the Department of Labor and vest it in the Department of Justice. Another suggestion would keep an Assistant Secretary of Labor at Ellis Island, so as to assure speedy hearings and prompt decisions. Members of the committee are convinced that dilatoriness is the chief fault of the present system.

A speedy movement of Reds back to Russia and other European countries has been promised by immigration authorities, according to members of the committee, as a result of the light thrown on the policy of holding in confinement or releasing on bail or parole anarchists whose deportation has been held up only by the fact that their return to Russia presents some physical difficulties. Arrangements were being made yesterday for a deportation service from this country to Soviet Russia by way of the port of Libau in the Baltic and across the territory of the Letts. According to Congressman Isaac Siegel of New York, some of the men now held for deportation to Russia as anarchists will be on board ships homeward bound within a short time.

Berkman to Go First.

One of those who will probably be in the first shipment to Russia is Alexander Berkman, who was finally ordered on Wednesday to be deported after his case had hung fire for a long time. According to members of the committee, the announcement of a final decision by the Department of Labor to deport Emma Goldman is likely to be made today or shortly afterward. All of the methods of dealing with Reds that have proved to be unnecessarily dilatory are to be promptly abandoned. Soviet Russia is not the only destination for which Reds are expected to start within a short period. Many of the Reds on Ellis Island now belong to other countries, coming from Turkey, Austria, Finland, Norway, Sweden, and Denmark.

The committee will compile complete records of the official process in the cases of Emma Goldman, Berkman, and a number of others, who succeeded in stretching out their stay in this country to great lengths during deportation proceedings, for the purpose of discovering whether the delay was necessary under the law, or whether improper influence impeded the machinery of deportation.

In addition to the letter of Emma Goldman to Commissioner Frederic C. Howe, asking for his influence to aid a white slaver to escape deportation to France, and whether he would have to fight in the French Army, the committee discovered in the file of Mr. Howe a large number of letters sent to him on the stationery of "Mother Earth," the paper published by Berkman and Emma Goldman. Chairman Albert Johnson of the Congressional Committee refused yesterday to make these letters public.

To Strengthen the Laws.

"Those which we read into the records were put there for the specific purpose of throwing light on the cases which appeared to need investigation," he said. "We could go on with that sort of thing endlessly, but we don't want to clutter the record with a flood of matter of that sort. Our object is not to cause a sensation, but to discover where the immigration laws need correction and where their enforcement has been lax. We are going to take a few cases, and get all the material available to illustrate the process. In addition to that it is naturally true that an immigration Commissioner would get all kinds of appeals. They may not prove anything in themselves. Only what was done as a result of the appeal counts.

"We want to make the law stronger and juster, and to strengthen the service so that the enforcement of the law will be more efficient. There have been too many officials vested with the power of delay or with discretion that could be abused, and we want the authority centralized. One plan is that of placing all deportation questions in the hands of the Department of Justice. Another suggestion has been that of constituting Federal immigration courts."

One plan which has been pressed by Congressman J. E. Raker of California has been that of placing on Ellis Island an Assistant Secretary of Labor with power to make final disposition of all deportation cases within the jurisdiction of the department. Chairman Johnson has a plan for admitting aliens only after they have signed an agreement that they are in this country on probation and that misconduct cancels their right to be here.

Aliens Smuggled In.

The discovery that seven of the alleged Reds seized in the raids of the Lusk Committee were aliens who had slipped into this country without passing the immigration inspectors or paying their head tax will probably lead to an inquiry by the committee into the methods by which immigrants can be smuggled into this country. The seven men caught by the Lusk Committee said that they had come as the members of crews of ships and had then decided to make New York their homes, instead of returning to their ships.

The Committee on Immigration will begin at Ellis Island today an investigation in detail of several of selected cases of alleged anarchists and white slavers who were ordered to be deported, but were subsequently released on bail on their own recognizance or in the custody of their lawyers.

The first cases will be those of men convicted and ordered deported for anarchy or sedition two years ago, but still at large pending the appeal of their cases, or later re-arrested as leaders of Bolshevik propaganda. While the investigation hitherto has disclosed mainly the conditions at Ellis Island under ex-Commissioner Frederic C. Howe, and the connection of Mr. Howe with some of the conspicuous cases of men who were released, the investigation today propably will lead into the offices of the Department of Labor at Washington. Several cases which the committee is studying are those in which the final action was taken by Assistant Secretary of Labor Louis W. Post, or cases which are still awaiting the action of Mr. Post.

To Be Carried Into Court.

The Reds who went on a strike because they were compelled to interview their visitors through a wire mesh, will be carried into the hearing rooms today by force, if necessary. Their hearings will proceed whether the defendants care to take part in them or not. The Department of Justice has agreed to lend the Ellis Island authorities some muscular men to handle the "strikers," if they offer to resist. The presence of the men charged with anarchy at the hearing is necessary, under Supreme Court decisions, requiring that the defendant must be present and within hearing of witnesses at deportation proceedings as at any other trials.

Sixty-three of the Reds on Ellis Island continued their hunger strike yesterday, in spite of the fact that the Thanksgiving turkey dinner was offered to them. Three of the number declined to join in the strike and ate plentifully. Yesterday was the third day of the mass hunger strike, which was organized in protest against the net in which they are caged when they have visitors.

After Parole Violators.

Federal authorities are seeking to round up Russian Reds, who have violated their parole and disappeared after being released by immigration authorities on the ground that they could not be sent back to Russia and should not be subjected to confinement here during the period of non-intercourse with Soviet Russia. These paroles have been held by the committee to be illegal, and one of the objects of future hearings will be to discover who is responsible for the adoption of the policy of turning loose Reds on New York City, instead of confining or deporting them. In addition to the Reds now confined on Ellis Island, there are men and women held on warrants for deportation in all parts of the country, whose return trips to their native country have been delayed by the difficulties which the Department of Labor has faced in getting transportation for them to Soviet Russia and some other European countries.

Greenwich Village Post No. 18 of the American Legion yesterday adopted a resolution condemning "certain un-American Bolshevist elements in this country," and stating that it "desires to go on record against every disloyal undertaking, and to that end volunteers the services of the Post to the police, civil, and military and State authorities, in the event of need to suppress disorders, or to assist the Government in any way within its power."

FEARS BOMB OUTRAGES.

Inspector Eagan Says Reds Had Materials for All Types.

After making a further examination of the chemicals and acids seized in a raid at the headquarters of the Union of Russian Workers, in East Fifteenth Street, Inspector Owen Eagan of the Bureau of Combustibles announced last night that there were enough ingredients in the thirty-five bottles and containers to manufacture electric, clock, fuse, and acid types of bombs. He said that with the exception of one constituent, all the materials used in the bombs sent through the mails last Spring under the Gimbel Brothers' label were present.

Mr. Eagan declared that from all indications preparations were being made to make a large number of bombs to be used during the holidays. He expressed the belief that Reds to whom the materials belonged were scientific in the art of manufacturing infernal machines. Inspector Eagan added that he would not be surprised to hear of some bomb outrages shortly.

Members of the bomb squad under Detective Sergeant James J. Gegan and Department of Justice agents were active last night in visiting radical rendezvous in the city, but so far as could be learned no arrests were made.

Husband's Skull Broken Going to Court—Wife Accused by Employer.

After working twenty-two years in the laundry of Samuel M. Frankel, 404 East Ninety-third Street, Mrs. Teresa Vogel of 535 East Seventeenth Street was arrested on Wednesday, charged with stealing six shirts.

Mrs. Vogel was called before Magistrate Schwab in the Harlem Court yesterday morning. Her husband, John Vogel, was hastening to court when he slipped on the Courthouse stairs and fractured his skull. He was taken to Harlem Hospital. Later Mrs. Vogel appeared before the Magistrate and was held in $500 bail for Special Sessions.

O'BRIAN OF BUFFALO OUT FOR GOVERNOR

TALKS WITH LEADERS HERE

A new up-State aspirant for the Gubernatorial nomination has entered the field in the person of John Lord O'Brian or Erie County. Mr. O'Brian, who is a Buffalo lawyer, has been an Assemblyman, a candidate for Mayor of Buffalo, a delegate-at-large to the Constitutional Convention of 1915, and, during the war, a Special Deputy United States Attorney General in charge of a bureau exercising supervision over enemy aliens.

With Fred Greiner, Republican leader of Erie County, Mr. O'Brian called on some of the Republican leaders in this city Tuesday. He talked with State Chairman George A. Glynn, and also with Chairman Samuel S. Koenig of the Republican County Committee. Brooklyn Republicans, apparently, were not regarded as sufficiently footloose by the visitors from Erie to make a visit to Jacob A. Livingston, the Republican chieftain of Kings, worth while.

State Controller Eugene M. Travis gave a dinner in Brooklyn Monday to distinguished Republicans from all parts of the State, which was regarded more or less as an affair to celebrate the reaching of an understanding by which the Controller would receive the support of all factions in the Kings Republican organization.

"Mr. O'Brian would make a good Governer, and he will have considerable support for the nomination among Republicans in his section," said Mr. Greiner. "Western New York has not had a Governor since Grover Cleveland, and is entitled to recognition."

The Republican leaders are somewhat perplexed over the mushroom growth of Gubernatorial timber in their party preserve. They far from relish a wild scrimmage in the primaries for first place on the ticket.

There is talk of seeking a way out of the difficulty by having the unofficial State Convention next Fall recommend a slate to the enrolled Republicans who will participate in the primaries. There was talk of doing that at Saratoga last year, but the plan was abandoned because it was feared that if an unofficial convention tried to usurp the function of the primaries it might alienate voters. The voters did not seem to mind, for the Democrats followed that course at their unofficial State Convention a week later and elected their candidate for Governor.

The supporters of Controller Travis are rather joyful over the appearance of a new candidate. The more up-State candidates the merrier, as far as their candidate is concerned. About the most serious obstacle in his way is the understanding supposed to exist among the Republican up-State leaders that for a long time to come Republican candidates for Governor must come from an up-State habitat.

With a number of up-State candidates for Governor—and more are expected—the friends of Controller Travis, who has a greater volume of strategically well divided patronage in his gift than any other elective State officer—believe he will have a chance of defeating Secretary of State Francis M. Hugo, his most formidable rival, who has spent two years establishing friendly relations with leaders and men and women of the Republican rank and file in all parts of the State, looking to his candidacy.

SAYS AMERICA MUST GIVE AUSTRIA AID

relief work in Austria by the American Relief Administration to avoid certain burdensome features in United States law regarding the spending of money for relief in enemy countries.

With the money thus available, ostensibly from a British source, the Americans sent to Austria American supplies in American ships to the American distributing organization, which placed them in the hands of the people.

Urge Help to Ex-Enemies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 28.—The Daily Chronicle welcomes Lloyd George's announcement that the Supreme Council at Paris is making comprehensive arrangements for a large international credit to alleviate the central Europe situation. It says:

"Unless a remedy is soon found the economic misery of a large part of the continent will pass all limits and no one can foresee what disasters it may not entail. The problem of credit is too large for any single power like ourselves to deal with. Nothing less than a comprehensive arrangement for large international credits will avail.

"We are glad to see from the Prime Minister's statement that the British Government appreciates the full force of this conclusion and are acting accordingly, but it is essential that the United States should join, and should contribute that part of the expenditure which must be incurred in dollars. Urgent representations, said Lloyd George, have been made to the American Government in this sense. Let us hope they will be favorably received. It is difficult to see how otherwise the United States can finance its exports.

"This help is primarily due to our own Allies, to France, Italy, and Belgium, to Poland, Czechoslovakia, and the rest, but it will have also to be given to our ex-enemies, and notably to Germany, whose exchange yesterday stood at 185 marks to the pound sterling, instead of the normal 20. You cannot milk a starving cow until you have fed it. Only a Germany which has been helped to her feet economically can make that reparation to her ex-enemies which Germany ought to make."

DUTCH ARE CALM ON EX-KAISER'S FATE

Government Expects Demand for Extradition, Which Will Be Denied.

FINDS MANY ARE OPPOSED

Request from the Allies Will Be Considered and Refused on Judicial Grounds.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 27.—In spite of innumerable reports pouring in from Paris and London in the last few days affirming that a demand for the extradition of the ex-Kaiser is now imminent, the Dutch Government appears to remain calm and collected, blissfully ignoring them.

From Governmental sources I learn that the attitude of the Dutch Government on this question is that the matter of the ex-Kaiser's trial has not yet been taken seriously, as the Government is quite convinced that nothing will ever come of it. I learn that this opinion prevails also in the ex-Kaiser's entourage.

The Dutch Government anticipates a demand, but this demand will be refused on juridical grounds after due deliberation. A representative of the Government explained Holland's attitude to me thus:

"If this demand should come the Dutch Government would be obliged to deliberate on the questions, first, if she is formally, and, second, if she is morally justified in the delivery. The first question depends on whether the national Constitution allows extradition and can be defended on juridical grounds. The second question touches on the question of the right of asylum and Holland's traditional attitude toward refugees. Added to this is the fact that even in the allied countries a large part of public opinion is bitterly opposed to extradition."

I learn on good authority that the ex-Kaiser is not expected to move into his new house at Doorn until April.

ACTORS' EQUITY BALL.

Begin Drive at the Astor on Dec. 20 for a $700,000 Theatre.

The Actors' Equity Association, beginning a drive to raise $700,000 for the construction of a clubhouse and theatre, will give a ball at the Hotel Astor on Dec. 20. The intention of the association to build a theatre of its own was made known at an Equity meeting a few weeks ago.

Earle Boothe, chairman of the committee in charge, said that the ball would be given "for the benefit of a group of capitalists who will back our theatre providing we can prove that the Equity is a live proposition." The actors do not expect to produce plays, but will book productions at their theatre on condition that every member of the company is an Equity member.

It is purposed to follow the Hotel Astor ball with a series of additional entertainments.

Harriet McConnell Makes Debut.

Harriet McConnell, a contralto with voice and temperament alike remarkable for so young a woman, made her first appearance in song recital at Aeolian Hall last evening before an audience quick to appreciate her dramatic appeal in the Hebrew "Rachem" of Mana Zucca, as well as in English songs dedicated to her by Rhea Silberta and Carolyn Bassett. Miss McConnell came here from Australia with her mother, to whom it is said one owes both her musical inheritance and training. Without as yet the depth and power of maturity, her voice has already wide range, and a rich middle register, as well as considerable variety of style, shown in French songs, old Italian pieces, and an air from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul".

GALE SWEEPS WEST COAST.

Damages Shipping in San Francisco Bay and Orange Crop.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27.—A gale which reached eighty-four miles an hour on Mount Tamalpais, and which was accompanied by low temperatures and snow, raged along the Pacific Coast today.

Shipping in San Francisco Bay was damaged and the army transport Mount Vernon was torn from her anchorage. Later the vessel was pulled in place by tugs.

Snow fell in Los Angeles, while at the army aviation field, near Riverside, two inches of precipitation were reported. In Central California trees were uprooted by the wind and the orange crop was damaged.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 27.—Destructive storms were sweeping over various sections of the country today, between the Missouri River and the Pacific Coast.

The extent of the damage done cannot be estimated at this time, but the local weather bureau reports indicate that the greatest loss will be to the live stock herds on the open range.

Trains generally were running from one to six hours behind schedule and wire service was seriously crippled. Snow covered virtually the entire country from Kansas to the west slope of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, and from Canada to Northern Arizona.

SUCCESSORS TO HAASE.

Choice of Independents Bodes Ill for German Socialist Union.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—Opposition to a union of the Independent Socialists with the Majority Socialists is indicated in the action of the Independent Socialist faction today in electing Alfred Henke of Bremen and Fritz Geyer as Presidents, with equal rights, to succeed the late Hugo Haase as leader of the Independent Socialist party in the German Reichstag. Henke and Geyer, with Frau Louise Zietz, who was elected Secretary of the faction, belong to the left wing of the party, which has opposed Herr Haase's advocacy of moderation. It is believed that unless big concessions are made co-operation between the factions will be impossible.

DELEGATE ATTACKS JAPAN'S LABOR LAW

DEMANDS 8-HOUR DAY THERE

Kamada, for Tokio Government, Defends Special Treatment—Denies Hostility to Unions.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—U. Masumoto, labor delegate from Japan, speaking today in the International Labor Conference, characterized his Government as "an autocracy which is the enemy of social justice."

Mr. Masumoto was discussing a proposal providing for special consideration for countries, including Japan, in which industrial development has been retarded. He charged that the opposition to the application of the eight-hour law in Japan was for the purpose of supporting autocracy.

"Can you believe it when I say that behind this flag," Mr. Masumoto said, pointing to the colors of Japan, "there are several millions of toilers unjustly treated under the autocracy which is the enemy of social justice."

Japanese workers, he declared, were opposed to special treatment, "because such special treatment is not needed on account of the condition of the general industrial life, but rather for the protection of autocracy."

Once more pointing to the Japanese flag he declared that under it "there is a police regulation whose aim is to interfere with the organization of labor."

E. Kamada, Government delegate, replying for Japan, defended the attitude of the committee in reporting that his country be classed among the nations with special consideration.

Kamade declared that since the factory system of Europe and America had been introduced within the last twenty or thirty years, conditions in Japan were different. Only since the Paris Peace Conference gave prominence to labor problems had the study of these matters been treated with importance in Japan, he said.

"The reason why the Japanese people have thus become suddenly wideawake to the importance of labor problems is that they now appreciate the fact that the peace of the world can no longer be realized if the interests of working people be ignored," Kamada said.

The Government's wish to adopt a nine-and-a-half-hour instead of the eight-hour day, he said, might "seem to some to put Japan in an unenviable position," but added that tthe enforcement of a nine-and-a-half-hour day in Japan meant a reduction of two hours, as a rule, and in some industries three or four hours a day.

"This will entail," he said, "a far more abrupt change for Japanese industries than would be reduction of working hours from ten to eight per day for European countries."

Kamada said no law in Japan prohibited the formation of trade unions, but that the Government was making preparations "to enact a law positively recognizing trade unions, so as to encourage their formation and development under its protection."

"As for the injustice and the oppression by the employers which has been charged," he continued, "I deny them with responsibility. Those things, let me declare to you, are impossible in these days, when we have the 200 factory inspectors and effective system of inspection."

The conference probably will adjourn tomorrow. Only one more proposal remains to be considered, and it is expected to be disposed of speedily.

Selection of the next meeting place probably will be deferred.

Plan Religious Work Among Jews.

Plans for an extensive campaign for religious and educational work among the Jews in this country will be formulated at the Reconstruction Convention of the Union of Orthodox Congregations of America which will begin tomorrow evening at the Ohab Zedek Synagogue, 14 West 116th Street. Delegates from twenty States, it was announced, will be present.

ASK FIGHTERS' VIEWS ON WAR MEMORIAL

Ex-Soldiers and Sailors Will Say What Form They Wish It to Take.

LEGION TO TAKE A VOTE

Municipal Art Society Acts to Bring About Wider Discussion of Project.

Sentiment for a wider discussion of the form of the city's war memorial has been brought to a head, it was announced yesterday, by a conference of the Municipal Art Society, at which it was decided to take a referendum among soldiers and sailors on their choice for the memorial. The American Legion is the agency through which the referendum will be had. The question will go out to all the posts in the city this morning.

Although the referendum will not be binding on the Mayor's Committee, which is to decide the question, it is expected the wishes of men who fought will be taken into account.

Protests were made several weeks ago against the committee's course of procedure. It was asserted that scant notice had been given of a public hearing at City Hall, and that as a result the attendance in no sense represented the persons and associations interested. The Fine Arts Federation, representing virtually all the city art societies, was not invited to the conference, although its committee previously had offered its aid to Rodman Wanamaker, chairman of the Mayor's Committee.

Members of the Federation said their only interest in the question was that the wishes of the public should be learned.

"The best idea for the memorial may come from any source," said C. Grant La Farge, Chairman of the special committee of the Federation. "But there must be some effort to get these ideas, and there must be a committee which can put them into shape."

The Municipal Art Society's conference was the result of the efforts of persons interested in the memorial to start discussion which might lead to greater interest. The Chamber of Commerce, the Fine Arts Federation, the Merchants' Association, the Federated Civic Associations, the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs and the American Legion were represented at the meeting.

The Legion's referendum will go out to 250 posts in the five boroughs. It is signed by Russell E. Sard, New York State Commander of the Legion, and reads:

"It is recognized as only fair that the men whose services the memorial will commemorate should have a voice in this important matter, and consequently you are requested at your next meeting to discuss seriously and at length the nature and form which your members think this memorial should take.

"The memorial will, of course, be of a permanent nature, and will be of a dignity and size in conformity with the desire of the world's greatest city to do honor to her brave citizens who fought in the greatest war of history. It is not the desire of this office to influence in any way the opinion of any post, and it is therefore requested that an intensive study of this question be made that a proper decision may be reached."

Wade H. Hayes, Adjutant of the New York State Department of the Legion, said yesterday that it was particularly fitting that the men who performed the deeds that are to be memorialized should have a voice in the nature of the memorial. The referendum, he said, will close Dec. 31, and the result will be announced New Year's Day.

PERISHES IN FLAMES.

Freehold, N. J., Man Victim of Fire Caused by Explosion.

FREEHOLD, N. J., Nov. 27.—Albert Seewig, an ex-steward of a German liner interned in Hoboken during the war, who had established an antique business here, was burned to death in his shop this afternoon after an explosion.

Seewig and Richard Hornikel, an employe, were at work on the second floor of the building, 44 South Street, when the explosion occurred. Hornickel leaped through a window to the roof of another building and reached the street. Seewig became confused and ran to the third floor.

Persons attracted by the explosion saw him at a window with flames all about him. He was seen to fall backward and firemen found him burned to death.

He recently took out an accident policy for $10,000, calling for double indemnity if death occurred in a burning building. So far the authorities have discovered no relatives in this country. The origin of the explosion is not known. Flames caused a loss of $10,000 to the building and its contents.

PUSH TECHNOLOGY PLAN.

Specific Service to Industry Offered in Return for Funds.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 27.—The Massachusetts Institute of Technology is just beginning to approach the industries of the country with its plan of co-operation which, while it has for its immediate objective the raising of funds to provide more nearly adequate salaries for the members of its instructing staff, is considered likely to have far-reaching effects on educational and industrial plans.

The plan was necessitated by the element of time which governs certain large bequests made to the institute, and is designed to eliminate the delay which would result were certain large corporations, which actually want to give to the institute, compelled to await the action of their stockholders, as would be necessary were the contributions to take the form of gifts. One individual contribution of $3,000,000 is made directly conditional upon Technology's raising a like amount by Jan 1, 1920.

Considered in its broader aspect, the Technology plan is declared to be the Americanization of a German idea. In Germany, both the technical school and the industry were subsidized by the Government.

In effect Technology says to an industry: "This institute is a source of supply for the most important element in your organization—trained men. We have furnished the men to whom you turn for new and more efficient methods of production. Your need for men such as we produce is constantly increasing. If this school is to furnish its quota of these men, funds are necessary. Therefore it is from you, who gain most from the efforts of technically trained men, that we expect to raise the major portion of the money, and in order that your contribution to the fund may be above a suspicion of charity or philanthropy, we will contract to render certain specific services in consideration of an annual retaining fee."

WOMAN PLEADS FOR ARREST

Reluctant Patrolman Grants Request and Magistrate Fines Her $10.

That the defendant had insisted on being arrested and had tried to tear his coat, after he had escorted her from a restaurant at Seventy-fourth Street and Broadway yesterday morning, was the charge made in the West Side Court by Patrolman Cornelius McGarvey of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station against the stylish appearing Miss Nellie Black, 32 years old, who gave her address as 38 West Seventy-second Street.

The woman, it was alleged, acted in a boisterous manner after becoming engaged in a controversy about her breakfast check at the restaurant and the policeman was called. He induced her to leave the restaurant, but upon reaching the street, according to the policeman, she insisted on being arrested and pulled at his coat.

Crowds See Broadway Roof Blaze.

Traffic was held up nearly an hour while thousands of theatregoers last night gathered along Broadway, between Thirty-second and Thirty-seventh Streets, to watch firemen battle a fire on the roof of the Johnson Building, 1,333 Broadway, at Thirty-fourth Street. The blaze had its origin in a large electric sign due presumably to defective insulation. The fire was soon put out with a damage of $500.

Harvard Fund $10,360,281.

The Harvard Endowment Fund reached $10,360,281 yesterday, a special Thanksgiving canvass adding more than $36,000. The new contributions included one of $10,000 by William Loftus Monro of Pittsburgh. A gift of $50,000 for a fund to aid needy students in the law school was made by Max Epstein of Chicago, President of the General American Tank Car Corporation.

WYOMING RADICALS FACE DEPORTATION

TROOPS IMPRESS WORKERS

Men Express Readiness to Return to Their Jobs in the Collieries This Morning.

Special to The New York Times.

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Nov. 27.—Deportation proceedings will be instituted tomorrow against the most radical of the fifty-two coal miners arrested in Carneyville yesterday charged with violation of Judge A. B. Anderson's injunction. United States Attorney Charles L. Rigdan is expected to arrive in Sheridan tonight or tomorrow morning from Cheyenne to institute the proceedings. Information will be filed against all radicals against whom sufficient evidence can be secured, Major Dean, Commander of the military district, announced today.

Major Dean admitted today that the miners are being held without warrants.

Some of the prisoners went on strike in the guard houses this morning. One man was thrown into solitary confinement when he refused to sweep out. He declared he had never used a broom and never intended to. Plans for a hunger strike by some others were foiled when extra rations were issued the prisoners because of Thanksgiving Day.

In Monarch yesterday afternoon all miners of the camp were rushed to the union hall at the point of bayonets.

"We were to have met at 10 o'clock in the morning of Thanksgiving Day and would have voted to return to work anyway," said a union official in discussing the meeting. "The soldiers came and hurried the meeting along. None of the miners seem to have resented it, however, with the exception of one man who had just sat down to eat his dinner. The soldier who routed him out refused to let him finish his dinner and his wife refused to keep dinner waiting until he returned."

It developed today that only one miner in Monarch did not attend the meeting. He had been started down "the middle of the road" by soldiers. He watched his chance and hid in the bushes where, in spite of the intense cold, he remained for several hours after the troops had left the camp.

When the whistles blow for work in the six mining camps in Northern Wyoming tomorrow morning the miners will report for work, according to assurances voiced in all camps today.

The miners were impressed by the military raids which were conducted in Monarch and Carneyville by troops of the 15th United States Cavalry yesterday. Nine out of every ten miners questioned today responded in the affirmative. Yesterday's raids were treated everywhere as a joke. Perhaps it has been the spirit of Thanksgiving Day that has been responsible for this attitude, but officials are frankly surprised at the apparent lack of resentment on the part of the bulk of the miners.

All mines were closed today because of the holiday, but operators are prepared to resume full production tomorrow.

Authority for Arrest in Doubt.

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Nov. 27 (Associated Press)—The question of who has jurisdiction over fifty-two prisoners arrested by the Sheriff at Carneyville yesterday and held in the county jail at the request of the military commandant of Northern Wyoming had not been settled tonight.

Although the arrests were made by Sheriff Dolph Thomas and his deputies, the county officers said they acted under the protection of Major Warren Dean, in command of the Federal forces, followed threats against the miners who desired to return to work.

Major Dean today said he had called the matter to the attention of United States Attorney C. L. Rigdon at Cheyenne, and agents of the Department of Justice, adding that the military authorities had nothing upon which to detain the prisoners.

County officers say they were arrested for conspiring to prolong the strike in violation of the injunction issued by Federal Judge A. B. Anderson at Indianapolis, that they are suspected of having made the threats that kept other miners away from their work, and that they can be detained as undesirable aliens if for nothing else.

COURT BACKS DAKOTA SEIZURE

Federal Judge Refuses to Restrain Governor from Operating Mines.

FARGO, N. D., Nov. 27.—"All that can be achieved by means of writs of injunction has been tried, and it has not produced a ton of coal," said Judge Charles F. Amidon in the United States District Court here today in denying the application by the Dakota Coal Company, a Minnesota corporation, for a writ of injunction to restrain Governor Lynn J. Frazier from seizing and operating the lignite coal mines of this State.

"Nearly half a million miners continue the strike. As the Winter advances the crisis in the East deepens," said the Court. "It needs only the presence of North Dakota temperatures in the East to call into immediate action something besides injunctions.

"Every strike in a key industry involves three rights—the rights of the employer, the rights of the employes, and the rights of the public. The greatest of these is the rights of the public. The firm establishment of the supremacy by the law of the rights of the public is the next step in the life of the American people. Heretofore the public has been the sufferer. Private rights have been placed above public welfare. Employer and employes have been permitted to fight, while the public has acted simply as a police officer and borne most of the loss. By long suffering we have got sufficient wisdom to end that régime."

The State is now operating all the lignite coal mines, martial law having been declared by the Governor shortly after the bituminous strike began.

McADOO REPEATS CHARGES.

Denies Information on Operators' Profits Was Confidential.

William G. McAdoo gave out the following statement last night relative to the coal controversy:

"The coal operators assert that I gave out confidential information when I stated that profits of the mine owners in 1917 ranged from 15 to 2,000 per cent. on capital stock before deduction of taxes.

"This was not confidential information. The Treasury Department may publish statistical matter of this character any time. In fact, information concerning this very subject was furnished by me to the Untied States Senate in response to a resolution introduced by Senator Borah concerning profiteering, and was published July 5, 1918. See Senate Document 259, Sixty-fifth Congress, Second Session.

"In this report the returns of several hundred coal companies showed profits ranging from 15 to 800 per cent. on their invested capital in 1917. The range of profits was higher on capital stock. In short, many coal operators got back their entire invested capital several times out of their profits in 1917, as shown by the reports, and must not be on velvet."

TO ASK GOVERNORS TO ACT.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 27.—Governor Frederick Gardner of Missouri, announced tonight that unless the Federal Government takes action to end the soft coal strike by tomorrow, he will issue a call for a meeting of the Governors of all coal-producing States, to be held either at St. Louis, Chicago, or Indianapolis, to discover means of getting coal mined.

Governor Gardner was appointed Chairman of the committee to devise means to lower the cost of living, appointed at the conference of Governors held recently in Salt Lake City.

They also issued a statement as to their position in regard to the decision on the Garfield proposal. The statement reads as follows:

Washington, Nov. 27, 1919.
Hon. H. A. Garfield, United States Fuel Administrator:

Recognizing the seriousness of the present crisis and the urgent need of the country for coal, we wish to advise you that subject to your approval and conditions upon the mines resuming operations immediately, the Operators' Scale Committee of the Central Competitive Coal Field accept as a basis for the settlement of the present wage controversy and termination of the strike, the figures submitted by you to the joint meeting of operators and miners held yesterday evening, namely an average increase of 14 per cent. to be granted to all classes of mine labor, such increase to be apportioned in accordance with the wage bases that are acceptable to the employes and employers, thus preserving present differentials. Otherwise than as above modified in complete accordance with your proposal, the present contract in all its terms and conditions to be continued in full force and effect until March 31, 1922.

We have already notified the miners to this effect

At the same time we wish to call your attention to the fact that the acceptance of this increase in wages without any increase in selling prices entirely eliminates the profits of a large number of mines. Such a large number, in fact, we fear that the production of coal will be seriously affected. We understand that operating statistics for 1919 are not now in your possession and we shall rely upon the Government, when such statistics are properly assembled and presented, to make such adjustments in selling prices as will permit these mines to make such fair and reasonable profit as they are entitled to under the Lever law.

THE OPERATORS' SCALE COMMITTEE OF THE CENTRAL COMPETITIVE COAL FIELD.

Delegates Leave for Their Homes.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—An abrupt end came late today to all attempts to settle the nationwide coal strike by peaceful agreement.

Miners and operators spent a bleak Thanksgiving afternoon in embittered debate over the Government proposal for a 14 per cent. wage increase, made last night by Fuel Administrator Garfield, rejected it, and every other proposal that was forthcoming, and then dissolved, sine die.

Some of the participants went home tonight, and where the break left coal strike conditions not one of them, miner or operator, would say. Likewise, in official quarters there was silence.

Acting President John L. Lewis of the Mine Workers, though refusing to say one word as to the strike itself, which theoretically was called off in obedience to Federal Court injunction holding it a violation of the Lever act for war-time food and fuel control, scored the Government roundly at the conclusion of the conference. So did William Green, Secretary of the Mine Workers.

Operators, though accepting the Government proposal definitely in a letter of explanation to Dr. Garfield which they made public, intimated that the Government refusal to allow price increases would bear reconsideration.

It was behind closed doors that the coal situation reached its climax today, after involving the full attention of the Federal Government for two days previously. There was much heated oratory, but T. W. Guthrie of Pittsburgh, Acting Chairman of the Operators' Committee, described the parliamentary procedure succinctly as he came out.

The operators, by a prearranged plan, notified the Miners Committee for the Central Competitive Field of their acceptance of Dr. Garfield's plan, he said. This the mine workers promptly voted down. In turn the miners put forward a counter-proposal that Secretary Wilson's suggestion for a 31.66 per cent. wage increase be granted, and this the operators flatly refused. For the third time the operators renewed their formal offer of arbitration, and this the miners voted down. An adjournment was voted unanimously.

Though officially all of the proceedings today were in wage scale committees of operators and miners for the central fields, all semblance of a sectional discussion was dropped. All districts of the United States were represented at the final outcome, and the action taken was national in its bearings.

Operators, less communicative than the miners, went away from the session with varying resolutions. One or two had reached a determination they said to attempt coal production, regardless of the strikers, but most of them were in doubt on this point. Acting Chairman Guthrie indicated that as an organized body they had ceased to function, and that individual necessity and inclination would govern their action, though all would wait a little to see what the Government proposed.

Secretary Green of the mine workers accused Dr. Garfield today of "doing great injustice to a million miners" in making his analysis of the situation, and said the Fuel Administrator's action "approached the commission of a moral crime against the public."

"The mine workers cannot mine coal at his figure," Green declared.

Fuel Administrator Garfield tonight was informed of the result, but had nothing to say for publication. Officials looked for further steps by the Government, but there was considerable doubt as to what these would be.

MINERS DEMAND AN INQUIRY

West Virginia Workers Appeal to President and Congress.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 27.—Predictions were made tonight by Benjamin F. Morris, Assistant Secretary of the Kanawha Coal Operators' Association, that 60 per cent. of the mines in the Kanawha district would be working tomorrow. All mines were closed today owing to it being a holiday. Production in the Kanawha district for Wednesday was estimated at 60 per cent. of normal by Mr. Morris.

Resolutions adopted at a meeting of the District Executive Board of District No. 17, United Mine Workers, held Thursday, were made public tonight by Fred S. Mooney, Secretary-Treasurer of the local union. Copies of the resolutions have been mailed to President Wilson, the members of the Cabinet, and to Congressmen.

"We have the assurances of a number of the members of Congress that they will go to the mat with us in securing a Federal investigation of conditions in the Guyan Valley field," Mr. Mooney said, "and we are confident from the information we have that there will be ample sufficiency of Congressional support to bring the desired action."

The resolutions assert that the Guyan operators compel the miners "to work under the most inhuman and unjust conditions: that these miners are denied the right to have their coal weighed: that they are paid wages greatly below those paid in the union fields," and that "the operators of the Guyan Valley now and for some years past have maintained a private army of thugs and gunmen for the purpose of preventing any attempts of the men to organize into a union."

The charge is made that "Governor Cornwall is now and has been doing all in his power to prevent an independent inquiry into the conditions within his jurisdiction."

ADOPT NEW COAL PAY SCALE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 27.—Coal operators of this State, with headquarters here, it was learned today, will begin paying miners Dec. 1 the 14 per cent. increase in wages suggested by Federal Fuel Administrator Garfield. Other Alabama operators are expected to do the same.

Present price for the run of mine digging in the basing fields is 85 cents a ton, which will mean 96 cents with the increase. Operators generally, it was stated, would make the price a round figure of 97 cents.

ST. LOUIS FEARS COLD SPELL

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 27.—The coal shortage in the St. Louis district has not reached an acute stage up to this time. The moderate weather here has made it unnecessary to make drastic orders to assure the delivery of coal to the poor, but a touch of wintry weather today, with the prospect of a cold spell, has caused the Regional Committee to look directly toward the supply of coal available for immediate use in the homes in the poorer districts.

Many factories and plants classified by the committee as nonessential have been closed, and several more will be compelled to close by the first of the week if the fuel situation is not relieved. Some nonessential industries are now operating by the use of coke, of which there is a considerable supply in St. Louis, but the price of coke is high, and it is almost prohibitive for manufacturing purposes. Many employes have been thrown out of work.

THE OPERA

By Richard Aldrich

"Carmen" at the Matinee.

"Carmen," given at the Metropolitan Opera House yesterday as an extra holiday matinee, attracted a large audience that heard a performance in which the only new element of importance was the work of the new French conductor, Albert Wolff. He showed in this performance the same interesting qualities that marked his conducting of "Faust" last week: a feeling for dramatic accent and expeditious movement, a rythmic pulse, a sense of color. Some of his tempos seemed even rather too fast for producing the desired effect.

Mr. Wolff also appeared to show a better understanding of the acoustics of the house and kept the orchestra under considerably more restraint as to volume of tone than he did the other evening. This was to the advantage of the whole effect. Attention was paid to many of the finer and less obvious features of the score, which abounds in features not always obvious and not always heeded.

Mme. Farrar repeated the impersonation of the willful heroine that she has made so familiar in recent years and which she has developed considerably since she first undertook it here and now costumes curiously. It does not show all the old quality of voice; perhaps nobody's impersonation shows all of his or her old quality of voice. Mme. Farrar sang several of her airs transposed upward, for "Carmen" is at least a mezzo-soprano's opera. Nor can it be said that finesse in the disclosure of Carmen's character is conspicuous in her interpretation; but it has a definite dramatic value of its kind and is an individual conception.

Mr. Martinelli's Don José and Mme. Sundelius's Micaela are familiar and have qualities which may be admired. Mr. Couzinou cannot be counted among the best of the Escamillos that have been heard at the Metropolitan.

The stage pictures, the divertissements of the ballet, and the stage management of the several scenes are admirably managed, and the singing of the chorus was excellent, except for some spots where there was a lack of complete understanding with the new conductor.

Mabel Garrison in "The Barber."

A second Thanksgiving audience at the Metropolitan last evening heard an American prima donna, Mabel Garrison, as heroine, for the first time in a perennial favorite of Italian opera, "The Barber of Seville." Mme. Garrison brought to the part of Rosina the charm of youthful spirits and fresh voice, which may well hold a place beside the past-mistresses of classic comedy and vocal pyrotechnics. She acted with more animation, naturally, than in other rôles, and her entrance aria, "Una Voce Poco Fa," was instantly applauded. In the later singing lesson scene, she introduced in place of more usual interpolations a little air of Mozart's, familiar as a nursery song, "Ah, Vous Dirai-je, Maman," in elaborate variations by Adam, and for encore another and lighter French air, Massenet's "Vous Dansez, Marquise."

Mme. Garrison's coloratura singing gave pleasure as spontaneous rather than sensational utterance, clear, bright and true to pitch, free in higher flights, and avoiding too studied effects in this sparkling music. It was noteworthy that the large house remained to hear her to the close. The performance of her companions was in the main the admirable ensemble of last season. Charles Hackett received an early ovation for the Count's serenade, never so charmingly staged in a new urban nocturne of colorful Seville. De Luca in the "Factotum" and Mardones in the "Calunnia" aria were heartily welcomed. Mme. Bérat sang Berta, her own name transposed, and Malatesta was Dr. Bartolo. Mr. Papi conducted in the spirit of the rollicking score.

The Cincinnati Orchestra.

The Cincinnati Orchestra was added to the list of orchestras visiting New York last evening when it appeared in Carnegie Hall under the direction of Eugène Ysaye. This was not its first visit: it came several years ago when it was playing under the direction of Mr. Ysaye's predecessor, Ernst Kunwald, more recently of Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. Nor was this Mr. Ysaye's first appearance here as a conductor: there are memories of his once conducting, as "guest," the New York Symphony Orchestra, and of his appearance with Eugen d'Albert, when the violinist and the pianist each conducted for the accompaniment of the other. But now Mr. Ysaye comes as the head of a "permanent" orchestra which he has directed for two seasons, continuing a line of activity in which he had previously made a name for himself in Brussels.

It is not always the great solo artist who makes a great conductor, though there are instances enough when he has. Mr. Ysaye showed last evening many traces of the lion's claw, but the performances that he presented could by no means be accepted as great or even as satisfactory.

The orchestra he directs is still far from being a body capable of yielding the results that he must have had in mind. It is ample in size, but its material is not uniformly excellent. Its most obvious deficiency is as to tonal quality, which is of the rough and opaque, lacking in beauty and color, and is in louder passages hard.

The tone of the strings has little warmth, that of the brass little mellowness. The first horn had several opportunities to show praiseworthy skill. Other opportunities for other instruments were not always so well met. All in all, the orchestra lacks homogeneity as well as the balance and finely adjusted proportion which alone the directing mind can mold plastically to finer issues.

Mr. Ysaye's program comprised Goldmark's "Sakuntala" overture César Franck's symphony, a piece of his own for strings without cellos or double basses, entitled "Exile," and Brahms's violin concerto, played by Mischa Elman, placed curiously at the end. The performance of Goldmark's overture was not such as to inspire confidence in what was to come. It was singularly lacking in subtler detail and in certain passages indispensable inner voices were covered and obliterated. Yet there was evident a finely planned conception in the contrasts of the sections and the rhythmic propulsion.

In Franck's symphony Mr. Ysaye displayed a high authority; he read the work with glowing enthusiasm and eloquence, a deep penetration into its poetical content; and though it only in part came to a realization, the listener could but feel the power that was seeking for expression. His own composition is obviously a personal utterance, a personal experience; not perhaps music of strong originality, but appealing and [illegible] rising to [illegible] perhaps it was [illegible] for the conductor to exhibit [illegible] the quality [illegible] this performance.

Mr. Elman's playing of the Brahms concerto is not familiar in New York. It was [illegible] that it came at so late an hour.

THE COAL WAGE INCREASE.

The Fuel Administrator's award of an increase of 14 per cent. in coal miners' wages is the result of an application of principles to facts, and cannot be dissented from without questioning either the principles or the facts. Even those who dislike the result did not question the principles before the award, and do not now. The facts are questioned, but the Fuel Administrator's authority is better than that of those whose views are more interested than his. His first thought was of the public, not of the miners or the operators. His award would close some mines, and would not increase wages as much as those who receive them wish. But the price of coal to the consumer would not be increased, the operators' profits being reduced by as much as the wages are raised.

There is no such thing as doing complete justice in an award averaging conditions varying widely for both miners and operators, but the public will think that he has done as well as might be expected. The rejection of the award by the miners will not weaken this conclusion, for the miners' demands were unreasonable, being reduced by even so strong a supporter as Secretary Wilson. The acceptance of the award by all the operators who can live under it is all that can be expected from them. The thing to do now is to support the award. If it were rejected there would result confusion of counsel, which might lead to nationalization of the mines as well as to burdening industry by adding hundreds of millions of dollars to the cost of coal for either industrial or family use.

The coal industry is peculiarly one not to be considered by itself alone. Fuel ranks next to food in its basic character, and above even transportation. If ever there is to be a check to the rising cost of living, the beginning must be made with food, and next with fuel. The beginning cannot be made with food until after the next harvest at earliest, and more probably not until after several harvests, so great is the world's hunger. Only in less degree is that true of coal. The volume of production of coal is capable of immediate control, and the demand has not been thought capable of immediate satisfaction. For that reason it is surprising to find the Fuel Administrator calculating on a production of 100,000,000 tons less than last year, and on a wage which would place the miners on an equality with other similar workers by working 200 days a year. It is true that coal is not now wanted for war purposes, and that neither profits nor wages should be increased for that reason. But the demands of peace under present conditions are hardly less exacting than those of war, both for coal and for all products resulting from the use of coal. There is a demand for scores of millions of tons of coal for export, and for millions of tons of steel which can be produced only with coal. The problem of payment obstructs this trade at present, but it will be useless to provide credits for the sale abroad of a commodity not produced through a wage dispute. Even the satisfaction of the home demand would seem inadequate for the wants of our foreign friends, who need coal next to food.

The Fuel Administrator says that "if those who produce these com-"modities [food and fuel] demand "more than the average man in the "country is getting, then by the ex-"tent by which he demands more is "he levying tribute on the 100,000,-"000 people of the country." Whether the excess is in profits or wages, it makes no difference in the fact that the excess benefits the few at the expense of the many. Profiteering of either sort must be checked if there is ever to be an end of what has been called "spiralysis," or the check to prosperity by the ascending curve of the cost of living, which defeats its own purpose by keeping just ahead of each increase of wages. The railway men and miners are important classes of wage earners who have discovered that their wage increases are disappointing to them, as surely as they are oppressive to others whose needs are greater than theirs. The remedy for both is more work and more consumable goods. There is a limit to the wages which can be paid, but the division of goods is necessary if they are produced. Combinations for raising wages and shortening production in times of need are obnoxious. Excess profits, too, are offensive, but they gave the country coal which could have been got in no other way. Demands for excess wages and deficient production of coal are a combination which cannot go without challenge. It is a fault which the miners share with many. The Director General has complained of it on the part of those other demanders of excess wages and reducers of work—the railway men. The Merchants' Association this week prints the experiences of many employers in many trades to the same effect. Unions are entitled to support so far as they benefit society by benefits procured for their class, but not so when the acts of unions are prejudicial to society, as they recently have been in more than one case.

STANDING BY JENKINS.

The dispatch of Sub-Secretary of Foreign Affairs Medina on the proceedings against Consular Agent Jenkins at Puebla makes out a prima facie case of legality. There is a disposition to lecture the State Department upon its lack of familiarity with the Mexican Constitution, but that may be passed over as irrelevant. The sole concern of the United States Government is to be sure that its representative at Puebla is not being made a victim of official persecution, that he is fully protected in his rights under the law. It is not the purpose of the State Department to challenge the local jurisdiction, or to require the Federal Government to order the release of the Consular Agent if it can be shown that he has violated the criminal code.

The fact that Jenkins, who has made a detailed report on the subject to the State Department, affirms that his person was seized by bandits and that he was obliged to ransom himself, receiving no aid or co-operation from the State or the Federal Government, leaves the State Department no alternative but to insist that he be fully and fairly tried on the charge, now for the first time officially made, that he has been guilty of perjury in proceedings to prove that he was an accomplice in the outrage of which he complained. It must be obvious that, while the State Department is estopped from interfering with the processes of the Mexican law, it is nevertheless its duty to watch the development of the case in court through its representatives at Puebla. It has been asserted by the Mexicans themselves that the Executive Department has sometimes tampered with the Judicial Department. The bench, they say, is not free from political influence.

If Consular Agent Jenkins can be shown to have conspired against the Federal Government as charged, the State Department will wash its hands of him, but the proof must be forthcoming. It would be ignominious to desert him because the Sub-Secretary of Foreign Affairs has written a brief upon the case, which in effect is an intimation that the State Department had better mind its own business. There is no casus belli in the affair, but if the Mexican Government has been wrong in its view of the kidnapping of the Consular Agent it will be expected to make any amends the injustice calls for.

THE MAGYAR CABINET.

A new Cabinet has been formed in Budapest, and will take over the Government of those regions of Hungary which are being evacuated by the Rumanian Army. Provisionally, it has allied confidence and recognition, on condition that it maintain order and arrange as soon as possible for the holding of a fair election. Without doubt, the motive for this acceptance was principally the need of finding some Government which could hold together at least long enough to sign the Peace Treaty in the name of the Magyar nation.

The Ministry includes men differently known, but most prominent is Stephen Friedrich, late provisional Premier, and holding the post of Minister of War in the new body. Friedrich's inclusion, as well as the reports that certain well-known reactionaries will be members of the Hungarian peace delegation, indicates that the men who before the war made Magyar domination unendurable to the subject nationalities are likely to have much influence in the new Government. Already the royalists are demanding the restoration of the royal arms on public buildings, and there is talk of the return of Charles of Hapsburg to what is left of the lands of the crown of St. Stephen—a crown which he never formally resigned.

Return of monarchy in Hungary would be a bad thing for Hungary and her neighbors, but it begins to seem a possibility. If it comes, who is to bear the blame? The burden of the Rumanian occupation has perhaps made the people ready for anything by way of change; and still more powerful as an aid to reaction is the fear of another outbreak of Bolshevism, which kept the Rumanians in Budapest longer than they would have stayed of their own accord. Hungary suffered much from the Kuns and Szamuelys, and would not willingly repeat the experiment.

But Bela Kun would never have ruled in Budapest if Karolyi had not turned over the Government to him, and Karolyi could never have done it if the mass of Magyar opinion had not regarded Bolshevism as a light infliction, and one which could be endured for a time in order to frighten the Peace Conference and retain the old frontiers. It was the firm determination to keep the subject races in the Hungarian kingdom, when every moral and physical force was working the other way, that led to the disastrous invitation to Bolshevism. Bolshevism itself did enough harm, and it was the direct cause of the Rumanian occupation. The Rumanians took from Hungary far less than the Central Powers had taken from Rumania, perhaps no more than even the Magyars themselves had taken; but because Hungary was suffering what Germany and Bulgaria were not, the Magyars naturally thought themselves mistreated beyond belief. No wonder that to many of them the old Hapsburg days seem golden by contrast.

So if the Hapsburgs come back to Budapest, the responsibility will lie chiefly upon Michael Karolyi, the man who as much as any one else could claim the credit of driving them out. They will come back to a country which has lost the territories Karolyi tried to save, and lost much else besides. Even in the last year we have seen few more instructive demonstrations of the somewhat dishonored platitude that statesmanship requires something more than good intentions.

BOLSHEVISM ON THE BALTIC.

Allied delay in dealing with the German-Baltic army of von der Goltz and Avaloff-Bermondt was due largely to the fear of Bolshevism—either spreading from Russia through the Baltic States or springing up spontaneously in them. Now that the army which was to save the Baltic for Germany is thoroughly beaten we may expect to hear more talk of this. The outcry will probably be great, and most of it will come, directly or otherwise, from Germany. The actual danger is very much less.

Mr. Duranty's dispatch published in yesterday's Times indicates something of the difficulties which the Letts will have, as the Esths have had, with the "Balts"—the descendants of the mediaeval military conquerors of the country. In Latvia these are mainly German in blood, with some Swedish and Danish elements; in Esthonia the Swedish racial element is much stronger, but racial origin is not the decisive characteristic. The Balts include a considerable percentage of the town population and practically all of the landholding nobility; and, whether German or Swedish by descent, practically all of them are German in consciousness. Numerically they are from 4 to 8 per cent. of the population in different parts of the Baltic territories.

In Esthonia 80 per cent. of the arable land and 84 per cent. of the forests belonged to 755 nobles. In consequence, when the Esths got control of their own country they passed severe measures of expropriation which split up most of the estates. No doubt in some cases this worked hardship; but the land barons had had some centuries to make themselves loved, and had succeeded, with a few exceptions, in winning the bitter hatred of the populace. The same thing is true in Latvia, where the expropriation is still to come, and the fears of the Balts are consequently heightened by the uncertainty of the situation. The unsuccessful Russian revolution of 1905 provoked some peasant risings in the Baltic States, with the burning of manor houses and massacre of nobles, which naturally were followed by still more severe reprisals when imperial authority was re-established. It is apparent that the Balts are afraid of something of the sort today, now that the German filibustering expedition which received at least moral support from the land-owning classes has collapsed. There is, however, reason to hope that the responsible Governments now in control on the Baltic will prevent popular outbursts such as occurred in 1905.

All this, however, is not Bolshevism, nor anything like it. It is a solution of the agrarian problem such as is going on in Czechoslovakia and Rumania and is about to occur in Jugoslavia—somewhat more extreme and attended by harsher feeling, since local conditions were more oppressive; but it is not Bolshevism. Latvia and Esthonia have both fought off Bolshevism; there is a good deal of socialism in both countries, but very little of it has any sympathy with the State of Lenin and Trotzky. In the Winter of 1918-19 the Bolsheviki invaded the Baltic States, with the frank declaration, published in one of their official newspapers, that "Lithuania, Latvia, and Esthonia lie "across the route to Western Europe, "and constrict our revolution. This "wall between the revolutionists of "Russia and Germany must be torn "down. * * * The control of the "Baltic will also give Soviet Russia "the opportunity to act upon the "Scandinavian States."

But much has changed in a year. Spartacus is no longer an imminent danger in Germany, and the Bolshevist drive toward the Baltic has been stopped. The Baltic States need peace, even such a temporary half-peace as can be made with Soviet Russia. They hope to regain their feet economically by acting as commercial intermediaries between Soviet Russia and Western Europe, but the blockade is likely to hinder this. But they have the strongest possible interest in avoiding military alliance and in preventing infiltration; for Bolshevist rule on the Baltic will mean the end of nationalism, the swallowing up of the newly liberated States in a Russian mass whose rulers are no more sympathetic to the Letts and Esths than were the Romanoffs. The new States have won their liberty by fighting, and national sentiment seems strong enough to keep Bolshevism out; nor will the manners of Mr. Litvinoff, who behaves to the Baltic negotiators as Hoffmann behaved at Brest-Litovsk, be likely to make friends for his Government.

THE FATE OF ANGELES.

The Mexican Government was within its rights in executing the sentence of death upon General Felipe Angeles, who had been proved a rebel against its authority, in fact gloried in his position. But whether it was politic to make an example of such a fine officer and gentleman by sending him to his death at the hands of a firing squad may be doubted. Angeles, a man of ideals and sincerely patriotic, will be regarded as a martyr by the disaffected. Clemency would have strengthened, not weakened, the Government, which boasts its civilization and wishes to be regarded as enlightened and progressive.

Felipe Angeles was an attractive figure to all except his enemies. He was a fine type of Mexican, of which the number is not as limited as is generally believed in this country. In warfare he was humane, never permitting the massacre of prisoners which has been so common among the Constitutionalists and the insurgents. He was an outspoken admirer of American institutions, commending them to his countrymen. He would have been a sagacious guide to them, if the stars in their courses had not fought against him. He died as he had lived, keeping a free mind and facing death gallantly, as he had often done in the field. His place in the history of troubled Mexico is secure.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Germans Will Feel the Point.

So far as the public has been able, hitherto, to observe, humor did not constitute an appreciable element in the explanation of Mr. Hoover's efficiency as an agent for the relief of the world's too numerous unfortunates. Yet that efficiency, by common agreement among all the men and women qualified by personal knowledge to discuss it, has had continuous and brilliant demonstration ever since the days, way back in 1914, when, in pure goodness of heart, he undertook to hunt up and restore, to tourists on the Continent the trunks they left behind them when they fled, frightened and chattering shrilly, to escape the Great Conflagration that so unexpectedly ended their vacations.

That job he did well, as he since has done well many more important jobs, including that of saving from starvation no inconsiderable fraction of Europe's inhabitants. Always, however, he has gone about these beneficent works in seeming soberness or solemnity. Now there is what may be only a seeming change, for very distinctly humorous is his proposal—coming from Mr. Hoover proposals differ little from orders to honest folk properly docile to good advice—that all Americans who have come to the conclusion that something should, and therefore must, be done for the cold and hungry part of Germany's population, intrust the spending of the money they give to the American Friends' Service Committee and let that organization attend to the work of German relief in all its phases.

That the only pacifists about the sincerity of whose "conscientious objections" to war for any cause nobody has any doubt should be chosen to bestow alms on a people whose necessities are due wholly to their exaggerated and misdirected militancy—certainly in that there is something amusing, something almost funny, and it simply cannot be that Mr. Hoover does not see the joke or that he did not intend it.

Serious Enough in Reality.

Amusing or not, the suggestion that German relief work be intrusted to the Freinds is as far as possible from being absurd. On the contrary it is entirely wise, for though these sectarians are pacifists, they are a shrewd and sensible people, with nothing mushy or soft about their gentleness, and, unlike a good many other pacifists, they have not been led, either consciously or unconsciously, into pro-Germanism in any of its many forms. They would help Germans needing help and with a colorable excuse for expecting it, but they would be careful in distributing either their own money or that of others, and they would not leave the recipients in any doubt that it went to them, not as Germans, but as human beings in a condition that excites the sympathy, the consideration, of feeling hearts.

If, then, there are Americans desirous of feeding and clothing Germans—there are, else Mr. Hoover would not have found time to think up how they should do it—they can be sure of acting judiciously and efficiently if they heed his admonition and put their contributions in the hands of the Friends' Service Committee, headed by Charles U. Rhoades, the Philadelphia banker, and having its offices at 20 South Twelfth Street, in that city.

Illegality or Else Profiteering.

Candy manufacturers have already "rationed" their product in a fairly effective way by putting its price so high that many people cannot afford to buy it at all, and most others have cut down their purchases by half or more. In spite of this, however, householders who find sugar so hard to get—or who cannot get it at all—are inclined to view with hostile eyes the heavily loaded shelves and counters of the candy shops, and to wonder why it is "the Government," that pathetically trusted, or distrusted, curer of all ills, does not relieve the present famine by diverting a near-necessary of life from the hands of those who turn it into a luxury that none can pretend is anything else.

There is, of course, a natural and proper hesitation in responsible quarters to disturb what has come to be a great industry, and to throw out of employment the thousands of workers it supports. Action of some sort, however, seems to be under consideration in official minds, and there is more than excuse for it in the fact, or what looks like the fact, that either the candy makers are paying for sugar prices that tempt sales to them at illegal rates, and so cutting down household supplies intolerably, or else their present profits are of a size that requires for adequate characterization resort to the vocabulary of Mr. McAdoo.

On the one or the other ground the candy business is certainly on the defensive.

We Wouldn't Enjoy Such Delays.

Britons must be more patient than Americans, else would they never be content to wait as long as they are doing now to learn the results of elections, which, though not of the very highest importance, perhaps, yet do have a decided bearing on the settlement of questions that "interesting" inadequately describes. It was not until Wednesday, this week, for instance, that the victory of a Laborite candidate over a National Democratic rival in a by-election held on the 13th inst. at Chester-le-Street, Durham, was announced, and only guesses can yet be made as to whether Lady Nancy Astor won or lost the seat in Parliament for which she made a fight that attracted international attention.

The cause of these delays is the soldier vote, which, necessarily, is slow in coming in—a fact deserving of consideration by those who have been trying to exempt others than soldiers from the law that requires the voter's physical presence in the polling booth on Election Day and disfranchises him for the year if he cannot or doesn't get there.

Results are rarely, if ever, affected by a discrimination such as this, for it works against all parties in about equal degree.

REFUSES REPUBLICAN POST.

Miss Mabel Choate's Reply to Chairman Hays on the Treaty Issue.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a would-be Republican and an ardent believer in the League of Nations, I wrote the following letter to Mr. Hays in answer to one from him asking me to become a member of the Ways and Means Committee of the Republican National Committee for New York City. Feeling that the moment has come when every citizen who disapproves of the action taken by the Senate in killing the League of Nations and in threatening to make it a campaign issue of 1920 should speak out, I am sending this letter to you. MABEL CHOATE.

New York, Nov. 26, 1919.

Nov. 20, 1919.

Dear Mr. Hays:

Your letter of Nov. 17, with that of Mrs. Sabin, has just reached me, asking me to serve upon her committee, and although I realize fully the importance of the Republican campaign in New York City to defeat Tammany, it is impossible for me to accept.

I am not willing to identify myself at the present moment with the Republican Party, which has taken the grave responsibility of killing the Peace Treaty under the ignoble leadership of Mr. Lodge. The League of Nations is the one great moral result of the war, and I do not believe the United States will stand for its defeat. Very truly yours,

MABEL CHOATE.

ANGLO-SAXON THANKSGIVING

Suggestion That Great Britain and America Join in Celebrating Nov. 11

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Today is the first time that I, an Englishman, have shared to some extent in the celebration of your Thanksgiving Day, and I am prompted thereby to suggest the possibility of our two great countries jointly celebrating on such a day in the future.

In England we have no national holiday between the first week in August and Christmas Day, but for many years an agitation for such a break in October has been carried on. Last year, just after the armistice, it was suggested in many directions that henceforth Nov. 11 should be designated Thanksgiving Day and declared a national holiday, and this idea may fructify in the course of time.

Now, I believe the date of your Thanksgiving Day is not a fixed one, and I think that Nov. 11—not quite so near to Christmas—is a date that has many advantages. Our two peoples could agree, therefore, that the day on which the mighty efforts of their armed forces were crowned with success be to each of us our day of thanksgiving. For every inhabitant of your great country and of our little island has great cause for thanks, inasmuch as by fighting together we insured the victory that must mean liberty.

HOWARD CORBETT.

Prices and Excess Profits.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I note that the retail clothing people of Boston say that the price of clothing will be higher next Spring on account of Federal excess profits taxes. What has the tax to do with next year's goods? What right have they to say that the Government, having taken away some of their profits, they can add that on to the price of clothes for next year? R. H. T.

Brooklyn, Nov. 26, 1919.

"THEIR HOUR."

(Addressed to a group of American Senators.)

Will they who sit in mighty places,
To weld their wisdom into law,
Be blind to visions that we saw
Revealed in smiles on dying faces?
Will they forget the grail we sought—
The faith we pledged on fields of Flanders—
To stain their trust with petty slanders
And sell the prize that blood has bought?
God grant they know this is the hour
When frantic zeal cannot atone
If seeds our sacrifice has sown
Must die—the prey to party power.

MINISTERS URGE A TREATY

Dr. James Burrell, in Sermon, Declares the Nations Were Not Unselfish.

A spirit of thanksgiving for the privileges of Americanism, coupled with a demand that this country should stand ready to share its blessings with stricken Europe, animated many of yesterday's sermons in which the note of challenge to Bolshevism and the tone of regret and strongly phrased disapproval that the Senate had defeated the Peace Treaty were emphasized scarcely less.

Preaching in Trinity Church, the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning was particularly ringing in his proclamation that the forces of law, order, and liberty would offer adequate defiance to the radical poison for the spread of which he blamed Germany. He hailed the American Legion as a cause for deep thanksgiving on the part of all Americans, predicting that its membership will grow from a million to three or four millions, and saying:

"These men know the value of our American ideals, because they have offered their lives for them. Their watchword is 'For God and Country,' and while her sons stand under that banner America need have no fear.

"No foreign fanatic and no American traitor will persuade us to exchange the liberty and happiness which we enjoy for the chaos and misery of Russia. The American people will deal quite unhesitatingly with any outbreak of lawlessness here or with any attempt to raise in this land any other flag than that of America."

In his sermon in St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Church, the Rev. Dr. George R. Van De Water said:

"Never has it been so hard for me in the forty-three years of my ministry to write a sermon as in the year of our Lord 1919 and in the 'year of the disgrace of our land.' With the Bolsheviki bellowing, the pessimists whining and the reactionaries opposing the league, the depression of feeling may be said to be even greater than during the war. Can you find any reason for thanksgiving?

"After five full months of discussion the pact has been rejected by the one nation that should have been the first to sign it. Those responsible are trying to shift the blame for its nullification. Petty partisan politics should have given way to statesmanship. Where the League might have been adopted with reservations or reasonable limitations, the men responsible have tried to make the terms harder. The leaders led, but their following was led by the nose."

At a community service in the St. Nicholas Avenue Presbyterian Church, participated in by the members of that congregation and those of the Washington Heights Baptist, the Hamilton Grange Reformed, the Washington Heights Methodist, and the North Presbyterian Churches, the Rev. Dr. Harold Pattison of the Washington Heights Baptist Church, who preached the sermon, was another who paid his respects to those who defeated the treaty.

"Never a Thought of the Consumer."

Dr. Pattison contrasted the lot of some of the rich with that of some of the poor, and asked? "Is there any wonder at rebellion? More consideration of the past would mean less of the problems of today. This is the day of the workingman's power. He demands higher wages and shorter hours when there is need of greater world production. It is a question of the comfort of the employer or employe now, with never a thought of the consumer. The Christian adage, 'Do unto others as you would have them do unto you,' is the solution of all economic trouble."

In the Marble Collegiate Church, where its congregation united in worship with that of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church, the Rev. Dr. James David Burrell asserted that God had made all the nations of the earth of one blood and had determined their boundaries, and that wars were due to attempts to transgress those boundaries. He had these five things to say of the League of Nations:

"First—It is a consummation devoutly to be wished. War is hell and all nations are praying that it may end.

"Second—Its ultimate purpose is not peace. Peace is not an end but a means to an end. The object is that all men shall be righteous.

"Third—The league is a foregone conclusion. It is coming through the Prince of Peace. The confusion since the armistice is God's way of laughing at the claims of the nations who say: 'We did it.'

"Fourth—The league can never be brought about by the will of man, but by the will of God. The trouble at Versailles was that there was no God there. When the men were in the field of battle they were quick enough to say 'In God we trust,' but at the peace table no word was spoken of the help of God. He had no place there. It was France, Britain, Italy, the United States. Each was for its own glory and advancement.

"Fifth—When the league comes the one outstanding figure will be Jesus Christ. Until the enemy of man has been defeated by the Prince of Peace there will be no peace that will last."

Compares Palestine to America.

In the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, Dean Howard C. Robbins compared Palestine to America as a promised land flowing with milk and honey, urged his hearers to remember the hand of God in material as well as spiritual prosperity, and, in a discussion of the inflow of foreigners to America, said that while vigilance was needed against trouble makers the benefit to the country of peoples with centuries of civilization and discipline behind them should not be forgotten.

Dean Robbins expressed regret at the Senate's failure to ratify the treaty, saying that while the pulpit might not be the place to discuss such questions in detail, it was not out of place to decry the motives of selfishness which appeared to have been back of the opposition.

"We are thankful," said Rabbi Herbert S. Goldstein in a thanksgiving service at the Institutional Synagogue, "for our plenty while Eastern Europe is starving. We are thankful for our stability while the world is shaking. It becomes our sacred duty in view of our advantages to send our resources of food, medicines, and money to help our physically sinking brethren on the other side of the Atlantic. We must by our firm attitude in eradicating Bolshevist tendencies in this country lend courage to Europe struggling with this insidious political danger."

Members of Old Cathedral Post of the American Legion in their service uniforms attended a solemn high mass in memory of their dead in St. Patrick's Old Cathedral yesterday at which all the priests who participated were veterans of the war, several of them having been through the Argonne. Father James J. Halligan, formerly of the 308th Infantry of the 77th Division, who preached the sermon, chose for his text "Render unto Caesar that which is Caesar's and unto God that which is God's," and said that spirit of patriotism which led those who were being commemorated to offer up their lives was inspired not alone from natural motives, but that supernatural inspiration had entered in.

Appeals to Employer and Employe.

Delivering the sermon at a union thanksgiving service in the Central Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Stockman of the Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church said:

"For this one day at least let the employer lift his eyes from the factory where his men seem unwilling to work for him and let him rest them on the universe where a faithful God is laboring for him full time, overtime, and holidays.

"Let the employe forget for the day the factory owner whom he thinks too selfish to pay him his wages, and let him remember the generous Creator who overpays him with health, strength, and loved ones. The lifting of our nation's eyes, if only for a day, will rest them."

There was a community service with special music under the auspices of the First Reformed Episcopal Church at the Central Branch Y. W. C. A., girl trumpeters from the steps summoning their sisters to worship.

Rabbi Rudolph Grossman preached on "Dangers to Our Democracy" at Temple Rodeph Sholom. The Festival choir of eighty voices sang at the services in the Chapel of the Intercession.

Members of the Catholic Benevolent Legion, New York District, attended the thirty-eighth annual thanksgiving service in St. Patrick's Cathedral, at which Monsignor M. J. Lavelle delivered an address of welcome and Father Patrick Daly preached the sermon, explaining the full and true meaning of benevolence.

Christians and Jews united, as they did last year, at a service in Manhattan Congregational Church, shared in by the members of that congregation and those of the New Synagogue.

Abram I. Elkus, formerly Ambassador to Turkey and recently appointed a Judge of the Court of Appeals, discussed Americanization at the service of the congregational B'nai Jeshurun.

There were many union services in Brooklyn churches, the Washington Avenue Baptist, the Classon Avenue Presbyterian, Clinton Avenue Congregational, and the Church of Our Father worshipping together, while the Tompkins Congregational and the Central Congregational met together and the Marcy Avenue Baptist and the Troop Avenue Presbyterian shared their thanksgiving. A number of Flatbush churches united for the day.

DRY THANKSGIVING HERE.

Charity a Predominating Feature of a Festival Marked by Less Revelry.

Neither the high cost of living in general nor the high cost of turkey in particular kept New York from enjoying Thanksgiving yesterday. It was the first "dry" Thanksgiving the city has ever faced, and prohibition combined with the cost of everything compelled many homes to adopt substitutes, so that the feasts presented several features of the "ersatz" variety. For example, chicken graced hundreds of tables in lieu of the expensive turkey. Cider and less palatable beverages were served generally in place of wines and liquors. The mince pies were perhaps just a bit flat to the taste, due again to Government regulation, and the pumpkin pies lacked some of their spicy sweetness because of the scarcity of sugar.

Notwithstanding these things, the city thoroughly enjoyed the day, and if the celebration was not so noisy and strenuous as usual, never before in the history of New York has there been such a display of open-handed charity to the destitute.

High prices deterred nobody who saw a person hungry from buying that person food. From most of the hotels came reports of well-known and wealthy guests ordering dinner for a "dozen friends," the latter proving, in most cases, to be twelve of the hungriest and neediest looking persons the guests could invite in from the streets. In the hospitals and the jails there was turkey or chicken.

Due to the fact that this was the first dry Thanksgiving, perhaps most interest was displayed in the annual "raid" of the Salvation Army on the "victims of rum," conducted under Colonel McIntyre. The "Boozer Squad," as the raiders are known in the army, started out right after dinner yesterday in buses and other vehicles to round up wayfarers for the regular Thanksgiving services, held at the Fourteenth Street headquarters. Along the highways and byways of lower Manhattan on the east side went the raiding party, and bus load after bus load of "boozers" were brought to the hall.

There were several hundred altogether of these willing captives of the raiders, some of whom showed that they had had recent and copious access to forbidden alcohol and some did not. Afterward, Colonel McIntyre said that he was convinced from the results that New York was not absolutely dry, but that it was "a whole lot drier than it ever was before." A number of the oldtimers who were gathered in every Thanksgiving, said Colonel McIntyre, were not to be found. Also the number of wayfarers in general was not so large as in former years.

The Bowery Mission entertained 400 men and women of the Mission Brother and Sisterhood last night at the fortieth Thanksgiving service to be held in the hall at 227 Bowery. After services there was an entertainment and baskets were given out. The Five Points Mission distributed 500 gift packages to children of the poor, and 400 gift baskets with a dinner for eight persons therein were given out. Chicken took the place of turkey in the baskets.

The children at the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, 1,200 in number, took part in a Thanksgiving festival in which some 1,350 pounds of turkey was served. The little ones also consumed about 200 pounds of candy as well as sweet potatoes, cranberries, cider, and oranges.

At the Ludlow Street jail Sheriff Knott served his prisoners with a feast in which there were turkey and cranberry sauce. Afterward in a speech he gave those present even greater cause for gratitude when he promised to try to persuade the members of the Sheriff's Jury to assist in a campaign to abolish "this old-fashioned institution—jail for debt."

An elaborate program of entertainment was arranged for 125 wounded soldiers and sailors from nearby hospitals, which was held at the Hall of States, 22 West Twenty-fifth Street. Ambulances from the Motor Corps of America carried the men to the building, where a turkey dinner was served. Persons prominent in the theatrical world made up the after-dinner program.

PLEADS FOR JEWS ABROAD.

Jacob H. Schiff Addresses Young Women's Hebrew Association.

Jacob H. Schiff gave a Thanksgiving Day speech at the Young Women's Hebrew Association yesterday afternoon. This was the third of such addresses which Mr. Schiff has delivered annually at that institution.

Recalling the establishment of Thanksgiving Day in this country by the Pilgrims, Mr. Schiff remarked that the ceremony of thanksgiving is in its origin a peculiarly Jewish custom, sanctified by Scripture, and continued:

"We Jews in this country are thankful for what the past year has brought and are proud to call ourselves Americans. But although the world has been given peace, it has not yet been given rest. We ought to think of those of our people in foreign lands who are still in suffering, and to pray that the Lord will soon grant them rest from the deep distress in which they are now steeped."

In the morning Mr. Schiff addressed the inmates of the Montefiore Home and Hospital, the directorship of which he recently resigned.

HONORS DEAD WRITERS.

French Academy Exercises for Those Who Fell in the War.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—Homage was paid to writers who fell on the battlefield during the war at the annual public meeting this afternoon of the French Academy. Frederic Masson, perpetual Secretary of the Academy, read the list of prize men for the year, which included many who had fought and some who were killed in the war.

Eugene Brieux, the dramatist, reading his report on the "Prize of Virtue," eulogized those who died for France, declaring "the great laureate this year is the poilu of the Marne, Champagne, and Verdun."

"We have not yet done all," he added. "We must guarantee for the country a happy and prosperous life in the future. Each one of us must consider himself charged with that debt. The only way to pay it is to see that the blood and tears shed in the war have not been without benefit for the country and humanity."

PLEADS FOR PLEDGE TO AMERICANISM

HE CITES OUR TRADITIONS

He Counsels Taking the American Way at Each New Turn of the Road.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. — Secretary Lane at a Thanksgiving Day service here today spoke for a pledge to Americanism and counselled taking "the American way at each new turn of the road."

"We are in a time of depression, of reaction from the exaltation of wartime," said Mr. Lane. "Now the smaller man who is inside each one of us has come to the fore, the egotistic, self-seeking side, while then and there we drown out the larger, nobler man who always walks with us, but is too seldom challenged to appear.

"This would be a true Thanksgiving Day if it could be a day of pledge to the stronger, prouder things in us which we call our Americanism. As Edward Everett Hale used to pray, 'teach us to know that we are sons of the living God,' so I would pray also that we might know that we are sons of a living America. To know that is to know that we can solve our difficulties, answer our problems and go on growing. For a living America is one that is not static, fixed, traditional, but one that is moving, living, growing, and therefore always ready for the day's work. We have an American way of doing things, not a European way. Because we have an American conscience and an American sense of justice and an American common sense—these are our traditions and they are equal to any task.

"We need to know America. We sometimes lose our faith because we do not know this land, its people, its promise. It is the happiest of all countries on earth; the richest not merely in its ability to produce things, but in its ability to produce men and women of courage, honor and ambition.

"Our people are growing day by day in a distributed wealth such as the world has never seen. One man out of every five in America has an automobile. We have more automobiles than all the rest of the round globe. That speaks a conclusive word as to the spread of our prosperity. We do not till one-quarter of our tillable land. Where else is such promise? In my home university in California there are today 10,000 students, while in my day there we had but 500.

"We love this land because such things are possible in it; and better things will come if we are sober-minded and ask ourselves at each new turn in the road, 'Which is the American way?'"

SEEK SMITH COLLEGE FUND.

Alumnae Launch Campaign for $4,000,000 Endowment.

At a three-day conference of the Smith Alumnae "Service School" held recently at Northampton, it was decided that a $4,000,000 endowment fund would be necessary to meet the urgent needs of Smith College, and a campaign has been launched to raise that sum. There are approximately fifty Smith College Clubs and fifteen districts in this and foreign countries and to these the Fund Committee, of which Mrs. Hannah Dunlop Andrews of New York is Chairman, will look for co-operation in raising the fund.

The present salaries paid to the members of the Smith faculty are entirely inadequate, it is said, to meet high prices. Additional dormitories must be built on the campus to provide for the large proportion of students who are forced by crowded living conditions to live at considerable distances from the college. Such dormitories would also provide a revenue which would go far toward increasing the salaries of the professors and teachers. Many of the college buildings are also in need of improvements and alterations.

PLANS AMERICAN AMERICA.

National Security League Wants 1,000,000 Members.

Plans of the National Security League's "Square Deal for the Public" campaign were announced by the league yesterday. The league aims at a membership of 1,000,000 to back the campaign, whose objects are "to crush the menace of un-American radicalism and to arouse the civic and political consciousness of the people for the creation of an American America."

The league's platform includes the punishment of those who seek to overthrow the Government, the passage of laws to control immigration, encouragement of naturalization among employes of American factories and shops, universal military training, and control of foreign language newspapers.

TO DISCUSS MILK BOYCOTT.

Community Councils Again Will Consider Plan for Lower Prices.

The City Parliament of Community Councils in City Hall will meet next Tuesday night to decide whether to attempt again a milk boycott to force down prices, or to leave the whole milk situation in the hands of Governor Smith. A committee will present a summary of what was accomplished by the previous boycott.

Representatives of the New York Council of Farms and Markets will discuss cold storage of eggs, and plans will be laid for pressing the war on high food prices which the organization has been waging during the last three months.

Meantime the campaign for new members is being pressed.

PRINCESS MARY A SPEAKER.

Makes Effective Address at Disbanding of Women's Land Army.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Princess Mary made her début as a speaker at a public function tonight, the occasion being a farewell rally of the Women's Land Army, which is being disbanded. The ceremony was a picturesque one in the Old Drapers' Hall.

After making an effective speech, Princess Mary presented Distinguished Service Bars to fifty women for their war work. The women and girls present wore their war uniforms and later were entertained at a supper and concert. They gave the Princess a hearty welcome.

$750,000 in United Hospital Fund.

The United Hospital Fund was reported yesterday as well above $750,000, not including Thanksgiving contributions. Several churches gave their Thanksgiving offerings to the fund. New subscriptions which added $35,121 to the fund included those of William D. Thornton, $3,000; Tiffany & Co., $2,000; Rufus W. Scott, $1,000; Susquehanna Silk Mills, $1,000; Lamont & Corliss Co., $1,000; George S. Pratt, $1,000, and Post & McCord, $1,000.

Drive for Community Service.

The New York Community Service, an outgrowth of the War Camp Community Service which served soldiers and sailors throughout the war, will appeal for a fund with which to establish and maintain its new program of service to the public during the last week of January.

DR. BALLARD DIES, OCEAN GROVE HEAD

A Founder of Association and Its President for 21 Years, Was Almost 99.

BEHAVIOR BAD AS YOUTH

Inspired by an Evangelist to Study for Church—Fought Attempt to Change Camp to Borough.

The Rev. Dr. Aaron Edward Ballard, patriarch of Ocean Grove, N. J., and one of the founders of the association there and its President since 1898, died yesterday morning at his home in Ocean Grove. On Christmas Day he would have been 99 years old, having been born in Bloomfield, N. J., on Dec. 25, 1820.

On several occasions in the last two years the aged minister's health had shown signs of failing, but he recovered each time, even after his fall at the conference at Atlantic City in the Spring of 1918. He always assured his friends that he was going to attain the century mark. On his ninety-seventh birthday he received a message from President Wilson that said in part: "My thoughts turn to you with all the old admiration and esteem, and I want to send you my warmest greetings together with the hope that the years may still bring you comfort and renewed assurance of the affection of your friends."

Owing to the failure of the investments of his father, who had been a successful blacksmith, as a boy Ballard had to pick up what education he could in the intervals of working, first for a fishmonger and then in a tobacco factory. He was given to pranks and fooling at school and was even refused entrance to the Sunday school class on account of bad behavior. He was told there was no class for him, so he went out and collected a group of his friends and presented them as a class ready formed which he could enter.

He was drawn to the ministry by a preacher of theatrical style whom he first went to hear as a sort of entertainment. The ideas of the sermons finally reached his mind and he threw himself ardently into study for the church. In 1844 he became a licensed minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church and afterward held many pastorates in New Jersey, at the same time doing much temperance work.

On Dec. 22, 1869, was founded by special legislative charter the Ocean Grove Association as a pleasure resort for Christian people under certain conditions, including the exclusion of intoxicating liquors and a Puritanical observance of Sunday. Occasionally since then movements have been started to change the organization of Ocean Grove and make a borough of it, but Dr. Ballard and his followers have always been able, though not without hard fighting at times, to defeat the change.

H. HAGEDORN, SR., DEAD.

Once Prominent New York Cotton Merchant Dies in Germany at 73.

The death is announced, in Goettingen, Germany, of Hermann Hagedorn, Sr., for forty years a resident of this city. He died after a brief illness on Nov. 21 in his 74th year.

Mr. Hagedorn was born in Nieuburg, in the former Kingdom of Hanover, and came to this country in 1866 at the age of nineteen. He went into the oil business, but being told by a conservative uncle that "there was no future in oil," entered the cotton business, becoming a member of the New York Cotton Exchange in 1870, soon after its formation, and serving for many years on its Board of Managers.

In 1872 he married Anna Schroedler, daughter of Friedrich Schroedler, proprietor of The New Yorker Demokrat, who had been influential in swinging the votes of German-Americans to Lincoln in 1860, and remained one of Lincoln's most ardent supporters. Mrs. Hagedorn died in 1909. Five children survive them—Fred Hagedorn, Privy Councillor and Food Administrator of Berlin; Else von Poschinger and Irma Bensen, all resident in Germany; Adolf G. Hagedorn, a member of the New York Cotton Exchange, and Hermann Hagedorn, Jr., author of a biography of Colonel Roosevelt and Secretary of the Roosevelt Memorial Association.

Mr. Hagedorn was for many years one of the most prominent cotton merchants in the country, respected for his integrity, his brilliant ability, his independent judgment and powerful will. He was known on the floor of the Exchange as the Iron Chancellor. With his fighting qualities he combined to a rare degree personal charm and loyalty to his friends and to the country of his adoption.

BACK LODGE RESOLUTION.

Dinner to the Senator Being Arranged by Committee Here.

A campaign of education in favor of the Lodge peace resolution is to be undertaken at once by a committee of American business men, according to a statement issued yesterday by Jules S. Bache, Treasurer of the committee. Arrangements are being made to open this campaign in New York with a large meeting and a dinner to Senator Lodge and the other Senate leaders in the fight against the league covenant as drawn.

Recent additions to the membership of the committee are Eugene H. Outerbridge, J. Horace Harding, Theodore H. Banks, Otto H. Kahn, Henry W. de Forest and Alfred de Vide of New York.

"The administration having seen fit to defeat the only kind of League of Nations which it can secure from the United States Senate," said Mr. Bache yesterday, "it is well to look ahead and plan a program which, on a strong demand from the business community, the Senate could be induced to adopt."

My Letter Box

By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER

F. L. D. No, I am not a Minister, nor do I preach at The Funeral Church.

C. E. R. You are right; you cannot continue to print stories like the ones about Frank E. Campbell and The Funeral Church, excepting everything said is absolutely true. Come and see for yourself.

Miss F. You win. There have been wedding ceremonies performed in The Funeral Church. And why not?

A. L. You flatter me. Neither Dr. Frank Crane, William C. Freeman, F. P. A., William Marion Reedy, David Belasco nor Grantland Rice is writing my "stuff."

Mrs. R. M. Thanks for your letter. It will find a place in my scrap book amongst the hundreds of missives already received.

R. H. M. You write: "In sending you my check for the funeral of Mr. —— I feel that I would be remiss if I failed to thank you, not only for the uniform courtesy which you personally but all your employees extended to the family of Mr. —— as well as myself. I consider The Funeral Church a national institution, and you have certainly succeeded in taking away as much as can be taken from the sting of death. All of us felt very thankful at the businesslike way, mingled with the kindly manner, in which you attended to all the sad details."

Mr. Campbell wishes to extend his thanks for your appreciation of his endeavors.

Dr. S. You ask: "Is it difficult to write these little stories and do you ever run out of material?" Let me assure you that it is much harder not to write some things than to write them. And about "running out of material." Why, Doctor, The Funeral Church offers so much food for thought—so much of interest—I have hardly begun to tell its story. Do come, please, and look over this institution and "you will be surprised."

Coal Mine Management

Many large industrial and public service companies, who own coal mines to insure their fuel supply, are turning to centralized management.

Rapidly rising costs and unstable labor conditions make coal mining a difficult problem. More than ever is it advisable to transfer the responsibility to an organization geared to do the work.

Let us advise with you in your coal problems.

35 MEN EXECUTED FOR CRIME IN ARMY

145 DEATH SENTENCES

Ten of Those Carried Out Were in France, Twenty-five in This Country.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The rights of every man in the army, from private to General, are well defined and established by laws enacted by Congress, or by common law, Major Gen. Enoch Crowder, Judge Advocate General of the Army, today declared in his annual report. General Crowder made no specific reference to the attack upon his administration of that office by former Brig. Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, once his assistant, but in an appendix gave detailed statistics covering military courts-martial, tending to disprove the accusation of severity.

During the last fiscal year 16,547 persons were tried before general courts-martial and 85 per cent. were convicted. Of the charges against officers, more than one-third comprised drunkenness, absent without leave or conduct unbecoming an officer; in the case of enlisted men, one-half the total charges recorded were for desertion, absent without leave, disobedience and sleeping on post.

The report made public for the first time an official summary of the "capital" cases occurring in the army since April 6, 1917, the beginning of the war period.

Death penalties were adjudged in 145 cases from that date to June 30, 1919, and execution was consummated in thirty-five cases, ten in France and twenty-five in the United States. Murder was charged in two of these cases, murder and mutiny in nineteen, assault in eleven, and assault and murder in three.

"In no case," according to the report, "was a capital sentence for a purely military offense carried into execution."

DIDN'T BUY OR CAPTURE HIS AMERICAN WIFE

So French Diplomat Obtains Divorce from Actress He Married in Mongolia.

PARIS, Nov. 26 (Associated Press)—Because he had neither captured nor purchased his bride according to the traditional custom of Mongolia, a young French diplomat assigned to a post in the Far East had his marriage with an American actress annulled by the French courts yesterday.

The diplomat met the American in Shanghai and, after a short courtship, they eloped to Mongolia, where they were married before a Belgian Catholic missionary. Their idyll was short lived, as the American girl, according to her husband's story, remained only a few days before departing without leaving any address. The court held that the marriage was not valid, as French law requires Frenchmen marrying abroad to have the ceremony performed before a French diplomatic officer or "according to the usages of the country in which the marriage is performed."

In Mongolia there are only two modes of marriage consecrated by tradition—capture and purchase. The cost of a wife varies from five camels, for a young girl, to thirty or forty camels, for an old widow, the latter being quoted higher than all other classes. In statements relative to prices obtained in select circles of Mongolian society, it was brought out in court that a wife may be bought for five pounds of rice in that country.

Johns Hopkins Building Burns.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27.—McCoy Hall, one of the largest and most valuable of the Johns Hopkins University old group of buildings was burned late tonight. The building had been turned over to war welfare workers and charity organizations since the university moved from near the centre of the city to Homewood in the new Northern section. The property was valued at $50,000. At midnight the flames were spreading to other buildings, driven by a northwest wind.

Warns Britain of Pacific Perils.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 27.—Joseph Hume Cook, Minister of the Navy, in a speech today at Albury said that, while wholeheartedly supporting the League of Nations, he thought Great Britain should keep its powder dry. The empire, he declared, could not close its eyes to the preparations Japan and America were making in furtherance of their Pacific policies.

NEW YORKERS IN CRASH.

Mrs. Lillian Reed is Killed, Miss Freedman Hurt Motoring.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 27.—Mrs. Lillian Reed, 25 years old, was instantly killed, and Miss Della Freedman suffered critical injuries when an automobile in which they were riding collided with a telegraph pole in North Wilbraham, east of this city, today. The car failed to take a curve at the end of a long stretch of cement road.

The car, owned by Mrs. Reed, was being driven by H. S. Lion, who escaped injury. Harold Silverman, the other occupant also was injured but less seriously than Miss Freedman. All of the party were from New York and were said to be on their way to Providence, L. I., having driven all night.

Lion was placed under arrest and taken to Palmer. He refused to talk about the accident.

CANADIAN TRAINS RESTORED

MONTREAL, Nov. 27.—Orders for the cancellation of several trains on the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk railroads, which were issued Sunday because of the coal shortage, have been revoked upon the announcement from Washington that Canada's emergency coal requirements will be supplied, it was announced here today.

The Grand Trunk Railroad, however, has laid off a number of shop employes in expectation of slack times.

Weary nerves that beg for help

THE stress of overwork and worry has exhausted them—worn them down; they are starving.

Let them beg in vain for help, and nervous breakdown may result. But feed them more of their vital foods—albumen and phosphorus—combined in readily assimilable union, as in Sanatogen, and the chances are you will be delighted to note how intensively they are built up, how quickly they impart renewed vitality to the whole system.

At least, such have been the recorded observations of thousands of physicians and of countless users of Sanatogen, among them Arnold Bennett, the novelist, who writes:

> "The tonic effect of Sanatogen on me is simply wonderful."

and of Col. Henry Watterson, the noted editor, who writes:

> "I do not believe I could have recovered my vitality as I have done, without Sanatogen operating equally upon the digestive organs and nerve centers."

Give Sanatogen the chance today to help your weary nerves. Sanatogen is sold by good druggists everywhere, in three sizes, from $1.00 up.

REDS ASK ALLIES TO LIFT BLOCKADE

ARROGANT AT BALTIC PARLEY

HIS HEARERS DISMAYED

Scare Expected to Accelerate Organization of League of Border States Delayed by Rivalries.

LONDON, Nov. 27, (Associated Press.)—Maxim Litvinoff, who is at Copenhagen for a discussion with James O'Grady, representing Great Britain, of the question of the repatriation of British prisoners held in Soviet Russia, already has attempted to carry the negotiations beyond the definitely specified field.

One of Litvinoff's first moves was to propose to Mr. O'Grady that the Allies lift their blockade on Soviet Russia. This fact, it is considered here, bears out the view previously expressed among members of the diplomatic corps in London that Litvinoff, on behalf of the Bolsheviki régime in Russia, intended to make other proposals than those relating to prisoners.

There are rumors that the Bolsheviki will try to effect a peace with the Entente through Mr. O'Grady.

Private advices concerning the conference in Copenhagen say that the Bolshevist attitude is most conciliatory. Among other things, Litvinoff is said to have offered to telegraph Moscow, Petrograd, and other Bolshevist cities to obtain full reports as to the condition of British subjects in them.

While Great Britain is deeply interested in the trend of affairs at Copenhagen, it was reaffirmed today that Mr. O'Grady has been definitely instructed to enter into no negotiations beyond those relating to prisoners.

Bullied Baltic State Envoys.

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 26, (Associated Press.)—Maxim Litvinoff, former Bolshevist Ambassador to Great Britain and head of the Soviet delegation which conferred with representatives of the Baltic States at Dorpat, came to that town with the air of a General flushed with victory. He boasted of Bolshevist military successes, asserting that the Bolsheviki had smashed General Yudenitch (anti-Bolshevist leader on the Russian northwest front) and would now do the same to General Denikin (leader of the anti-Bolshevist forces in South Russia).

Toward the representatives of the Baltic States, who were led to believe that the Bolsheviki were as eager as they to make peace, he assumed at the outset such a cold and threatening manner that they were nonplussed to the point of dismay. Although Litvinoff later adopted a more conciliatory attitude, the Baltic delegates remain filled with misgiving, which is heightened by reports of a powerful offensive the Bolsheviki are said to be preparing against the Esthonians on the Narva front.

In the opinion of the Baltic representatives, Litvinoff's bearing at Copenhagen will continue the same as at Dorpat, and they believe that if Great Britain and the other Allies are disposed to negotiate they will find no easy task. It is reported that Litvinoff will refuse to listen to proposals for a Constitutional Assembly in Russia or modification of the form of the Soviet Government.

This and other information which the correspondent secured from authoritative sources could not be transmitted from Dorpat, owing to the Esthonian censorship which, as the conference proceeded, became increasingly severe, owing perhaps to influences a few delegates hinted at but were reluctant to discuss openly. Two of them, however, accused France of trying to prevent peace by bringing pressure to bear on the conference through Letvia with a threat to withdraw the support from Riga of French warships there supporting the left flank of the Lettish Army.

Polish Envoy Wouldn't Meet Reds.

The arrival of Colonel Tallents, head of the British Political Mission, appeared to augment the reticence of the conference and the unofficial representatives of other border States showed increasing nervousness. With the arrival of Litvinoff the Polish representative promptly left Dorpat.

In view of the conflicting statements given the correspondent, it is difficult to say just what was decided, but it is generally believed that the Baltic representatives, or at least the Esthonians, invited the Bolsheviki to send a peace delegation Dec. 1. Throughout Litvinoff's stay he was sedulously guarded from correspondents by the Esthonians and a British officer was sent to escort him to Copenhagen when he left Dorpat.

The correspondent is informed that when Litvinoff entered the conference he professed surprise at finding representatives of all three Baltic States, saying that he expected to meet only the Esthonians. He showed impatience when told the Baltic delegates were prepared to discuss officially only the exchange of prisoners, remarking that he did not desire to waste time on unimportant details which could be included in a peace treaty. Subsequently, when peace terms were informally discussed, Litvinoff flatly refused to consider the establishment of a neutral zone and was not inclined to treat the question of an armistice apart from peace.

One of the correspondent's informants said that the position of the Baltic States would be uncertain even if peace were concluded, declaring they could not trust the word of the Bolsheviki.

The probable effect of the scare Litvinoff gave the Baltic delegates will be to accelerate the organization of a league of border States, which otherwise would prove to be most difficult, owing to their rivalries.

LETT CABINET SHAKEUP.

Balt Ministers to be Dropped to Strengthen the Government.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RIGA, Nov. 25.—Political changes are imminent here which are expected to take the form of a reconstruction of the Cabinet. Owing to the troubled conditions it has not yet been possible to hold elections, but there exists a sort of Parliament called the Voldslied, consisting of representatives chosen by all political parties, whereof, as in Finland, the Esthonia agrarian—that is a fairly conservative peasant group—is the strongest.

It is expected that reconstruction is likely to eliminate one of the two Balt members, Magnus, Minister of Justice, and, perhaps, the other, Eberhardt, Minister of Finance, though this is less probable.

I am informed, however, on the best authority that the measure is not directed against the Balts as a body, as many of the latter have suggested. It is simply that the Government will feel strengthened against the Socialists, who are in the opposition, if they replace by more popular figures the Balt element, which has been unavoidably compromised by the part its leaders have played in the Bermondt affair. Thus the change will make for stabilization, as permitting the Government to take a firmer attitude toward the Socialist, or disintegrating factor.

This is particularly important at a time when Esthonia is reported on the verge of compromise with Soviet Russia and the Lettish troops are occupied against the Germans.

Influenza in Spain Again; Over 2,000 Cases at Linares

MADRID, Nov. 27.—Influenza has again appeared in epidemic form at Linares, about fifty miles northeast of Granada, dispatches stating that there are at present more than 2,000 ill from the disease in that city.

Precautionary measures have been taken by the authorities.

RUSSIAN BATTLE LINES ADVANCE AND RECEDE

LONDON, Nov. 27 (Associated Press)—The Letts are pursuing their operations against the forces of Colonel Avaloff-Bermondt with great success, according to a British official summary of the military situation in Russia, issued today.

The Germans in Turkkum, who were endeavoring to cut through to Mitau, have been thrown back with loss, while on the opposite flanks the Letts are continuing to advance from Bausk to Sbavii and Libau. Bermondt's force is deficient in clothing and supplies and has become much disorganized. Many Germans are returning home, and Bermondt is reported to have relinquished command, which was taken over by Durnovo, a dangerous Russian, who, the report says, is under the thumb of the Germans.

Colonel Tallents, the British Commissioner, who entered Mitau immediately after its evacuation, says the summary, reports that the Germans looted most of the shops and set fire to the castle and many farms along the line of retreat, besides murdering their owners.

"The Bolsheviki continued their pressure against the northwestern army until they forced it back to the old line approximating the Esthonian frontier, thereby regaining all the ground lost to Yudenitch. However, the new White commander, Tonnison, with reinforcements, has been holding well, and it is improbable that the Bolsheviki will be able to push him into Esthonia.

"Bolshevist successes on the southern front continue. On the west front of the Volga the Caucasus army under General Wrangle has started a victorious advance against the Bolsheviki. But the Bolsheviki have driven back both the Don and volunteer armies to a maximum depth of fifty miles along the greater part of their front.

"It appears probable that General Denikin will be forced to retreat still further because of the ever-increasing forces against him. In the past six months the Bolsheviki have sent more than 350,000 men and thousands of guns to the south from the eastern front, Turkestan, and the interior. A Bolshevist report says that Denikin's famous Ornilov Division mutinied and killed its officers. The report is a fabrication.

"In East Russia, since the capture of Omsk, the Bolsheviki have advanced fifty miles eastward along the Transsiberian Railway and sixty miles northeast. Another detachment has captured Tara, 130 miles northward of the capital.

"In North Russia, however, the anti-Bolsheviki have virtually cleared the Pinega River front, forcing the Bolsheviki to fall back on the Dvina and relieving the pressure on Archangel.

"The revolution in Vladivostok was due to the fall of Omsk. It was led by the Czech General Igaida, but he has been suppressed, which has had a good effect on the population of the interior, where it was feared the revolt might spread.

An official statement from the Soviet Government at Moscow indicates that most severe fighting is in progress on the Volga front, where the Bolsheviki have captured Dubovka, 180 miles south southwest of Saratov, with 800 prisoners.

The statement claims that the Bolsheviki have annihilated three regiments of the forces of General Denikin, leader of the anti-Bolshevist armies in south Russia.

The advance of the Bolsheviki continues rapidly in the Omsk region, where they are approaching the western shores of Lake Cham, capturing Tatarskaya, 180 miles east of Omsk, with 1,500 prisoners.

General Denikin's statement today admits that the Bolshevist offensive in the direction of Astrakhan has caused him to retire considerably.

REMOVE 'PUSSYFOOT'S" EYE

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The right eye of William E. ("Pussyfoot") Johnson, the American prohibition worker and organizer of the Anti-Saloon League, was successfully removed tonight. The physicians in attendance explained in a bulletin issued after the operation that removal of the eye was necessary to save the left eye and also that the pain could not have been relieved otherwise.

Mr. Johnson's eye was injured on Nov. 13, when he was dragged from a platform by students while he was making a prohibition speech, and paraded through various streets of London by the "raggers."

VIENNA SHIFTS MEAL HOUR.

VIENNA, Nov. 12 (Correspondence of The Associated Press).—As a further economy in coal the city government has altered Vienna's age-old midday meal hour. Instead of dinner at noon, households in even numbered houses must dine at 11:30, and those in odd numbered houses at 12:30. As most of the houses are very dark at this season, even at midday lighting is necessary, and it is hoped by this measure to avoid the excessive pressure on the power plants between 12 and 1.

The police blotters show a large increase in burglaries and street hold-ups because of the dim lighting of the city. Shop windows are smashed nightly, and citizens are robbed in the streets.

TWO WOMEN BADLY BURNED.

Daughter Catches Fire While Trying to Save Mother.

Mrs. Mary McGrath of 409 Smith Street, Brooklyn, and her mother, Mrs. Anna Hyland, 67 years old, were seriously burned while preparing Thanksgiving dinner in the McGrath home yesterday.

The women were alone in the apartment when Mrs. Hyland's dress caught fire, as she was cooking in the kitchen. She tried to put out the flames, and called for her daughter, who was in another room. While tearing the burning clothes from her mother Mrs. McGrath's sleeve caught fire. The screams of the women brought neighbors, who wrapped the mother and daughter in blankets. At the Holy Family Hospital they were found to be badly burned about the hands and body.

BORAH SEES ONE HOPE FOR TREATY

AND HE HOPES THEY WON'T

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The attitude which the Repblican irreconcilables will assume toward the treaty with Germany when it is brought before the next session of the Senate, according to Senator Borah of Idaho, will be precisely the same as last week, when they voted to reject it. Mr. Borah predicted today that even more Republican Senators would be found voting against it.

The only chance for ratification Mr. Borah said, would be found in the acceptance by the Administration forces of the majority reservations as they were adopted before the ratifying resolution was voted down. He regards ratification as a possibility.

Senator Borah insists that the League of Nations covenant will not be accepted by the Senate without reservations. The Democrats, he declares, will only be wasting time in trying to effect a compromise based on the elimination of any of the changes decided on by the majority. He believes the middle-ground Senators will stand firm against any compromise that will mean a sacrifice of the Lodge program.

Mr. Borah wants the Senate to take up after-war legislation, he says, and not plunge into the treaty unless there is assurance that ratification will be effected without delay. Unless the Democratic leaders are ready to yield, he says, it will be futile to talk of resubmitting the treaty.

Text of Borah's Statement.

That the Republican leaders will combat any effort at compromise based on the elimination of the preamble requiring acceptance of the Senate reservations by three of the four principal associated signatories is the opinion not only of the irreconcilables but of a considerable number of regulars. These Senators appear bent on supporting Senator Lodge in his attitude that the Administration must swallow the majority program or let the treaty alone.

Not until the Republican Senators are back at the Capitol on Saturday, however, can any accurate judgment be formed as to the policy which the majority party will pursue. The Administration leaders appear confident that agreement can be reached through yielding by both sides. They will be guided in any overtures they may make to the Republican majority by what President Wilson says in his talk on Saturday with Senator Hitchcock.

In his statement tonight Mr. Borah said:

"It is time to look after the interests and welfare of our own people. We have been deluged with propaganda for months as to our duty to other peoples. It is now time to give the American people consideration. They have been wholly neglected thus far ever since the war began. Our industrial and economic conditions have therefore reached a point where they demand our first consideration. It is becoming a little bit nauseating to be told of our continued obligation to other people, with never a word for the interests of our own people, some of whom are very sorely in need of attention.

"Congress, it seems to me, should at once pass the resolution declaring a state of peace. This is desirable more for psychological reasons than anything else. The fact is that we are in a state of actual peace, and if it were not because the advocates of the League of Nations desire to make use of the fact that we are technically at war very little attention would be paid to the fact that we are technically at war. The United States, England, France, Japan, and Italy are all trading with Germany, and Germany is trading with those countries. Great Britain has just placed an order with the German Government for £750,000,000 for material of different kinds—potash and other things. But the advocates of the League continue to stress the proposition that we are technically at war in order to disturb business and keep it restless and unsettled. For this reason the resolution should be passed.

"We should then devote our time—every moment of it—to bringing order out of chaos in our transportation system. The necessary legislation to adjust the railroad situation should be had as soon as possible. No one single thing is so important to industrial confidence and revival. One of the greatest and best railroad systems in the world has been wrecked through incompetency and politics. Before we can have any business prosperity in this country or any such condition in our industrial affairs the transportation question must be adjusted.

Wants Expenditures Cut.

"I think the next most important thing is to settle down to a definite, specific elimination of unnecessary expenditures. The extravagance which has characterized our Government for the last few years, and which still characterizes it, is simply incredible. The people are literally being taxed into Bolshevism. If we were willing to do so, we could reduce the expenditures of government one-half, and nothing would inspire investments and development more than this. Our extravagance has become alarming to the people of the country and has practically killed initiative along legitimate lines. Some steps have been taken in the way of economy of expenditure, but by no means sufficient.

"We should turn our attention next to the question of profiteering, which is just as rampant now as it was during the war in certain lines of industry. Mr. McAdoo informs us that the coal operators have been enjoying a profit ranging all the way up to 2,000 per cent. Mr. McAdoo is in a position to know, as he was a member of the Government under which the orders were fixed by which these profits were permitted. If these people are enjoying this stupendous profit they are enjoying it by virtue of the affirmative consent of the Government, because they have been operating under orders. The same thing could be established with reference to profits which were realized by certain lines of industry under the Food Administration. The most flagrant and unconscionable profiteering that the country experienced was that which was permitted by the Government.

"Now, until you stop the profiteering where it is easy to stop it, you can call out your troops and imprison and shoot them down if necessary, but you cannot stop disorder and discontent. Your espionage laws and your censorship and your deportation will be ineffectual in the face of these unconscionable things from which people are suffering."

President Has Thanksgiving Dinner In Bed; Cabinet Officers at Pan-American Mass

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Thanksgiving Day was observed generally today in Washington with Government departments closed and many officials absent. Secretary Daniels and many high naval officials attended the Navy football game here, but other Cabinet officers who were in town had no special plans.

President Wilson ate his Thanksgiving Day dinner propped up in bed. South Trimble, clerk of the House, again supplied turkeys for the White House from his Kentucky farm, but Rear Admiral Grayson would not permit the President to eat turkey. He had quail.

Before dinner Mr. Wilson was wheeled out to the south lawn at the White House, where he spent an hour with Mrs. Wilson and his daughter, Miss Margaret Wilson. The only guest at the White House was little Miss Lucy Maury of Roanoke, Va., a niece of Mrs. Wilson.

Government officials, Latin-American diplomats, and church dignitaries attended the twelfth annual Pan-American mass at St. Patrick's Church, where the Rev. J. A. Cunnane of Baltimore delivered the sermon. The ceremonies were in charge of the Very Rev. Edward G. Fitzgerald of the Catholic University.

"We thank God today that we live under a form of Government based upon the principles of Divine justice," said Father Cunnane. "May the Divine wisdom teach the whole population, especially the stranger within our gates, to realize that if they would be worthy of the blessings and accounted as desirable citizens they must all become thoroughly Americanized."

Flags of many nations were used for the church decorations. The Stars and Stripes draped the Stations of the Cross and the pillars, while the standards of Central and South American countries were suspended between the pillars. The colors of the allied countries were spread fan-like from the balcony.

Among those attending the services were Ambassadors and Ministers from Chili, Argentina, Bolivia, Guatemala, Venezuela, Ecuador, Colombia, the Dominican Republic, Nicaragua, Paraguay, Haiti, Salvador, Uruguay, Brazil, Peru, Panama, and Cuba. General Pershing was present for the army and Admiral Grayson for the navy. Among others present were Secretary Lansing, Secretary Glass, Secretary Houston, and Chief Justice White.

Closing the mass, Mgr. Thomas recited prayer for the authorities and afterward Cardinal Gibbons and Papal Delegate Archbishop Bonzano held an informal reception.

DANCING TABOO, PARIS IS IN UPROAR

PARIS, Nov. 27.—The French Government appears to have undertaken a task more serious than it thought when it issued an order yesterday closing all dancing establishments because of lack of coal. It appears that the Government did not realize how many folks in Paris danced and did not wish to quit their amusement.

The Prefecture of Police and the National Government authorities as well find themselves flooded with thousands of protests from high and low, and Premier Clemenceau has consented to take a hand in the situation and will receive the proprietors of Paris "balls" this evening. In the meanwhile M. Raux, the Paris Chief of Police, threatens to put lots of people in jail if his orders are not obeyed better than they were last night. Proprietors of balls now demand that all theatres and motion picture places be closed as well as their establishments.

In the case of the dancing palaces, the proposition is plain—they are closed. But where the fight arises is in the cases of restaurants, practically all of which have a space cleared of tables and have orchestras. When the police agents visited a number of these last night and notified the proprietors that the law was being violated because dancing was going on, the proprietors shrugged their shoulders and said, in effect:

"Orchestras are not forbidden. Our orchestra plays, and our patrons without our saying a word get up and dance. We cannot offend our patrons. What do you wish that we do?"

The agents reported to M. Raux, who said dancing was taboo and that was all there was to it.

M. Raux's troubles increased today when representatives of 4,000 musicians, thrown out of work by the new order, bore down upon him and surrounded him when he started out for lunch. He promised to talk to them tomorrow.

M. Raux explained to the newspaper men today that the measure was taken to permit families to get more coal. He was asked if Paris could hope soon to have dancing again. "One may always hope," was his reply.

FRENCH CABINET CHANGES.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—Deputy Yves Le Trocquer has been appointed to succeed Louis Morel as Under-Secretary of State for Liquidation of Stocks, and Deputy Léon Bérard, who has held posts in previous Cabinets, will succeed Louis Lafferre as Minister of Instruction, according to official announcement made today. Deputy Louis Dubois will replace Etienne Clémentel as Minister of Commerce.

The Cabinet Ministers replaced were defeated in the recent elections. Premier Clemenceau decided that successors should be chosen for Ministers beaten at the polls.

According to reports current in the lobby of the Chamber of Deputies, Louis Deschamps, at present Under-Secretary for Demobilization, will be made an Under-Secretary in the Posts Ministry, and the demobilization under-secretaryship will be abolished. It is expected also that M. Shuman, Deputy from Moselle, will be made Minister of Labor, to succeed M. Colliard.

JAPAN'S POLICY IN FU-KIEN.

Warships Not to Land Troops Unless Forced to Do So, Paris Hears.

PARIS, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—The Japanese peace delegation, in announcing today that Japan was sending a light cruiser and two torpedo boats to Fu-Chow, China, for the protection of Japanese subjects, said instructions had been given the commander of the squadron forbidding the landing of marines or the use of arms, except in case of absolute necessity.

Changes in Belgian Cabinet.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 27.—The new Belgian Cabinet, under the Premiership of M. Delacroix, comprises all the former Ministers, with the exception of Baron de Broqueville, who is succeeded as Minister of the Interior by M. Poulet. M. Hestrée, Socialist, becomes Minister of Arts.

Governor Smith's Mother Better

The first encouraging report that has been issued for some time as to the condition of Mrs. Catherine Smith, mother of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, was given out last night at her home, 9 Middagh Street, Brooklyn, by her family physician, Dr. John H. Reb.

"Mrs. Smith is somewhat improved," he said, "she is gaining steadily, but is not yet out of danger." She has been ill for nearly three weeks with pneumonia and later developed pleurisy. The Governor has been in almost constant attendance at her bedside.

SAYS FRANCE MUST HAVE MORE BIRTHS

Professor Pinard, New Deputy, Issues a Strong Appeal for Bigger Families.

WILL DEMAND NEW LAWS

At the Present Birth Rate, He Says, the Country Will Become Only an Immense Desert.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—Professor Pinard, a leading French authority on maternity, who has just been elected from Paris to the new Chamber of Deputies, announces he will devote his political career to working for larger French families. He contends that one factor in the regrettable smallness of French families is bad laws, and he will seek to correct them in addition to agitating for laws encouraging bigger families. He sees this as an essential to the rejuvenation of France.

"France is dying," says Dr. Pinard. "She is not dead, but it is necessary to repopulate the country. At the present rate of natality France will soon be only an immense desert. Children! France must have children!

"It is not the race which is in default. The race is good. It is our laws which are bad. They are bad because they make the child a charge, and a heavy charge, upon the family.

"In France the woman who considers maternity as a social and religious duty is unfortunately the exception, and this in spite of the fact that maternity is her function, the function most high, most beautiful and most noble of all.

"It is necessary that maternity be honored as it should never have ceased to be. It is necessary that the child should not be a dishonor for the girl mother nor a burden upon married couples. On that day the number of infanticides will decrease. The State has a duty to aid and society has a duty to approve. We have given to infancy a semblance of protection. We must give it more protection and better protection. We cannot do too much, for the hour is grave. It is a matter of the safety of France.

"We must say to the women of France: 'We have admired you during war for your good morale, for your spirit of devotion, and for your bravery. But you have still a mission to fulfill, a higher mission than the morale mission. It is a patriotic mission. France has need of children.'"

AGAIN ACCUSES FRANCE.

Berlin Statement Says She Repudiated Pledge to Free Prisoners.

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—It is semi-officially announced that the German Government's reply to the recent note of the Entente sent by M. Clemenceau refers to an alleged official announcement issued in Paris Sept. 20, stating that the Allied and Associated Powers had decided to anticipate the date of the ratification of the treaty as far as the repatriation of German prisoners was concerned.

"Germany, therefore," the announcement says, "finds France's denial of this promise incomprehensible."

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Americans in London kept Thanksgiving Day by a dinner under the auspices of the American Society at the Savoy Hotel. Clarence Graff was in the chair and the Lord Mayors of London, Belfast, Cardiff, Norwich, York, Sheffield and Newcastle were the principal guests.

Ambassador Davis in proposing the Thanksgiving Day toast explained to the municipal dignitaries the meaning of the festival and described the feeling with which it is kept. The Ambassador then referred to the friendship of America and the Allies and said:

"It remains for America to see that nothing has been done or left undone to mar the completeness of victory. For myself I don't believe the United States is to be detached by any self-seeking from the support of the new order in the world."

Policeman, Shot as Thief, Improves.

BATTLE PROMISES SEARCHING INQUIRY

DID NOT WANT OR SEEK JOB

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 27.—George Gordon Battle, who has been designated by District Attorney Swann, at the suggestion of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, to act as legal adviser to the Extraordinary Grand Jury, announced here tonight that he had communicated with Supreme Court Justice Weeks of the Extraordinary Criminal Term, and that he would have a conference with him in New York on Monday. Earlier Mr. Battle had authorized this statement:

"The designation was not sought or desired, but I accepted it as a matter of public duty. The investigation, if I direct it, will be as thorough and impartial as my ability will permit."

In reference to comment in New York to the effect that his Tammany affiliations and friendship for District Attorney Swann would be a handicap in his work as counsel for the Grand Jury, Mr. Battle said:

"I admit that I have been a partisan Democrat and I admit that I am, too, a friend of Judge Swann. Neither fact will interfere with the performance of my duties. The investigation will be as thorough, rigid and impartial as it is in my power to make it."

Mr. Battle declined to disclose what policy he would pursue as Assistant District Attorney. He said that he expected to consider a tentative policy while here, and that he would return to New York on Sunday night.

"I am waiting for the minutes of the Extraordinary Grand Jury," said Mr. Battle. "I telegraphed to Judge Weeks, District Attorney Swann, and to Mr. Almirall, the foreman of the jury, following my appointment, and asked that the minutes be sent. I have had word from Mr. Almirall that he would take up the matter with the jurors tomorrow."

"Do you favor the policy that has been followed to date by the Extraordinary Grand Jury?" he was asked.

"Inasmuch as I have no knowledge of that policy only from my reading of the newspapers," he replied. "I am not in a position to say whether or not I can indorse what has been done. You see, officially, I don't know what they have done and will not know until the minutes of the Grand Jury have been received."

"Then you expect to get possession of the minutes," he was asked.

"I do. Probably they will be here tomorrow."

"Will you begin work on the matter while you are here?"

"Yes, as soon as the minutes arrive," said Mr. Battle.

"Would you approve of rifling desks in order to secure possession of certain correspondence as this Extraordinary Grand Jury is reported to have done?" Mr. Battle was asked.

"I don't know that they did it," was the answer. "I merely read about it."

"Would you approve of it, generally speaking?"

"I do not care to discuss that," he replied. "I have no official knowledge of anything that has been done by the Grand Jury. I will be without knowledge until the minutes are before me."

Grand Jury Minutes Sent to Battle.

There were no further communications yesterday between the jury and Mr. Battle. It is expected that he will meet the members of that body on Monday, at which time they are to consider his appointment. It could not be learned yesterday when Mr. Battle would begin his work with the jury. The date of the resumption of the inquiry into city administrative matters depends upon the disposal of criminal anarchy cases, which are being presented to the jury by Assistant District Attorney A. I. Rorke. He expects to be occupied with this for a week or more.

District Attorney Swann made this comment yesterday concerning the appointment of Mr. Battle:

"I have a telegram from Mr. Battle accepting his appointment as Special Assistant District Attorney, as requested by the Governor. He will return on Sunday, and will be ready to take up the work on Monday. He has asked that all testimony taken be sent to him, and we have forwarded it to him at Atlantic City. We gave him everything that would help to inform him of how matters stand. He has unlimited authority, and may investigate any subject he and the jury think worthy of investigation."

Since the public announcement by the jury that they had "initiated" an inquiry into city offices many letters containing information or complaints have been received. Nearly all of these communications were directed to the jury room at the Criminal Courts Building. The jury has made the request that all such letters be directed to Foreman Raymond F. Almirall, 12 East Forty-sixth Street, so that they may receive proper attention. The jury has no facilities for filing or handling such letters at the Criminal Courts Building.

Because of a statement before the Lusk Committee that Mr. Battle had been retained as counsel by Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, representing the Russian Soviet here, there has been some comment on the fact that Mr. Battle was now to be associated with a Grand Jury convened for the special purpose of investigating criminal anarchy, but it was explained by a member of the jury yesterday that Assistant District Attorney Rorke was in charge of all the anarchy cases and would continue to direct that part of the jury's work.

FLIES TO SIMS LUNCHEON.

Sir Harry Brittain Travels 160 Miles in Air to Meet Admiral.

In order to keep an appointment with Admiral Sims before sailing for England on the Mauretania on Saturday, Sir Harry Brittain journeyed by airplane yesterday from the naval aviation station at Rockaway Point to Newport, R. I. The Navy Department placed the F-5-L at his disposal. When she took to the air at 10:15 o'clock she carried nine persons—Pilots Ensign Frank Lamb and Ensign W. Blackwell, Sir Harry, and W. F. Bullock, correspondent of The London Times and The Daily Mail, and a crew of five men.

The trip of 160 miles was made against a fair wind, and the distance was covered in 2 hours and 20 minutes. Admiral Sims was waiting at the landing place and Sir Harry and his guest were guests of the Admiral at luncheon. Sir Harry is the founder of the Pilgrims, and was largely interested in maintaining clubs for American officers in London. He met the Admiral when the latter was in command of the American naval force on the other side.

After luncheon the visitor journeyed to St. George's School, where he made a speech in which he conveyed to the boys the greetings of the boys from St. George's School, England, in which he is a Governor. The return trip began at 3:15 o'clock. The Rockaway station was reached at 5:15. The first fifty miles of the return was covered in 33 minutes.

Warns Baltimore Motorists Gasoline Can't Be Sold Sundays

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27.—Automobilists were warned today, through an order issued by Police Marshal Carter for enforcement of the Sunday selling and work laws, to supply themselves with enough gasoline to carry them over Sunday, since he regards its sale on that day as an act neither of charity nor necessity, which the laws exempt.

The sale of gasoline is specifically forbidden, and automobile tourists who might run short of fuel within the city limits would be unable to replenish their supplies.

The Grand Jury recently ordered the Police Department strictly to enforce the so-called blue laws of the State, which bear heavily upon Sunday activities of every description.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—A historic pearl necklace reputed to be the property of descendants of Czarina Nathalie, mother of Peter the Great, and valued at £800,000, was put up at auction today by Messrs. Johnson, Dymond & Son, but was withdrawn after an offer of only £67,000 had been made. The room was crowded with dealers, and when Lot 115 was called the chattering suddenly ceased and the few women in the room, the chairwoman, as well as ladies of leisure, climbed on chairs to wait for the bidding to begin. For a few seconds there was silence and then the auctioneer suggested £15,000 as a start.

Somebody laughed and said: "I'll bid £20,000," but the auctioneer was not responsive. Eventually the bidding began in earnest at £50,000 and went on until the highest bid of £67,000 was reached. At this figure the necklace was abruptly withdrawn from sale and the auctioning of smaller articles immediately was resumed. A diamond ornament, formerly part of the Empress Josephine's tiara, also was withdrawn at £1,550.

KING VICTOR WILLING TO RESIGN ANY TIME

Prefers Scientific Pursuits and Domestic Life to Court Functions, It Is Said.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 28.—One of The Daily Chronicle's representatives in Italy who has just arrived in London, dealing with the situation in that country, writes:

"Such scanty mutilated and even contradictory news as is coming through from Italy respecting the political crisis make it extremely difficult to form any adequate judgment of the actual situation. Unredeemed promises of economic betterment caused disaffection to spread in the civil service and many begin to despair of a remedy unless on purely revolutionary lines. The results of the recent general election demonstrate that the root difficulty is a strictly economic rather than political and strategical one, such as the annexation of Dalmatia might be.

"When I left Italy I noted among all classes a widespread sense of disappointment, even bitter disappointment, with what was rightly or wrongly regarded as the tendency of Great Britain and the Allies to abandon Italy to her fate, but also among all but extremists—and indeed at times among extremists themselves—strong hopes were cherished, born of the traditional friendship of the Italian people for England that in the end England would overcome American reluctance and secure for Italy an acceptable compromise in the Fiume problem besides enabling her to face the financial future with less pessimistic forebodings.

"As for the prospects of a Bolshevistic revolution in Italy, I remain skeptical. Impulsive though they be, the Italian people are characterized by shrewd common sense. In Parliament or out of Parliament, the extremists never achieve more than a momentary success. Sober reaction has invariably set in, oftentimes with amazing swiftness.

"Periodical rumors of the King's abdication have been current and widely credited ever since the Caporetto disaster. He has repeatedly expressed to his ministers and advisers his readiness to relinquish his responsibilities should the well-being of his people seem to warrant it. A distaste for Court functions and a strong attraction for scientific pursuits as well as for the quiet joys of the domestic circle and the simple life are among his well-known characteristics. On the other hand, I see no sufficient signs for regarding any violent overturn of the House of Savoy as imminent. To suggest that the nation is hankering after King Victor's voluntary retirement in favor of the young Crown Prince or the valiant Duke of Aosta is simply absurd. It is stated that the King will open the new parliament on Monday."

MAUD POWELL TAKEN ILL.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 27.—Just after she had finished playing a melody on the stage of the Odeon tonight Maud Powell, the violinist, collapsed in full view of the audience as she turned to walk to the piano, and was taken to the Barnes Hospital in a serious condition.

Physicians, who were hurriedly summoned as she was borne from the stage, think the case was either a severe heart attack or an apoplectic stroke, but a diagnosis was withheld until she reached the hospital.

Early this morning her condition was said to be serious.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES QUIT FOR MORE PAY

EXPERTS IN PRIVATE DEMAND

PENSION BUREAU SUFFERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Government employes are resigning in droves to accept private employment. The situation is serious in some of the executive departments, particularly those devoted to scientific work where men of fine attainments have been working for years on meagre salaries and find themselves unable to make both ends meet on Government wages.

Congress has taken measures to remedy these conditions and a Joint Commission on Reclassification of Salaries is now at work endeavoring to find an orderly system of salaries and offer inducements for the promotion of the worthy and ambitious. The commission is required by the act of Congress which created it to make a report to the Senate and the House in January. It already has offered a number of practical recommendations backed by voluminous statistics and the reports of many hearings which have served to bring out that the average Government employe has had little share in the pecuniary advantages which have affected private employment since the United States entered the world war.

The Congressional commission consists of three Senators—Jones of New Mexico, Chairman; Henderson of Nevada, Vice Chairman, and Spencer of Missouri; and three former members of the House of Representatives—Hamlin of Missouri, Cooper of Wisconsin, and Keating of Colorado. The commission recently has sent out experts to make inquiries as to salaries and wages paid in private employment in American cities, and will include the results in its report to Congress.

One interesting feature disclosed is that prior to the war the average of Government salaries in the lower grades was higher than the average of salaries paid for similar work in private employment. The reverse is now true. Those occupying more important positions in the Government always have been paid lower salaries than were received by persons occupying approximately similar positions with private concerns. It is doubtful, however, if Congress will give men of pronounced ability holding important Government places wages equal to those paid by private concerns for the performance of similar duties.

Striking data are at hand to show how the Government has suffered through not paying adequate salaries. In the United States Lighthouse Service, which has thirty-nine clerical employes, there had been no reclassification of salaries in fifty years, except in two instances. This means that the salary grades were unchanged in that half-century period. In the nine clerical positions in the lighthouse service, seven persons received $1,000 a year and two received $900 a year. In the last two years resignations from these nine lower places have been so frequent that they have been filled by forty-two persons in that period.

The Bureau of Markets of the Agricultural Department virtually has been cleaned out. Men of high ability there felt obliged to seek employment elsewhere. The average of loss of personnel of the Bureau of Markets in two years has been 80 per cent.

In the Patent Office, where years are required for the technical training of the higher class of employes, there has been a loss of 75 per cent. in personnel.

Commerce Bureau Suffers.

In one bureau of the Department of Commerce many of the expert employes have left to take private employment. Here are some figures in four instances showing why they felt obliged to resign:

"Government salary $4,800, salary in private concerns, $10,000; Government salary $3,000, private salary $5,000; Government salary $2,300, private salary $4,500; Government salary $2,700, private salary $7,500."

Here are figures of Government and private salaries, the first figure showing the compensation received by a Government employe in one of the expert branches of the Government, and the second showing the salary which was received in each case in private employment:

"Four thousand five hundred dollars to $20,000, $4,000 to $10,000, $3,750 to $10,000, $3,000 to $10,000, $2,520 to $6,000, $4,000 to $5,000."

In one bureau an employe who was receiving a Government wage of $2,200 was offered a private position at a salary of $10,000, or $4,500 more than was received by the director of his bureau.

The Forest Products Laboratory of the Forest Service has lost about half of its employes, who have gone into private employment at higher pay. Several of the employes of the Bureau of Markets have accepted offers of $5,000, and others offers of $4,500.

Law Provides $3 as Minimum.

This year Congress enacted a law which provided that the minimum wage of those holding Government positions should be $3 a day. This was the first recognition by Congress of the necessity on the part of those in the Government service to have compensation that would enable them to keep pace with the advanced cost of living. Subsequently Congress gave a flat increase of $120 a year to Government employes receiving less than a fixed amount of compensation.

In the legislative, executive, and judicial annual appropriation bill for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, the flat advance was increased to $240 per annum in the case of all employes receiving $2,500 a year or less, and provision was made for giving advances to those receiving salaries up to $2,740. But these increases have not been sufficient to stop the flood of resignations.

Prior to the enactment of the minimum wage law there were 27,000 employes of the Federal and Municipal Governments in the District of Columbia who received less than $3 a day. These 27,000 comprised 26 per cent. of the 104,000 employes whose positions are under the jurisdiction of the Reclassification Commission. It is estimated that there are altogether about 120,000 employes of the Government in the District of Columbia, an enormous increase since the United States entered the world war. It was shown that there were fifty-four different rates of pay among employes receiving less than $1,000 a year.

CORNELL CRUSHED BY PENN MACHINE

LOSERS MAKE PLUCKY FIGHT

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—Cornell's plucky fight on Franklin Field this afternoon was useless against the smooth-working football machinery of the University of Pennsylvania, the latter winding up its season with an impressive victory at 24 to 0 over its ancient rival. The score might have been much larger if the Red and Blue representatives had made the best of all their opportunities. Since they were held for downs, when within a few inches of the goal-line, and in general their attitude seemed to be that the points would come whenever they really needed them, and that, after all, three touchdowns, three goals and a goal from the field should be enough to satisfy any Thanksgiving Day crowd.

The people of Philadelphia also were inclined to take this year's defeat of Cornell for granted, and judging by the number of empty seats in the stands, many preferred to stay at home and eat their midday turkey dinners in comfort, content to wait until later to find out the size of the score. With everything going according to expectations, the game itself rather lacked the usual color, although there was plenty of good football displayed throughout the four periods.

Pennsylvania went scoreless in the first period after having an apparently sure touchdown snatched away by Cornell's great defensive stand in the shadow of the goal posts. In the second period, Hopper went over the line after receiving a perfect forward pass from Captain Bell, Brunner adding a goal. The third quarter brought two more scores for the Quakers, Light first getting around the end successfully after three attempts at the line had failed, following the rather lucky recovery of a fumble, and Brunner kicking not only the goal from the touchdown, but adding three points with a neat drop-kick from the 25-yard line.

The final period saw another Pennsylvania touchdown, secured with little effort on a forward pass to "Heinie" Miller which came from a double pass behind the line, Brunner again adding the possible point with his trustworthy foot.

Marked Prowess of Quakers.

It was hard to believe that the Pennsylvania eleven which ran wild over the prostrate forms of the Ithacans today could have failed to win every game even on a schedule which included Dartmouth, Penn State, and Pittsburgh. The complete superiority of the Philadelphians was never for a moment in doubt, in spite of the courageous battle put up by Cornell againts hopeless odds.

Pennsylvania made fifteen first downs in the course of the afternoon, her opponents having to be content with only two. Her total of ground gained by rushing and forward passing exceeded 250 yards, while Cornell's was not quite seventy-five. Pennsylvania completed seven out of eleven forward passes attempted. Cornell tried sixteen and completed only three. In kicking alone did the Ithacans hold their own, Captain Shiverick's punts averaging fully as many yards as those of Brunner, although he suffered by having one of his efforts blocked. Both teams were about equally affected by penalties, and there were no fluky long runs on either side.

Folwell's men simply knew vastly more football, individually and collectively, than the husky red-jerseyed aggregation coached by Speedy Rush. They could run the ends, smash the line, and above all, control forward passes to such good effect that their traditional rivals never had a real chance. Pennsylvania was so consistently strong as a combination that the deeds of individuals had comparatively little chance to shine. Yet it seemed that some of the material that took part in this afternoon's spectacular triumph had been too long kept under cover, to the detriment of the season's earlier showing. Why, for instance, Brunner was not always played as an all-around backfield man, must forever remain a mystery. Such goal kicking as he did today would have won at least two more games for the Red and Blue. He was invaluable as a punter also, and exceedingly helpful in running with the ball.

Starts Aerial Attack at Once.

Brunner kicker off to Shuler of Cornell, who caught the ball on his 5-yard line and charged back fifteen yards until he slipped and fell before the onrushing tacklers. Shiverick surprised the Penn defense by immediately trying a forward pass, and Finn succeeded in catching the ball, but with the gain of only a yard. After Shuler had plowed through the line for three yards, Shiverick punted forty yards down the field to Light. The latter got around right end for eight yards on the first scrimmage, and then completed the first down with a single rush at the Cornell line. After short gains by Bell and Brunner, a double pass of the criss-cross variety, led to a beautiful forward pass, Light to H. Miller, which resulted in a clear gain of twenty-five yards. Straus added five more in two assaults on the line, and Light completed another first down.

But with the goal line only a few yards away, the Cornell defense suddenly stiffened. Straus and Light alternated in four attempts to carry the ball over, but when the limit of downs had been reached there were still a few inches of ground left to cover. Cornell took the ball and Shiverick at once punted out of danger.

The Ithacans' stock rose when Paul Miller intercepted a forward pass from Bert Bell, again giving his side the ball near midfield. Shiverick, however, was upset by Light for a loss on an attempted end run, and although Carey gained nine yards in two successive stabs at left tackle, Shiverick once more punted to Bell, who came back five yards by good dodging.

Sutton nailed Light for a loss, and Brunner was forced to throw a quick forward pass which gained no ground, Brunner then punting to midfield. After having a forward pass almost intercepted, Shiverick was glad to kick in turn, his long spiral carrying all the way across the goal line.

Soon after the resumption of play Cornell suffered a fifteen-yard penalty for holding, and was further troubled by the grounding of two forward passes and a loss at Hopper's end, Lud Wray breaking through and messing up the interference. Several more exchanges of punts completed the period, Shiverick trying one more wild forward pass which hit Taylor in the chest and bounded away harmlessly.

Cornell Is Again Penalized.

Harvey took Light's place in the Pennsylvania back field at the start of the second quarter, and for two plays no impression was made on the Red line. But after a long punt by Brunner, Cornell again lost fifteen yards for holding, so that Shiverick was obliged to send away his next kick from practically his own goal line. Bell signaled for a fair catch, but Sutton tackled him by mistake, costing his team another fifteen yards. Straus made a first down in two catapulting rushes outside tackle. Graves went in for H. Miller and Harvey was thrown for a loss, trying to round left end. Then Bell ran back with the ball, waited until Hopper had crossed in front of the line of scrimmage and tossed it neatly into his hands. The big end fell across the line, three Cornell men on top of him, but with the touchdown safely scored. Brunner kicked an easy goal. Score: Pennsylvania, 7; Cornell, 0.

Horrell's next kick-off was short, Graves getting the ball on Penn's 30-yard line. Brunner immediately sent a 60-yard spiral far into Cornell's territory, the ball rolling out of bounds. Bell made a fair catch of Shiverick's return kick, and again there was slight interference, but no penalty. Pennsylvania, however, lost fifteen yards for holding on the next play. Shiverick fumbled another long punt from Brunner, with Hopper following the ball like a hawk and almost retrieving it. The Cornell Captain just saved the situation on his own 10-yard line. He kicked back to midfield, and Straus shot through the line in a terrific 6-yard plunge. He added two more on the next play, and Bell made it first down. The quarterback then threw a forward pass to Hopper for a 5-yard advance, and Harvey again sent the sticks forward with a 7-yard dash around left end. Carey, however, got him for a loss on his next attempt, after which the double pass resulting in a forward pass was once more worked successfully. This time Straus passed to Bell, who threw to Harvey far on the right, twenty yards being gained before the runner was forced out of bounds. Harvey walked all the way across the field to the left, and, with no one watching him, received a long pass from Bell, but ingloriously muffed the ball, with the goal line only twelve yards away. Horrell was hurt as Straus plunged through for a first down, and when the human battering-ram again carried the ball within a foot of the line the Cornell centre had to give up temporarily, Trowbridge taking his place.

Cornell Averts a Touchdown.

Then for the second time in the game the Cornell line showed its courage by taking the ball on downs, with only a few inches of ground left to cover. After Shiverick's punt the Ithacans got a further breathing spell when Shuler intercepted Harvey's forward pass.

The same player promptly registered a first down in three desperate rushes, and then tried a forward pass, which Bell knocked down by jumping into the air. Another attempt at aerial advance, Shiverick to Mayer, was good for fifteen yards, Cornell's biggest gain of the afternoon. Hoff apparently caught another toss from Shuler, but the ball was knocked out of his hands, and on still another trial the receiver was bumped hard by Harvey and the ball hit the ground. Shiverick had to resort to kicking again, and another five-yard plunge by Straus ended the first half. Score: Pennsylvania, 7; Cornell, 0.

The re-start found Light, H. Miller and Horrell back in the game, the last named kicking off to Brunner, who returned twenty yards, and then punted on the first down. Light stopped Shiverick for a two-yard gain off tackle, and Straus did the same for Carey. Then Pennsylvania, after receiving a kick, began a steady series of gains, which brought two successive first downs, Bell doing most of the work. Light's fumble after catching a forward pass spoiled the procession, as Horrell recovered the ball for Cornell. The Ithacans could not gain consistently, however, and Penn began another march which ended when Bell tried a drop-kick, which rolled to the 10-yard line.

As the players crowded around the ball, a Cornell man was pushed against it, and accidentally kicked the oval free of the mass. Hopper immediately fell on it, and Penn's claim for possession was allowed. Three assaults on the line, with a touchdown only four yards away, failed to gain. Then Light was sent off on a wide end run to the right, and managed to score in the extreme corner of the field, while the Cornell rooters sadly put their mascot back in his cage.

Bell was allowed two chances to punt out, as Cornell was offside the first time, and the second was caught by Straus, Brunner again tallying the extra point. This same kicker stepped into the limelight again a few minutes later when, after several gains following a short punt by Shiverick, he dropped a neat field goal from the twenty-five-yard line. Score: Pennsylvania, 17; Cornell, 0. The period ended shortly after this with the ball in Cornell's possession.

Unusual Play by Shiverick.

At the start of the last quarter Shiverick had a punt blocked, but caught the ball as it rebounded from his opponent's chest, a curious play, which almost certainly prevented another touchdown. Penn started again from midfield, however, after the Cornellian got away his kick successfully, Brunner making nine yards on a fine run outside tackle, and Hopper getting nine more through a good forward pass from Bell. McNichol went into the Penn backfield, and Straus encouraged him with a first down.

Then came the sure-fire trick play once more. This time McNichol passed the ball to Bell in the old-fashioned criss-cross style, and as the captain ran back, "Heinie" Miller emerged from the ground on the right, absolutely uncovered. It was a simple matter to throw the ball into his waiting arms, and he trotted across the line without a sign of opposition. Brunner's third goal made the score: Pennsylvania, 24; Cornell, 0.

PENN STATE BEATS PITTSBURGH, 20-0

Warner's Men Helpless Before Spectacular Aerial Attack of Their Rivals.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 27.—Penn State defeated the University of Pittsburgh, 20 to 0, in the annual Thanksgiving Day game at Forbes Field this afternoon, scoring one touchdown in each of the first three periods, but failing to kick goal after the second score. The twenty points just about measure State's superiority over Glenn Warner's charges.

Never since the famous coach of the Carlisle Indians assumed charge of the coaching of Panther football teams have Pittsburghers seen a Pitt team as utterly helpless as the eleven that faced State this afternoon. Hastings and Davies, two backs who have worried every team they have faced this Fall, were easily stopped by the boys from Penn State, and it was not until late in the game that they were able to register any consistent gains.

There was not a department of play, aside from punting, in which State did not excel. In the punting Hastings had the better of Hess and Higgins. The latter relieved the fullback of the kicking, after Hess had put his goal line in danger with several spirals that failed to travel less than twenty yards.

State's play was the most spectacular seen here in years, the visitors using an aerial attack that was a thing of beauty, giving the home team no end of trouble. In fact, the Warnerites never solved it successfully. It was the clever and daring execution of the pass that gave Bezdek's boys their first touchdown.

92 Yards to a Touchdown.

With play only a few minutes old, State was forced to kick, deep in her own territory, and Hess lifted a punt straight up, Pitt receiving it on the 22-yard line. Aided by a penalty and plunges by Hastings and Davies, the ball was carried to the 8-yard line, where State took it on downs. Hess dropped back as if to punt and the entire Pitt team, except Hastings, who was back for the punt, set itself to block the kick. This left Higgins free and he ran out 20 yards and received Hess's pass from behind the goal line. Brown, State's left end, was beside him and the two of them disposed of Hastings, allowing Higgins to complete the distance to the goal line, a gain of 92 yards from the point of scrimmage.

An exchange of punts gave State the ball on her own 37-yard line, as the period ended. As soon as play was resumed the State backs inaugurated a march down the field, using line plays and a forward pass, which was made with Cubbage back for a try at placement. Robb hurled the ball forward to Higgins on the 20-yard line. From there Hess and Robb carried it over, Hess making the score. Cubbage missed the goal.

Penalty Prevents Score.

A penalty cost State another score in this period. Way had returned the kickoff twenty-eight yards to the Pitt 48-yard line, and two first downs on line plays were followed by a forward pass, Robb to Higgins, which put the ball on the 5-yard line. A State man was found holding, and the ball was taken back to the 17-yard line. Another forward pass was tried, and it was grounded behind the goal line, giving Pitt the ball on the 20-yard line.

Pitt made one try at a play from scrimmage, and when it failed Hastings booted to the State 40-yard line. The Pitt line braced at this point, and Cubbage missed a placement goal from the 43-yard line, Davies catching the ball on his 2-yard line, where he was dropped in his tracks. Time was up before Pitt could put the ball in play.

Charley Way redeemed himself for fumbling in the early period as the second half opened, and scored State's third touchdown after a forty-seven-yard run through the entire Pitt team.

McCracken for Pitt returned the kickoff to the 24-yard line, and Laughran picked up a yard at right end. Hastings was thrown for a five-yard loss on an attempted run from punt formation and had to punt to Robb, who returned five yards to the Pitt 47-yard line. On the first lineup Way got loose through the right side of the Pitt line and threaded his way through the secondary defense for a score. Cubbage kicked the goal.

Pitt's Interference Weak.

Pitt's interference was so weak that her backs were unable to advance the ball. The line allowed State men to filter through and tackle the runner before he was fairly started, and Hastings was forced to kick repeatedly. An exchange of kicks gave Pitt a break in the final minutes of the third period. Hastings had been punting strongly, but his kick on this occasion did not carry as far as Robb expected it to and it dropped to the ground several yards in front of him and bounced loose. Conover had come down the field to form interference and stabbed at the ball, barely touching it, as a Pitt man advanced. This was Loughran, who, like a flash, slid under Conover and on to the ball.

A penalty further aided Pitt, and the ball was on the 5-yard line and first down. But Pitt was not equal to the occasion and State took the ball on downs, when Pitt forward passes were blocked. This occasion, and another early in the game, when Higgins made his sensational run, were the only times that Pitt threatened. State had the ball on her own 23-yard line when the period ended.

State started another march down the field by line plays, and semed destined to score again, when the Pitt line braced, and Robb resorted to long forward passes, which the Panther defense broke down. One of them was over the goal line, a heave of thirty yards, and gave Pitt the ball. Davies and Hastings then proceeded to get busy, and, unaided, tore through the State line for three first downs. Hastings carried several men with him on almost every play, and once he would have gotten away if he had had any interference.

MISSOURI DEFEATS KANSAS.

Wins Valley Conference Title by a 13 to 6 Victory.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 27.—The University of Missouri football eleven today won the Missouri Valley Conference title by defeating the University of Kansas, 13 to 6. Kansas was outplayed throughout the game by the more aggressive Missouri eleven. End runs by Peterson featured Missouri's playing. Only in the last few minutes of play was Kansas able to score, when an attempted drop kick by Missouri was blocked and a twenty-five-yard forward pass netted Kansas a touchdown.

SYRACUSE BEATEN BY NEBRASKA, 3-0

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 27.—Evenly matched and both eager to win the season's final game, Syracuse and Nebraska played before a shivering crowd of spectators in a miniature Nebraska blizzard on Nebraska Field this afternoon, Nebraska winning 3 to 0.

In the first quarter, Nebraska carried the ball to the Syracuse half-yard line, but lost it to Syracuse. In the second quarter, Dobson drew first blood for Nebraska by making a perfect drop kick from the 30-yard line.

Nebraska won the toss and chose to defend the east goal. Sigal kicked off to Newman, who returned the ball to the Corn Huskers' 24-yard line. Dobson kicked fifty-six yards out of bounds. Syracuse made three yards on a line buck. Dobson intercepted a forward pass on the 40-yard line, and gained five. Dobson failed to kick a field goal from the 40-yard line.

It was Syracuse's ball on the Huskers' 20-yard line. Two line plunges by Erwig and Fallon again made the necessary ten yards. Ackley failed to gain around right end. Schellenberg intercepted a forward pass on the 15-yard line, and ran to Nebraska's 45-yard line.

Fails to Kick Field Goal.

Kellogg went in for Dana at right end. Schellenberg made two yards through centre. Schellenberg was thrown for a four-yard loss. Dobson broke through the line for twenty-eight yards. Dobson dropped back to the 37-yard line and attempted a drop-kick, but failed again. The ball was put in play on the 20-yard line.

Syracuse failed to gain around right end. Nebraska was penalized fifteen yards for holding, and it was Syracuse's ball on its own 35-yard line. The quarter ended with the ball on the Huskers' 5-yard line in possession of Nebraska. Neither team had been able to score.

In the second period Dobson, standing behind the Huskers' goal line, punted forty-five yards to Ackley, who gained five yards. After Syracuse had been held, Dobson again punted forty-five yards to Ackley and it was the Orange's ball on its own 14-yard line. Ackley punted to Schelly, who returned twenty-five yards to the Syracuse 50-yard line. Erwing intercepted a forward pass and ran twenty-five yards around the Huskers' left end.

It was Syracuse's ball on Nebraska's 30-yard line directly before the goal posts. Ackley dropped back for a kick, but the ball went wide. Dobson punted forty-two yards to Ackley, who ran it back seventeen. Dobson broke up a forward pass and it was the Huskers' ball.

Wright failed on a wide end run, Dobson failed to gain off tackle. Dobson punted to the Syracuse 3-yard line. Ackley immediately punted forty-one yards. It was Nebraska's ball. On the first play, Syracuse was penalized fifteen yards and Dobson made a perfect drop kick from the 30-yard line, making the score, Nebraska, 3; Syracuse, 0.

Neither Has Advantage.

The third period was productive of no sensational playing, the ball being pushed up and down the field by short-line plunges, unproductive end runs, intercepted passes and short punts. The quarter ended with the ball in the possession of Syracuse on its own 40-yard line.

Syracuse started from there in the fourth quarter and Erwig made eight yards around right end. A forward pass from Erwig was incompleted; another pass from the same player was incomplete, and Ackley punted thirty-three yards to Schellenberg. Dobson returned the kick thirty-eight yards to Martin, who gained seven yards. It was Syracuse's ball on its 22-yard line. Martin made six yards around end. Barsha made six yards through the line. Erwig circled right end for six more. It was Syracuse's ball on its 38-yard line. Martin gained twelve yards and the ball was in the middle of the field.

Martin failed to gain, and Ackley attempted a drop kick. Nebraska blocked it, Pucelik falling on the ball on the Syracuse 48-yard line. Dobson kicked fifty-one yards out of bounds near the corner of the field.

It was Syracuse's ball on its own 1-yard line. Ackley punted thirty yards, and Nebraska had the ball on the Syracuse 30-yard line. Dobson attempted a drop kick from the 38-yard line, but failed. Syracuse tried to gain by rushing, but was forced to try to kick. Nebraska broke through, and Ackley was thrown on his own 18-yard line. He then punted thirty-seven yards. The game ended with the ball in Nebraska's possession near midfield.

Fumble on Goal Line Saves Geneva Team from a Defeat.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 27.—On a slippery, snow-covered gridiron the University of Rochester and Hobart College elevens fought today to a scoreless tie. Rochester crossed the Hobart line in the first half after Harris made a brilliant run through a broken field for fifty yards, but a fumble over the line deprived the Yellow forces of a touchdown. MIDDIES GIVE TEAM A HEARTY SENDOFF

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 27.—The Naval Academy football team, which will meet the army eleven on the New York Polo Grounds Saturday, got a hearty sendoff by the midshipmen and other navy people this afternoon. Four electric cars took aboard the party at the academy gate, and its members were transferred to a special train at Odenton. They will stop at the Hotel Commodore in New York tonight.

The cars drew up to the academy gate and the players were driven in vehicles by their comrades from Bancroft Hall. There was a brief interval before the departure, and the midshipmen tried to get Coach Dobie to speak to them, hoping to get something like an assurance from the rather gloomy coach. Dobie would not respond, however. Upon the insistence of the midshipmen Commander Howard spoke briefly. He said that the demonstration had refuted the reports that the morale of the academy was shattered, and added that there was no such thing as a "yellow midshipman." He said that whether the navy won or lost the game, everybody would know that every player had done his best.

The squad practiced a moderate time during the morning, confining the work to formation and signal drills and kicking. They will practice on the Polo Grounds tomorrow, but whether in the morning or afternoon has not been determined. Dobie will not decide upon the final lineup of his team until after the practice on the Polo Grounds.

More uncertainty exists as to the filling of right guard and right tackle. Moore has played a good game at right guard throughout the season, but he weighs only 177 pounds. Dobie regards the superior weight of the West Point line as a serious factor and may put Willkie, who weighs 210 pounds, in Moore's place, thus cutting down the disparity to some extent. Willkie is champion heavyweight wrestler of the Academy and has been worked at both guard and tackle this season. He has made a good showing whenever tried.

Commander Howard had charge of the party and Coach Dobie direct charge of the players. Others with it were Lieut. Commanders Richardson, Boynton, and Wright, Ensigns Ingram, Scaffe, Butler, and Whelchel, and Instructor John Wilson, all assistant coaches; Trainers Schutz and Dougherty; Surgeon Solehaug, and Hospital Steward Snyder.

NAVY PLAYERS ARE HERE.

To Practice at Polo Grounds Today—Cadets Due This Afternoon.

New York experienced its first signs of the impending Army-Navy football classic last night when the hopeful squad of middies arrived about 8:45 from Annapolis under the command of Coach Gilmour Dobie and Commander D. L. Howard, the navy athletic officer. The squad, numbering thirty-five players, substitutes, trainers, surgeons, and assistant coaches, went immediately to the Hotel Commodore, where headquarters were opened.

None of the present members of the sailor team, and for that matter, none of the army cadets from West Point, who will arrive shortly after noon today, have ever played in an annual clash between the service teams. The last meeting was in 1916, and since that time the entire regiments of the academies have been graduated incidental to the war, including even those who were the plebes in 1916. Whatever hopes for a celebration last night lurked in the minds of the nervous middies, who are having the grandest period in their lives, were spiked by Dobie, who ordered all abed early to rest up from the six-hour train ride and to be in readiness for today's practice sessions.

The navy squad will have a drilling this morning, beginning at 10 o'clock, on the Polo Grounds, the practice to continue until lunch time. The West Point team is due to arrive shortly after 1 o'clock, and will go to its usual headquarters, the Hotel Astor, for luncheon, before holding practice at the Polo Grounds. Arrangements were made last night so that both teams would be able to hold an afternoon session, and the grounds will be divided for this purpose. Navy's final workout will be light and short, and consist principally of a finishing polish on the eleven which will start. Coach Dobie would not announce last night his lineup, and it probably will not be selected until after this morning's practice. The doubt exists in the right side of the line, where Moore and Wilkie are fighting it out for the guard berth, and King and Wiedorn are trying to land the position at tackle.

The players will be tucked away early tonight, but, win or lose, tomorrow will be the big day for midshipmen and cadets. The sailors will arrive in special trains tomorrow at noon, under the guidance of Commander J. H. Bowdey, U. S. N., and will be taken up the North River in barges to 157th Street, from where they will march to the Polo Grounds for the game. One thousand midshipmen will be quartered tomorrow night at the Hotel Commodore and the others of the regiment will be lodged at the McAlpin.

The West Pointers will leave their academy at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning and detrain at the Highbridge Station of the New York Central Railroad, whence they will march to the Polo Grounds. They will be lodged for the night at the Hotel Astor. Members of both bodies will have their entire freedom after the game and for the evening, but they will be assembled Sunday morning at 11 o'clock to be escorted back to their academies in special trains.

CADETS ARE 'SET' FOR NAVY CONTEST

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Final touches were imparted to the Army eleven by the coaches this morning. Except for the light drill which they will have at the Polo Grounds tomorrow afternoon, the cadets are all "set" for the Navy game. Two days' rain precluded any drill being held on the regular gridiron, and the big team was taken out on the grass plain where, for twenty-five minutes, they went through the lightest kind of work.

A sharp signal practice was preceded by a kicking session, both Lystadt and McQuarrie showing some improvement in this department. The ends and backs went down under the kicks, Blaik and Kiefer both displaying a fair amount of speed considering the heavy condition of the field.

Breidster devoted some time to practicing goal kicking. The big Wisconsin plebe has been doing well in this work of late. His eight goals after touchdowns made in the Army's last game against Villa Nova marked him as reliable and trustworthy in this respect.

The linemen, with Vogel in at guard, where the element of uncertainty existed for so long, had only a brief dummy scrimmage before they were sent into the blocking and tackling machines. The forward passing game got but little attention. This afternoon the whole squad took a long walk with Harry Tuthill, the rainer, in charge.

Tomorrow morning the squad, coaches, and trainers will leave for New York. They will arrive at Grand Central Station at 1:05 P. M. They will go directly to the Hotel Astor. In the afternoon they will practice at the Polo Grounds. Captain Philip Hayes, Treasurer of the Athletic Council, who has had charge of the distribution of the Army's share of the tickets for the big game, will also be in the party.

The coaches would make no predictions today as to the probable outcome of the game. The general opinion here is that the Army's chances of winning are none too bright. All agree that the team is a fighting one, however, though not the well rounded, finished eleven which is usually sent down to do battle with the middies.

The "Runts" beat the "Flankers" this morning in their annual Thanksgiving affair, which, tradition has it, is a forecaster of what will happen to the Navy.

The players who will leave for New York tomorrow follow: Blaik, Bolyard, Barnes, Byers, Bassett, Bryan, Breidster, Bowman, Crist, Carpenter, Clark, Craford, Daniel, Davidson, Dodd, Enderton, Evans, Farrell, Fischer, George, Gregory, Greene, Gunn, Hass, Herrick, Himmler, Jones, Kelly, Kiefer, Lystadt, McQuarrie, Moreland, Partridge, Romain, Ryan, Schabacker, Schick, Singer, Swartz, Travis, Vogel, Kessler, Olmsted, Pierce, Spettle, Stout, Terry, Whetton, Wilhide, Pitzer, Post, Storck, Timberlake, Warren and White.

The corps of cadets in three battalions will leave here at 11 o'clock Saturday morning for New York. They will detrain at the Highbridge station of the New York Central and march into the Polo Grounds for the game.

DETROIT BEATS HOLY CROSS

DETROIT, Nov. 27.—The University of Detroit trampled the Holy Cross eleven under its cleats here today, scoring three touchdowns to one for the visitors. Not only did the Red and White gridiron contingent win by a tally of 21 to 7, but they outplayed the easterners at every angle of the contest, except possibly punting, scoring touchdowns in the first, second and fourth quarters on good hard football.

The attack which the Tigers hurled at the Worcester aggregation carried the punch all the time. The plays were well called by Quarter Back Brennan, whose judgment inside the 20-yard line was especially excellent. The backs, Lauer, Moegle and Fitzgerald, did sterling work and the forward line carved great holes in the visiting forward wall and rendered the eastern team's line attack ineffective.

Coach O'Donnell brought from Worcester a pair of star ends. Two good backs in Kennedy and Gagnon, a good punter in Bailey and an eleven fairly strong in other positions, but this strength was unable to make much impression on the Tigers. The total of eighteen first downs to one gives an idea of the superiority of the local players over their adversaries, who fought gamely every inch of the route, but were simply outclassed.

Lauer, the Detroit full back was the real star of the game. He was the heavy point winner of the day with two touchdowns to his credit and three goals from touchdowns, a total of fifteen points. In addition, his line plunging was excellent, his punting good and he tore off fine runs from punt formation, one of which netted a touchdown on a 35-yard gain.

Holy Cross scored its seven points in the third quarter when Fitzpatrick picked up a poor pass and raced thirty-five yards across the Detroit goal line.

VILLANOVA VICTOR AT EBBETS FIELD

Football elevens representing Villanova College and the New York Agricultural College entertained 3,000 gridiron enthusiasts at Ebbets Field yesterday afternoon with a continuous program of open football, the Pennsylvania Collegians gaining the honors by the score of 7 to 0. Forward passes, trick shifts, and end runs, with a little line smashing on occasions made up the repertory of both elevens.

The lone touchdown of the game came in the third period. After an exchange of punts Villanova gained possession of the ball at the Aggies' 40-yard line. A few line smashes brought the pigskin to the 20-yard line, and Fullback McGeehan went around right end for the remaining twenty yards. McGeehan also kicked the goal.

The Aggies threw a scare into the Villanova team in the final quarter, but the interception of a forward pass by Duffy prevented a possible touchdown. The Farmingdale boys had brought the ball close to the Villanova goal line, and on the last down a forward pass was attempted. The play had gone through and the Aggies would have scored but for Duffy, who grabbed the ball as it was about to go to a Farmingdale player, and he followed the catch by running almost to midfield before he was thrown.

Excepting the occasions when Villanova scored and when the Aggies threatened, the ball was usually moving up and down between the 30-yard lines. Each team went to Ebbets Field with its special bag of tricks, and apparently tried out every one of them, but they availed little. Such a variety of passes and formations has seldom been seen in a game hereabouts. The passes, however, were of the hit-or-miss variety, and the shifts failed to confuse the opposing side as expected.

HAMPTON ROADS WINS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Hampton Roads Naval Training Station won the Eastern naval football championship here today by defeating the team of the battleship Pennsylvania, flagship of the Atlantic fleet, 27 to 13, in a spectacular game. Secretary Daniels, Assistant Secretary Roosevelt and other high naval officials were present and joined in the impartial applause of the crowd which filled the Central High School stadium.

Both teams uncovered a splendid aerial offensive, and employed the famous Heisman shift to advantage. The outstanding feature was a thirty-yard forward pass from Captain Madden to Quarterback Walson, who ran forty yards for Pennsylvania's first touchdown.

COLUMBIA IN TIE GAME WITH BROWN

LOCALS OUTPLAY RIVALS

Eight thousand holiday football fans, bundled in furs and jammed full of turkey, cranberry sauce, and mince pie, "like mother used to make," saw something at South Field yesterday afternoon with their own eyes that they couldn't believe, and don't yet. A collection of Brown warriors from Rhode Island, savage and mighty, powerful and terrific, a team which has gained the spotlight of Eastern football by its defeat of Dartmouth, was so humbled, bumped around, bowled over, and toyed with by Columbia's weakened, injured, handicapped team that the spectacle was pathetic. For three full fifteen-minute periods the New Yorkers had the Clam Diggers jumping through hoops. Columbia scored within the first ten minutes of play, and continued to maintain the superiority. In the last quarter Brown succeeded in pushing across a touchdown, after a series of forward passes, tried as the last resort of hopelessness, and instead of being snowed under by a tremendous score, Columbia held the chocolate covered visitors to a 7 to 7 tie.

The good year of 1919 has had more than its share of football upsets and reverses, but that game on Morningside Heights yesterday will take its place as an example of the topsy-turviness of the great college sport. Columbia went into the game like a lamb, flirting trouble in a lions' den. The New Yorkers were given no better than a Chinaman's chance against the heralded avalanche from Providence, and as for wagers on the local eleven, they didn't exist. Columbia looked like a setup on Brown's football finale of the year, particularly since the Blue and White had been trampled this season by N. Y. U., Stevens, and divers other college elevens. Stars of the backfield were missing, from injuries, with the result that the same men who lost a week ago to New York University took their places in the lineup.

But it was an entirely different fighting front. Columbia was prepared with an aerial attack of forward passing in the hope of keeping the score low, yet this possibility seemed remote when the players found a slippery, wet, and muddy field, an advantage seeming to favor the heavy Brunonians in every way. Columbia used its forward passes, delightful, tricky, bewildering overhead heaves, which gained ground almost at will, but the surprise of all was the New Yorkers' strength in the backfield and Brown's tissue-paper display of line defense. In Applebaum, Farrell, and Mosczinski Columbia had a trio of line plungers who dove, bored, plowed, and fairly tore their way into Brown territory.

Brown has no Alibis.

The Providence team had no alibis after the raging gridiron encounter had ended. Coach Robinson put his first-string players into the lineup at the start, shifted about with his alternates in the second period, these changes in no way diminishing his strength, for Brown all the season has been famous for its two sets of equally powerful forwards, and came back after the intermission with a team that was still strong. The Brown touchdown in the final period was nothing more nor less than the natural outcome of the weakening Columbia team, being physically unable to continue in the form it had shown in the second period when Brown took the ball to the New Yorkers' one-yard line and lost it on downs against the Columbia stonewall.

There was one time during the afternoon when Columbia seemed to have lost. This followed the close of the game when Referee W. S. Langford, the former Trinity player, declared to the newspaper men that Brown had scored a safety in the second half on the kick off and had won the game, 9 to 7. The decision was received like a bombshell. The scoreboard had read 7 to 7, and the play in question had been set down and understood by the spectators as a touchback. Langford's position among football officials has been at the top for years, however, and there were few who questioned his decision. The scoreboard was duly changed and the crowd left the field only half satisfied with the mystery.

The 1919 Football Guide, edited by Walter Camp, was called into reference with results not entirely favorable to Langford's prestige or to his reputation as a referee with infallible judgment. On Page 16, under Rule VII., Section 2, the following can be found: "At kick-off, if the ball is kicked across the goal line and is there declared dead when in the possession of one of the side defending the goal, it is a touchback." Langford reversed his decision a half hour after the game and announced the final score a tie.

Kicks Over Goal Line.

The play in question had been on Brown's kick-off at the opening of the second half. The ball bounded across Columbia's goal line, where Eccles, the local quarterback, fell on it. Play was resumed on Columbia's 20-yard line, and it was not until near the close of the fray that word was passed out from the officials that Langford had ruled the incident a safety instead of a touchback. Another quotation, from Rule VI., Section 15, reads as follows: "A touchback is made when the ball in possession of a player guarding his own goal is declared dead by the referee, any part of it being on, above, or behind the goal line, provided the impetus which sent it to or across the line was given by an opponent."

Brown's array of football talent was complete enough for any team, but Columbia usurped every opportunity in the first three periods. Starting in the opening quarter, when the Morningside team soon got the ball on its own 35-yard line and passed and pushed it sixty-five yards for a touchdown, Columbia took the reins in hand and drove the game almost at will. Rarely did Brown get a look in. Columbia had the ball the majority of the time, gaining first downs with a regularity that surprised even the Providence supporters in the north grandstand.

Facts and figures tell the tale. In the first period Columbia netted five first downs by rushing the ball, two more on forward passes, and an eighth first down on a lateral pass. Brown's share during this quarter was only three. In the second period Columbia made three first downs to Brown's one, and in the third period the New Yorkers gained five to one for the visitors. Brown had the better reserve of strength in the last quarter, and gained five first downs to three for the Blue and White. For the entire game Columbia scored nineteen first downs to Brown's 10.

Both Play Open Football.

Despite a wet field both teams showed an uncanny ability to play an open game when necessary and yet hold the ball without fumble. Columbia tried twenty-three forward and lateral passes and completed eleven of them successfully. Brown tried twelve forward and lateral heaves and completed six. Columbia punted only four times throughout the muddy struggle, and Brown booted the ball once. Only one field goal was attempted, Weinstein trying a drop kick for Columbia on the first play in the final quarter from the 36-yard line, an attempt which was good in height and distance, but which missed by about five yards from going between the posts.

Neither eleven showed signs of giving or taking quarter at any stage, yet the game was exceptionally cleanly played and few penalties resulted. Columbia lost only five yards, on one offside. Brown similarly had one offside play, but also lost half the distance to its goal late in the second period, a penalty of twenty-three yards. Allbright, right end, was accused of slugging Johnstone, Columbia's substitute half back, and was banished although the foul appeared doubtful.

The absence of more penalties in no way describes the intensity of the battle. Brown began in all confidence to add another victory to its string, but Columbia's unexpected strength was as baffling as it was surprising. By the second period the clam diggers were seeing red and in the third and fourth period Brown was playing savagely, snapping at any possible loophole for a gain. The game began to take on the appearance of a gory clash of Spanish matadors in a bull ring, and each team fought on,—Columbia to hold its lead of seven points and Brown to diminish it and even the score. Coach Dawson made one last effort in the last half to patch up his tiring backfield, sending in Wesley and Scott to replace Farrell, but Brown had the reserve strength, and put over its touchdown by liberal use of the forward pass.

Visiting Backfield Strong.

Brown's principal method of offense was a tricky lateral pass, often combined with an end-around formation. Williams, the hefty negro, who replaced Brisk early in the game at Brown's left end, was the mainstay of this form of gaining. Linked with the plunging gains of Fox, who replaced Coulter at quarterback, Brooks, Jemail, and Armstrong, Williams helped consistently in scoring Brown's lone touchdown. Taking the ball on its own eight-yard line in the final period after Weinstein's failure at a drop kick, Brown swept almost the length of the field. Fox once contributed a run of thirty-five yards, and a lateral pass, Fox to Williams, netted a dozen yards. Other gains contributed by the plunging fullback, Armstrong, brought the ball to within three yards of Columbia's line. Here Columbia seemed almost to equal the marvelous defense of its goal it had made in the second period when the New Yorkers took the ball on downs after Brown had brought it to about one yard from the line.

Armstrong dove into the line, but was turned back for no gain. Fox tried left guard, but again the ball was not advanced. Brooks then tested the Columbia line on the third down, but was thrown for a two-yard loss. Brown had the ball within five yards of a touchdown, and it was the fourth down. Fox shifted his tactics, dropped back to take the pass, and tossed a short overhead heave across the right of the line to McSweeney, who had gone in at right end when Allbright was banished. McSweeney was waiting and planted the ball behind the goal. Armstrong kicked out to Fox, who made a fair catch, and Armstrong's subsequent goal from touchdown tied the score.

Columbia's touchdown, coming within ten minutes after the opening of play, followed as pretty a series of brilliant football plays as the fans could want. Brown received the kick off, gained one first down on rushing, and brought the ball to Columbia's 35-yard line on Jemail's run of thirty yards on a crisscross play. Coulter here tried a forward pass, which Applebaum, Columbia's fullback, intercepted on his own 28-yard line and ran it back to his own 35-yard line. A forward pass, Applebaum to Mosczinski, gained twelve yards. The big fullback made a first down by rushing. A lateral pass on a fake punt formation, Farrell to Eccles, brought the ball to Brown's 28-yard chalk mark. Another forward, Eccles to Kennedy, netted ten, and Farrell contributed another first down, putting the ball six yards from a touchdown. Farrell added three, and on the next play Mosczinski followed a hole made by Modarelli and Forsyth and crossed Brown's goal for a touchdown. Kennedy kicked an easy goal.

Yesterday's game ended the seasonn for both teams.

COLUMBIA LOSES DAWSON.

Fred T. Dawson, coach of the football, baseball, and basket ball teams at Columbia, yesterday severed his connection with the university because of ill health. His resignation, which will be accepted by the University Committee on Athletics, will take effect at once, and within a few days he will leave for Colorado, where he hopes to recuperate. Because of the suddenness of his action his successor as basket ball and baseball coach for the coming season has not been selected, nor have any negotiations been begun for a football coach for next Fall.

An official statement yesterday afternoon by Lester C. Danielson, Graduate Manager of Athletics, had this to say of Dawson's resignation:

"Coach Fred T. Dawson today handed his resignation to the Columbia University Committee on Athletics. Ill health is the cause for his retirement at this time. For some time past Dawson has not been in good health and he has now found it necessary to give up coaching work, at least for the present, and is leaving shortly for the West, where he hopes to recover his health.

"Dawson's leaving necessitates securing a basket ball coach, as he was engaged for that sport as well as football and baseball. No action has been taken by the Athletic Committee due to the suddenness of the resignation. At a meeting in the very near future that matter will be taken up."

Dawson has been troubled with ill health most of the football season just ended, it was learned yesterday, and the complaint was aggravated by overwork at the task of developing a 'Varsity eleven in the face of injuries, inner dissension and other handicaps. Several weeks ago a physician advised strongly against Dawson's continuing his football work. Against the doctor's orders, however, Dawson kept on at the daily coaching on South Field, until Wednesday afternoon, when the team finished its practice for the final game yesterday with Brown.

Dawson began his athletic career at Columbia in 1905, when he was captain of the freshman football team. When the gridiron sport was abolished in that year he went to Princeton, where he was graduated in 1910, after having played for three years in the Tiger back field. He was also a member of the baseball team, of which he was the regular catcher for three years, and in his last year the captain.

In 1912 he accepted his first position as coach, when he went to Union College to take charge of the football, basket ball and baseball teams. He had unusual success in all three sports and turned out consistently good teams in every one of the five years he spent at the up-State college. His football teams suffered only two setbacks in four years and in basket ball more than 80 per cent. of the games were victories. Dawson was equally successful at baseball.

WEST VIRGINIA IS VICTOR OVER W. & J.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 27.—West Virginia won a great victory over Washington and Jefferson here today, 7 to 0, the Mountaineers pushing across a tally in the first quarter on brilliant work, especially in forward passes, by Captain Rodgers, King, and Hite, King going over for the touchdown after six minutes of play.

The field was far from being in good condition, though 600 Mountaineer students had turned out at daylight and worked till almost game time, shoveling and dragging off the mud. There was no water on the field, however, and, while the ground was heavy, the ball was dry, and West Virginia, especially, handled the ball with skill and precision in the execution of forward passes.

The game was very young when the Mountaineers started their heavy work. West Virginia received the kickoff, and Rodgers, Hite, and Lentz made two first downs, and took the ball to midfield before King was forced to kick. He drove the ball to Erickson on the W. and J. 5-yard line, and the Red and Black star ran it back fifteen yards. Eielson punted on the first down to Rodgers at midfield. Hite made one yard through the line, and then a beautiful pass, Rodgers to King, gained twenty yards.

Touchdown in Short Order.

Hite, the West Virginia quarter back, stood far out on the side when the teams lined up after this play, and Rodgers shot a quick pass, which Hite gathered in and traveled to the W. and J. 5-yard line. Rodgers ran three yards out of bounds, and then West Virginia was set back fifteen yards for holding. The Mountaineers were not to be denied, however, and, on a wonderful piece of work by King in eluding Carroll, the W. and J. captain, King took a neat pass from Rodgers and dashed across the goal, while the West Virginia stands roared.

West Virginia had gotten away with just the style of play that she had used so effectually against Princeton and Rutgers—a dashing forward pass attack, with a perfect thrower in Rodgers, and wonderful receivers in King and Hite.

Washington and Jefferson was not discouraged by this display of scoring ability, however. Henry kicked off to Rodgers, who returned fifteen yards to the West Virginia 26-yard line. King punted to Erickson, who returned to the W. and J. 37-yard line. W. and J. could not gain and when Eielson punted his kick was short. Bailey, who was going back to make interference for the West Virginia receiver, was hit in the back with the ball, and W. and J. recovered on the Mountaineers' 48-yard line.

Within Four Yards of Score.

Eielson and Smith made a first down on three plays through the line, and then a pass, Smith to Loucks, made another first down on West Virginia's 18-yard line. Eielson made six at centre, and after the teams had changed goals for the second quarter Stein made it first down on the West Virginia 4-yard line. Erickson and Eielson each plunged at the West Virginia line and Stein plunged twice, but the Mountaineer forwards held for downs, and Kink kicked out to the 36-yard line.

W. and J. failed in four plays and King kicked to midfield. On the second play Eielson broke loose for a twenty-six-yard run that was one of the features of the game, placing the ball on the West Virginia 18-yard line. On the next play, however, Erickson fumbled, and Hite recovered for the Mountaineers. West Virginia made two successive first downs on powerful runs by Rodgers and Hite, but then failed and an exchange of kicks gave West Virginia the ball on her 40-yard line. Rodgers shot a long pass to Hite which gained thirty-one yards as the half ended.

Erickson returned Rodgers's kickoff in the second half thirty yards before Setron downed him. Erickson and Eielson advanced the ball eighteen yards on six plays and then Eielson punted to Rodgers, who returned fifteen yards. King returned the kick to Moore at midfield. Erickson then broke loose again and dodged twenty yards through the mountaineers. The West Virginia defense stiffened then and they took the ball on downs.

Ball in Midfield.

On an exchange of kicks, Moore fumbled King's long boot and Lentz recovered for West Virginia at midfield. Rodgers attempted to advance the ball on the fourth down, with ten yards to go, and W. and J. got possession of it again at midfield. Bailey threw Erickson for seven yards' loss. Eielson punted to Rodgers who returned twenty-one yards and he then threw a pass to Hite for a gain of fifteen yards. King punted and again the ball hit a mountaineer player in the back and Shields, for W. and J., recovered. At her 38-yard line, West Virginia again stiffened her defense and took the ball on downs. Hite made two yards. Rodgers made first down and then W. and J. braced, forcing King to kick.

Erickson, standing on his own 10-yard line, fumbled the ball when tackled savagely by Herrick and Bailey, and Archer recovered. Erickson was hurt on the play and had to leave the game, and with the star ground-gainer of the Red and Black gone the mountaineers had nothing much to worry about.

Though the mountaineers had the ball after this play with a first down on the Red and Black 9-yard line, they could not push it over and a pass was grounded behind the line. W. and J. punted from her 25-yard line, after failing to gain, and West Virginia started another offensive that promised a score. Another pass was grounded behind the line, however, and the game was over.

Harrick, Bailey, and Setron in the West Virginia line played great football, and Shields, the W. and J. centre, was a conspicuous performer. Bailey several times broke through and downed W. and J. runners for losses, and Harrick's tackling in the open was sure and spectacular. Erickson was the bright star for W. and J., though Eielson several times stepped into the limelight and both King and Eielson did great kicking throughout the afternoon.

King never played a better game of football for West Virginia than that of today, which was his last, and Rodgers, Bailey, Hite and Ice, before the latter was hurt, celebrated their final game with the old Gold and Blue by sensational play. Hite's work at laying out on the side was wonderful, and the W. and J. players were taken completely by surprise on each occasion. He was not concealed but stood in clear view with his headgear off nonchalantly waiting for Rodgers to pass him the ball.

Weaver of Centre College Kicks 46 Consecutive Goals

GEORGETOWN, Ky., Nov. 27.—What is believed to be a new American football record, was made today in the game between Georgetown College and Centre College, when Weaver, centre of the Centre team, kicked eleven straight goals after touchdowns, running his record for consecutive goals kicked up to forty-six. He has missed only one attempt at goal this season.

CENTRE HAS EASY VICTORY.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 27.—When Centre College went against Georgetown College of Kentucky at Georgetown this afternoon, it was believed that the game would be merely good practice. But Georgetown did what only three other teams had been able to do of recent years, and that was to cross Centre's goal line. The final score was Centre, 77; Georgetown, 7.

Jones made the score for Georgetown by an end run of sixty yards in the third quarter, and by kicking goal. Centre was undefeated this season, having piled up the amazing total of 485 points to opponents' 23, leading all teams in the country in scoring. The team claims the championship.

McMillan, Roberts, and Weaver starred in Centre's work today, Weaver kicking eleven goals after touchdowns, making forty-six straight kicked goals, and forty-seven out of forty-eight for the season. Centre had been scored on this season before only by West Virginia, Virginia, and Indiana, and has been defeated only once in three years.

Eddie Mahan, leading warrior on the Harvard eleven of three years ago, who has been studying Centre's team for the last week, saw the slaughter this afternoon.

Centre will not lose any of her really big men next year. McMillan and Weaver are in their third year, and some of the best of the others have a year or two more. Centre's team is mostly built up of Texans, who attended the Somerset, Ky., High School before entering Centre and becoming the football sensation of the country.

This afternoon's game was distinguished only by Jones's remarkable run, considering the strength of the Centre team, and by the heavy score. Jones made his mark simply by superior footwork.

Manual Training High School and Commercial High School divided the honors of a Thanksgiving Day football double-header yesterday at Commercial Field, Brooklyn. The Manual Training contingent defeated Boys' H. S., by a score of 16 to 0, and the Commercial lads triumphed over New Utrecht H. S., by 9 to 0. Both games were played in the morning.

Soon after this initial score Warren carried the leather over Boys' goal line for the first touchdown. In the fourth period Reynolds, substituting for Beattie at fullback, registered Manual Training's second touchdown.

The Commercial schoolboys did all their scoring against New Utrecht in the second period, when a touchdown and safety were recorded.

MD. STATE BEATS HOPKINS.

Except for Fumbles Score Would Have Been Greater Than 14 to 0.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 27.—Using the old style of straight football with varied plays through the line that netted substantial gains and occasionally bringing into play forward passes that were highly productive of the desired results, Maryland State College came through just as expected against Johns Hopkins in its annual gridiron struggle here today and humbled its ancient rivals by 14 to 0.

As the final count would clearly indicate, the Farmers displayed a marked superiority at all stages of the game. They outplayed the Black and Blue in practically every period and had it not been for fumbles at critical stages, the count would have mounted to much higher figures.

NOTRE DAME IS VICTOR.

Vanquishes Morningside Eleven at Sioux City by 14 to 6 Score.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Nov. 27—Notre Dame University defeated the Morningside eleven today, 14 to 6. The game was played on a snow-covered and slippery field, which made accurate work difficult. Morningside scored its touchdown in the first five minutes of play, when Hinkley went through an open field from the 20-yard line.

CLINTON TROUNCES COMMERCE, 28 TO 0

The cherished dream of De Witt Clinton High School's football eleven, carefully nursed from the beginning of the local scholastic gridiron season, was realized yesterday on the Polo Grounds. Coach Bill Cooke's Red and Black warriors, renewing their annual struggle against the High School of Commerce team, vanquished their traditional rivals by a score of 28 to 0. Admirers of the West Fifty-ninth Street schoolboys radiated joy at the spectacle of their favorites trampling roughshod over Coach Frank O'Neill's wearers of the Orange and Blue.

The contest decided the scholastic championship of the Manhattan-Bronx boroughs definitely in De Witt Clinton's favor. But this was considered merely incidental to the fact that the Red and Black contingent again smeared defeat all over the Commerce representatives. Coach Bill Cooke's youngsters, fighting as if the championship of the universe depended on the outcome, smashed to smithereens the efforts of their rivals and completely demoralized both the offensive and defensive of Coach O'Neill's eleven.

Yesterday's success gave De Witt Clinton its fifth victory in as many annual clashes, dating back to the season of 1915 when Bill Cooke first took up the coaching task at Clinton. This annual game is to the contending teams and their followers what the more important collegiate football battles of tradition are to the college gridiron game. This was best illustrated yesterday in the throng which turned out for the game. The spacious Polo Grounds grandstand and temporary stand held a crowd conservatively estimated at between 10,000 and 12,000, in the absence of any official figures. This gathering exceeds by several thousands any of the crowds that have witnessed these annual struggles in the past.

Galbraith and Eisenberg Stars.

Two figures shone brilliantly in the Red and Black triumph. They were Captain Nelson Galbraith and little Roy Eisenberg, the speedy, brainy quarter back, who, with Galbraith and Mickey Brennan, has guided the team through one of its most successful seasons to the Manhattan-Bronx championship. Brennan was absent yesterday and furnished what looked, early in the contest, like a dangerous hole in the team's offensive. His place was filled by Teddy Waterbury, who performed like a whirlwind after the first quarter and provided plenty of help to Galbraith and Eisenberg in effecting the team's success.

De Witt Clineon outplayed its Orange and Blue rivals by an even greater margin than the score would indicate. With the exception of the third period the ball was almost constantly in Commerce territory, where the Orange and Blue lads, fighting for every inch of ground, had to give way before the concerted Red and Black assault. In the third period the Commerce attack showed improvement and, in a series of line plunges and end runs, in which Bunora and Tarnower carried the leather for material gains, the Orange and Blue advanced to De Will Clinton's 20-yard line. Here Commerce lost the ball on a fumble and the Red and Black gradually forced its rivals to Commerce territory.

Forward Pass Fails.

In the first five minutes of play De Witt Clinton rushed the ball to the Orange and Blue 15-yard line, where Coach O'Neill's lads, showing an air-tight defense and keeping their feet well on the slippery gridiron, held for downs. Commerce, in three plunges, gained ten yards and then lost the ball on a fumble. Galbraith tried a forward pass to Turner, back of the Commerce goal line, but there was too much strength in the heave and the leather went sailing over the temporary fence, while Turner dangled over the topmost wire after missing a catch.

Galbraith started the march to De Witt Clinton's first score in the second period with a 25-yard run which brought the play to Commerce's 25-yard line. The Red and Black captain, with Eisenberg and Turner, alternated in carrying the ball on a series of line plays which ended with Galbraith making a first down inside Commerce's five-yard line. Eisenberg raced off at an angle to a corner of the gridiron and was downed within a foot of the Commerce line. On the next play, Galbraith went tumbling over the line in a struggling mass for the first score. Galbraith kicked perfectly into the waiting hands of Eisenberg on the punt-out, and then the Red and Black field leader kicked the goal.

An exchange of punts followed the kick-off, and then Galbraith shot a 20-yard forward pass to Zachrowsky, who was nailed in his tracks on Commerce's 15-yard line. Two plunges netted small gains and then Eisenberg went around end until he was halted on Commerce's three-yard line. From this point Waterbury smashed through the Orange and Blue on a split play for the second Red and Black touchdown, near the corner of the field. Galbraith once again punted out accurately, and subsequently kicked for the extra point.

A Commerce Rally

Commerce's improved attack in the third quarter gave the Red and Black adherents an anxious session, but the Orange and Blue spurt was only a flurry, which disappeared in the face of Clinton's subborn defense on its 20-yard line. The period ended with the Red and Black gradually pushing back Commerce on the Clinton 37-yard line.

Eisenberg opened the final quarter with a short end run to Commerce's 45-yard line. Then a steady march started, with Eisenberg, Waterbury, and Galbraith carrying the ball to Commerce's 16-yard line. Here Eisenberg fumbled and Bunora raced the ball back to midfield. Commerce tried a forward pass, which was incompleted, and on the next attempt Hannigan intercepted the ball, but was downed in midfield before he could start a run. Galbraith then ployed his way through the line and Eisenberg injected a series of short runs, one of which brought the ball to within a foot of the Commerce goal line, from which point Galbraith went over for his second touchdown.

With two and one-half minutes to play Galbraith kicked off and the ball was rushed back to Commerce's 40-yard line. A penalty was inflicted on the Orange and Blue for illegal substitution, which brought the ball to the Commerce 20-yard line. Hannigan intercepted a forward pass and Eisenberg followed with a 30-yard run around right end which brought the ball to Commerce's 16-yard line. Eisenberg shot a forward pass to Turner, who was downed on the Orange and Blue 5-yard line, and on the next play Eisenberg raced around left end for Clinton's fourth touchdown.

The lineup:

Leads Record Field of 118 in Steinway Handicap—Scoring Questioned.

Benjamin Segretto, the young Morningside A. C. runner, who has scored several victories in Harlem Heights Athletic League road races since the start of the season, ended his novice career yesterday when he led home a record pack in the Steinway Handicap, an annual handicap road race conducted on Thanksgiving Day under the auspices of the Steinway Civic and Athletic Association of Long Island City. Segretto, starting with the limit handicap of five minutes, raced over a course of about four miles in 22:44, leading from start to finish of the race and showing the way by about 100 yards to H. D. Brown, Hasbrook Heights A. C., who finished second. E. Young of the Alpha P. C. C. finished third.

The race attracted a field of 118 starters, a record pack for the season. The result, however, was unsatisfactory to the competitors and officials of clubs which had entered teams. The race originally was scheduled for six miles, three laps of the course having ben mapped out, but the field covered only two laps of the course. Because of this many of the back-markers, who had trained for the longer distance, were left out of the prizes. Confusion in the manner of checking up the finish also was alleged by the club officials. The Morningside A. C. entered a protest against awarding the fast time and team prizes, and the distribution of these emblems was withheld until the Metropolitan A. A. U. Registration Committee acts on the case.

One discrepancy was charged in the scoring in the case of B. Schiavone of the Mohawk A. C., who was checked as having finished thirteenth. It developed after the race that Schiavone had not started and had not even attended the race.

It was also declared in the protests that the official timers erred in checking up the competitors for the fast-time prize. I. Prim of the Finnish-American A. C., who started from scratch, was checked up in seventy-eighth position in 21:15, while J. McGuinness of the Mohawk A. C., another scratch starter, who finished eight yards back of Prim, was recorded in eightieth position in 21:46.

On this basis it would have taken McGuinness the incredible time of thirty seconds to cover eight yards, the equivalent of the distance separating him from Prim at the finish.

In the order of finish, as made out after the race, the Paulist A. C. led in the team scoring with the low total of 69 points. This was two points lower than the total credited to the Morningside A. C.

FLUSHING IS WINNER, 17-0.

Defeats Central H. S. of Binghamton in Decisive Fashion.

Flushing High School's football eleven closed its season in appropriate fashion yesterday on the home gridiron by vanquishing the Central High School team of Binghamton, N. Y., by the score of 17 to 0. The contest marked the fourth renewal of this annual intersectional tilt, and the result gave the Long Island schoolboys an even break in the series to date.

Flushing's eleven, although outweighed, showed a superior brand of football and outplayed the up-State eleven in every period with the exception of the third. In this quarter Binghamton showed an improved offense and had the play in Flushing territory. Two first downs, of the total of five made by the Binghamton aggregation, were registered in this period. In recording five first downs against the Long Island lads the Central eleven accomplished something no other school has achieved this season.

Central's attempts to break through the Flushing line were frustrated, and when the visitors resorted to the aerial attack the Long Island lads had safeguards against this style of play, too. Three times Rieg, the Binghamton right end, tried for field goals, but as many times he missed. He made his first unsuccessful attempt in the second quarter from the 20-yard line. In the third period Rieg again essayed a placement kick, this time from the 35-yard line, and again he failed. Rieg made his final futile attempt in the fourth period when he missed a kick from the 25-yard line.

JERSEY SCHOOLBOYS WIN CROSS-COUNTRY

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—Central High of Newark, N. J., came through triumphantly in the American scholastic championship cross-country run, held over the three and a half mile course in Fairmount Park this morning, the Jerseyites showing the way with 25 points.

Central High of this city finished second with 79 points; Erasmus Hall was third, with 105 points; West Philadelphia High, fourth, with 110; Mercersburg, fifth, with 118 points, and Northeast, sixth, with 119 points.

The individual honors went to Helme of Lafayette High, who covered the course in the fast time of 17 minutes 4 seconds. Marzula of Bethlehem High was a close second. Neither of these schools had a complete team entered. Long of Northeast was the first Philadelphia high school boy to complete the distance, landing ninth position.

The race was a fight all the way between Helme and Marzula. They jumped into the lead with the crack of the gun, ran neck and neck until within thirty-five yards of the finish, when Helme broke away and won by ten yards. This was one of the closest finishes in a scholastic cross-country. These two boys outclassed the field. Enck, the Philadelphia schoolboy champion, was fifteenth, 1 minute and 9 seconds behind the winner.

ZUNA WINS ROAD RACE.

Millrose Distancer Heads Field in Quakertown Run.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—Frank Zuna of the Millrose A. A. of New York, with a handicap of one minute and fifteen seconds, won the annual cross-country run of the Meadowbrook Club here today, covering the distance of five and five-eighths miles in 33 minutes and 15 seconds.

A. G. Heisler of Lafayette College finished second, a second behind the winner. Robert Crawford, Captain of the Lafayette cross-country team, was third. He started from scratch and made the best actual time, negotiating the distance in 32 minutes and 26 seconds. Lafayette won the team prize with 28 points; Meadowbrook was second with 28 points, while the Northwest Boys' Club of Philadelphia finished third with 57 points.

HERMAN DEFEATS RUSSELL.

Bantamweight Champion Wins Seven of Eight Rounds in Jersey.

Peter Herman of New Orleans, bantamweight boxing champion, was not extended to defeat Mickey Russell of Jersey City in their eight-round bout which was the principal attraction yesterday at a special Thanksgiving Day matinee of the City A. C. of Jersey City. The title-holder, boxing up to his best form, carried off the laurels in every round, with the exception of the seventh, in which Russell landed a right flush to the champion's jaw and staggered Herman. The title-holder was wary of his younger opponent for the remainder of the round, while the unusually large crowd rocked the clubhouse with its yells for Russell to follow up his advantage and annex the title. In the eighth session, however, Herman showed that he had fully recovered from the effects of the blow, by carrying the fighting to Russell from bell to bell and finishing strong.

Herman scored a knockdown in the third session when he crashed his right against Russell's jaw and sent the Jersey City lad to the canvas. Russell bobbed up like a rubber ball and returned eagerly to the milling. Although outpointed by the champion, Russell made a favorable impression by his eagerness to mix matters with the champion.

LEONARD-BARTFIELD BOUT ENRAGES FANS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, and Soldier Bartfield of Brooklyn waltzed through five of the six rounds they were scheduled to box in the Olympia A. A. ring this afternoon. Only after the ire of 5,000 fans had become aroused to such a pitch that at the opening of the sixth round the two boxers were hooted, hissed and made the target of all sorts of missiles thrown by wrathful spectators did the pugilists attempt to do any real fighting.

In the first five rounds Leonard and Bartfield made faces, grunted, and the soldier added a realistic touch by going so far as to swear at the champion in the third round. Leonard apparently had forgotten that he was not performing in a man-to-man give-and-take affair, for he crossed Bartfield with a sweet right swing. Bartfield was horrified. Benny looked apologetic, but that could not obliterate the recollection of his rash deed.

If any boxer has ever before missed as many swings as Bartfield did in the first five rounds, it is not a matter of record. Bartfield was the heavier of the two and he took the more punishment. However, anyone who has ever seen Leonard in rear action could hardly have believed the champion capable of missing so many punches. Bartfield ripped and roared like a lion, but when he got within face hitting distance he grew as gentle as a lamb.

Then came the sixth and with it a shower of all sorts of débris, contributed by irate fans. Bartfield and Leonard concluded then to show a little real action. Leonard had the better of the going in the final session.

ORMONDA IS FIRST IN BOWIE FEATURE

ST. ALLAN SCORES VICTORY

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 27.—That William Shea's Ormonda can concede weight and hold her own in high-class company was proved here today, when this fine daughter of Superman captured the Thanksgiving Handicap, at a mile and a sixteenth, for all ages. This fleet filly was called upon to carry 118 pounds, and conceded several pounds to all of her rivals except the aged Leochares, which had an impost of 124 pounds. Ormonda carried the weight handily. She finished gamely under a stout drive, to win a close decision from Slippery Elm, with Old Rosebud third.

A great deal of speed had been promised for this race, but scratches brought the field down to seven starters and left the race practically to Ormonda and Slippery Elm. Ormonda, which has won several races recently and seems to have become a very consistent racer after being an uncertain quantity earlier in the year, was in the lead all the way except for a few strides in the stretch drive, but had the better of the racing luck. She had the rail all the way, while Slippery Elm was forced to go to the outside. The latter seemed to be the best on today's performance, but though he finished resolutely he could not make up the advantage lost by going wide throughout the journey, and when he did finally come up to the leader the early effort had taken too much from him and he could not keep pace with the fleet filly.

Sets Fast Pace.

Jockey Johnson never took any chances with Ormonda and went to the front at the start, set the pace and made it a fast one. Kashmir trailed along with the leader for a considerable part of the race, but dropped back in the last furlong or so and ceased to be a contender. While Ormonda was winging along in front, Slippery Elm was having a difficult time to get going, as he had been forced wide at the first turn and was obliged to go around his field and move up after getting into the back stretch. However, once he got into motion he moved up rapidly, and when the horses were turning into the stretch he became a serious contender. Pierce sent him along until he caught Ormonda at the sixteenth pole, but when he called on his mount for just one more effort Slippery Elm could not respond. However, it was a thrilling finish, and it was only in the last few strides that Ormonda made her victory safe.

Old Rosebud, which has again shown speed in distance races, was far back in the early running. He came strongly in the final quarter, however, and easily disposed of Cashmir and Sandy Beal, while Leochares found the weight too much for him. He got into a contending position at the far turn, but could not keep up.

There was another close and thrilling finish in the Quickstep Handicap, a six-furlong dash, for all ages, which brought out some good sprinters. This race went to a two-year-old, the North Shore Stable's St. Allan, which rushed up to gain the decision from Crank in the last few strides. Fort Bliss was third in a field of five starters.

St. Allan had a concession of several pounds in actual weights from the older horses, but he did not loom up as a serious factor until he was straightened out in the stretch. Grimalkin and Fort Bliss had alternatively held the lead, and St. Allan, though never far off, was almost last.

A Close Finish.

As the horses turned into the stretch they were well bunched, and Weiner found it necessary to go to the outside to get clear of the field. Crank saved ground on the turn and seemed to be the winner an eighth of a mile from the finish, but St. Allan showed a fine burst of speed and in the final rush got his nose in front, while Fort Bliss tired at the end and lost the place by a neck. The three horses were so close together at the finish that from different parts of the stands there was a difference of opinion as to the placing.

RACING BEGINS AT HAVANA.

Hank O'Day Wins Inaugural Handicap on Cuban Track.

HAVANA, Nov. 27.—Messrs. McGraw and Stoneham, heretofore widely known in the world of outdoor sports as baseball moguls, made their debut here today as racing magnates when their newly acquired course threw open its doors and Havana's racing season began. A goodly crowd was in attendance for the occasion, and the ranks of the Cuban lovers of the thoroughbred were reinforced by hundreds of sportsmen who have come here from the United States to enjoy the racing, the climate, and also certain refreshments now taboo in the country of their allegiance.

The feature race on the card this afternoon, the Inaugural Handicap, was taken by the useful campaigner, Hank O'Day, who overcame without undue trouble the opposition furnished by his stable mate of the Press string, Hubbub, which finished second. NEW ORLEANS GIVES RACING A WELCOME

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 27.—Racing was welcomed back to the South today heartily with the opening of the Winter season at Jefferson Park. Although the day was stormy and anything but auspicious for the inaugural, a large crowd turned out for the sport, and was rewarded by a good card. All of the seven events were well filled, and the patrons were assured by the starters in the events of the first day that they would have high-class horses during the season.

The feature of the day was the Thanksgiving Handicap, at a mile, for all ages. This event brought eight starters to the post, and fell an easy prey to T. J. Pendergast's Brownie McDowell, which came here from Kentucky with a number of victories to his credit. He gained the verdict quite easily, defeating Osgood by four lengths, while the latter saved the place by leading Game Cock to the wire by a length.

Brownie McDowell was on the outside most all the way, and made his rush in the stretch after being far back in the early part of the contest. Panaman, which showed fine speed during the Summer at New York, set a terrific pace for three-quarters of a mile, and opened up a gap which seemed to give him a safe lead if he could last. Jack Mount followed the pace closely, and seemed to be the contender, but after three-quarters both tired badly, and Osgood went to the front.

Donohue did not make a move on the winner until he was turning into the stretch, when he gave the horse a lash and sent him along. He was forced to go to the outside of the field, but came around with such a rush that he caught the leaders near the head of the stretch and won easily. Jim Heffering, which had been made a 3 to 2 favorite, could not get going, and did not seem to like the condition of the track. He was always far back of the leaders and trailed in fifth without having been a contender at any stage of the race.

GOLFERS IN SEMI-FINALS.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 27.—The Autumn Golf Tournament was brought to the semi-final stage here today by the playing of the second match round in all divisions. The four matches in the first sixteen were all decidedly close affairs, going to the home green or beyond. Three of them were decided by long putts, and a stymie was the determining factor in the fourth.

The match between Richard Shannon 2d of Brockport and Richard Garlick of Youngstown, the feature contest of the day, was won by Shannon at the nineteenth hole. It was a hard match for the Youngstown golfer to lose, as he had worked himself up to even terms at the eighteenth after starting the inward journey 3 down.

Dr. J. S. Brown of Montclair, who will oppose Shannon in the semi-finals, defeated C. L. Becker by 1 up with the aid of a stymie on the home green.

HIGH MARK IN HORSE SALE.

Ortolen Axworthy Brings $8,000 in Closing Day at Garden.

The highest price reached during the four days of the Old Glory sale at Madison Square Garden was recorded yesterday, the closing day, when Ortolen Axworthy, 2:07½, a son of the noted Axworthy, was sold to W. H. Orr of Reading, Pa., for $8,000. Other prices did not range as high as on some of the other days of the sale, but those who waited for bargains on the closing day were generally disappointed. There was a rush to dispose of the last of the horses entered to be sold, but this did not cause a drop in prices or a falling off in the bidding.

One of the sales which brought spirited bidding was that of Tres Pinos, a brown colt, by San Francisco, which went to G. D. Sherman of Port Henry, N. Y., for $2,500.

SCHWARTZ WINNER OF HANDICAP WALK

Gilbert Schwartz led home a large field of walkers yesterday in the sixth semi-annual handicap walk of the Brooklyn Branch American Walkers' Association. Schwartz, making his first competitive appearance since returning from the war, after two years' service with the 102d Engineers, showed impressive form in his victory, leading from start to finish of the hike and finishing with an advantage of more than half a mile on A. Brendel of the New York Evening High School. The victor's time was 1:40:07. Schwartz had the limit handicap of thirty-five minutes.

A field of 186 walkers started with varying handicap allowances and only two retired before the race was completed. Kurt Zulch of the American Walkers' Association carried off the fast time prize, finishing sixtieth in 1:28:24, more than three minutes behind his record for the coruse made in 1016 when he was clocked in 1:24:48. Zulch started off the five-minute mark, but was the scratch starter, inasmuch as Dick Remer, former champion, who was scheduled to compete from scratch, did not appear. The team laurels for the race went to the representatives of the New York Evening High School.

The distance was about ten and one-half miles. The course started at Park Circle, Brooklyn, from which point the pedestrians proceeded to Surf Avenue, Coney Island, and then returned to Park Circle. The order of finish of the first fifty follows:

Why? The answer is "just enough Turkish"

Fatima steadily outsells the straight Turkish cigarettes because in Fatima's famous blend the heaviness of "too much Turkish" is entirely absent. Even if a man smokes more than usual, Fatimas taste right and leave him feeling right. In a word, Fatima contains neither too much nor too little, but "just enough Turkish."

... and at Palm Beach

A fact:

Here at Palm Beach—smartest, perhaps, of all winter resorts—Fatima has for two seasons held the sales-leadership formerly enjoyed by the expensive, fancy-boxed straight Turkish cigarettes.

TO CONTROL DIAMOND TRADE

London Syndicate Sole Medium for Sale of South African Output.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—South African diamonds henceforth are to be under control, according to a statement made today by Minister of Mines Malan. A London syndicate in the future is to be the sole channel through which the world's markets can obtain stones. The amount to be supplied for sale will be based on the actual sales of the preceding three months.

The De Beers mines will provide 57 per cent., the Premier 18 per cent., the Jagersfontein mines 10 per cent., and the Southwest Protectorate 21 per cent. The basic price for stones is to be fixed each three months.

TO REPLACE COAL WITH OIL.

French Railroads Plan to Alter Locomotives for Purpose.

PARIS, Nov. 27 (Associated Press.)—The first locomotive on a French railroad to use oil as fuel was sent out on an experimental trip yesterday, and hauled a heavy train with complete success.

It is announced that railroads in this country have planned to alter their engines so as to use oil fuel instead of coal, and that 200 locomotives will be thus changed.

USE JUDGMENT IN SELECTING YOUR INVESTMENTS

EXPERTS are of the opinion that bonds of real intrinsic merit purchased around present prices are practically certain to sell considerably higher within the next few years. The question, therefore, is not so much whether you should buy now, as it is that you use the proper amount of judgment in making selections. Should you wish us to submit to you a list of diversified investments, we would be glad to do so, following out your ideas as to type and geographical location as closely as possible.

CORPORATION TAXES SET A HIGH RECORD

New York State's Collections in Last Fiscal Year Nearly $33,500,000.

40,000 COMPANIES PAID

Franchise Tax Returned $13,551,523 —Transportation and Savings Bank Receipts Showed Decline.

ALBANY, Nov. 27.—Nearly $33,500,000, a gain of over $5,000,000, was collected from corporations during the last fiscal year, State Controller Travis reported tonight. This record sum, representing the State's largest single source of revenue, was gathered at the least expense, six-tenths of 1 per cent. Over 40,000 business companies made payments against 32,000 in the previous year. Of the total received, the State retains about $27,000,000 and distributes over $6,200,000 to the several counties.

The so-called franchise tax returned $13,551,523, a gain of $1,061,941. Of this amount, $3,029,631 came from insurance premiums against $2,005,366 in 1918. Trust companies contributed $2,911,474, or $132,801 more than last year. Earnings from lighting, power, water, &c., netted $1,184,017 against $1,095,087. Transportation receipts showed a falling off of $2,442,471 against $2,609,429, as did savings banks, $1,337,060 against $1,455,433.

Last May the "franchise tax on manufacturing" was changed to "franchise tax on business corporations." From this class, the State actually received $20,049,659 against $14,801,119, collected during the previous fiscal year. In his forthcoming report to the Legislature the Controller will recommend the need for amending the law so that all franchise tax liabilities be determined prior to the granting of decree by the State in relation to the merger, dissolution or withdrawal of such class of corporations.

"While the State is granting franchises to new outside corporations," the report reads, "it also records certificates with relation to the merger or withdrawal of such organizations. Frequently, through neglect, pending franchise taxes remain unsettled at the time of the filing of these certificates, and as a result considerable unnecessary labor follows in the final adjustment of claims due the State." For this reason the Controller recommends that "satisfactory evidence" of the payment of all franchise tax charges be furnished at the time of the filing of the papers and that the general corporation law be amended accordingly.

WARNS BONDHOLDERS AGAINST STOCK SHARPS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The Secretary of the Treasury issued a warning today against what he indicates is a widespread effort on the part of promoters of fraudulent stock schemes to exchange worthless stocks for war bonds. A surprisingly large number of people, Secretary Glass says, are being duped by these swindlers. He advises bondholders to keep their bonds and thus maintain a partnership with the United States Government. His statement was as follows:

"The Treasurer again warns owners of Liberty bonds against stock promoters who are trying to persuade them to exchange their Government securities for stock in fraudulent ventures. Information which comes to the Treasury indicates that, particularly in sections of the country where new enterprises are being floated, a surprisingly large number of people are allowing themselves to be made the dupes of swindlers.

It is a principle of investment that safety goes normally with a relatively low rate of return and the suggested high returns upon stocks which are being offered is enough to create suspicion. Where Liberty bondholders are urged to give up their securities for stocks of speculative character, good sense suggests the presumption that the offer is made because the Liberty bonds are worth decidedly more than the stock. Experience in a great number of cases shows that the stock is worthless and the bond owner who makes the exchange is simply another victim to the army of sharpers who find easy booty in these days of reckless speculation.

"Self-interest and good business judgment should decide in favor of the holding of Liberty bonds, which are declared by those most experienced in investment to be the world's best security. The bond owner who continues his partnership with the Government has the added satisfaction of knowing that, by helping to maintain the urgently-needed capital resources of the country, he is making his contribution to the solution of the reconstruction problem, in which the nation's welfare is as vitally concerned as by the war. It is the duty of citizens in every community to sound the warning against fraudulent operators in Government securities at this time, when we can ill-afford to dissipate our resources for the profit of the unscrupulous few."

Underlying Bonds of Important Railroads

In the opinion of many experienced bankers, investors should consider with care the advantages of buying now the underlying bonds of the great railroad systems. It is generally considered that these bonds are second only to municipals with respect to safety.

Investment Overhead

As an investor, has it occurred to you that the present high income taxes are comparable to the overhead cost of operation of your business, both of which continually reduce your net earnings?

Large gross incomes are of no value if consumed by taxes and overhead expenses. The net income is all that counts.

In making your investments you should choose those conservative securities which have the lowest "Over-head," and consequently afford you the greatest net income.

May we send our booklet "O. L." descriptive of a well seasoned investment which embraces excellent securities, marketability, and substantial yield, exempt from the Normal Federal income tax?

TIMKEN-DETROIT

The Timken-Detroit Axle Company
7 per cent Cumulative Preferred Stock

THE demand for the Timken-Detroit products is shown by the steady growth of the business. From small beginnings it has become a great industry operating four large plants in Detroit and one in Canton, Ohio, with a total floor space of more than 825,000 square feet.

The average annual net income, as audited, available for Preferred Stock dividends, has amounted for the ten years ended June 30, 1919, to over 4¼ times, and for the five years ended June 30, 1919, to over 5½ times, the amount required for dividends on this issue, and for the Company's fiscal year ended December 31, 1918, the net income available, even after making inventory and other adjustments to provide for the transition from war to peace basis, was over 5½ times these dividend requirements.

Security

The Company will maintain at all times its net current assets at an amount equivalent to 120%, and net tangible assets equivalent to 200% of the aggregate par value of Preferred Stock outstanding. Strong annual Sinking Fund provisions will go into effect, beginning 1921.

Assets

Allowing for the application of the proceeds of this Preferred Stock, net tangible assets will be over 3 times and net quick assets alone over twice the amount of the Preferred Stock issue.

Purpose of Issue

This Preferred Stock or its proceeds, among other uses, will be applied to the retirement of the present Preferred Stock outstanding and the redemption of the present outstanding 7% Serial Gold Notes of the Company.

Dividends and Option to Call

Dividends are payable quarterly on March 1, June 1, September 1 and December 1. Callable as a whole or in part at 110 and accumulated dividends, on any dividend date on thirty days' notice. On any voluntary distribution of capital assets the preferred stock shall be entitled to $110 per share and accumulated dividends; on any other distribution of capital assets, preferred stock shall be entitled to $100 per share and accumulated dividends.

Why Straus-Protected Bonds Are a Logical Investment

THE first mortgage serial real estate bonds, safeguarded under the Straus Plan, have earned on their merits an enviable position in the market as an investment for safety and income. This is chiefly for two reasons:—

FIRST—The nation-wide shortage in buildings, estimated at more than three billion dollars, has greatly augmented values and rentals of improved real estate in all cities, thus further increasing the soundness of mortgage securities and stabilizing values for a period of years to come.

SECOND—The Straus Plan is the highest development of the science of safeguarding invested funds. It is based on the principle of amortization or serial payment of the bonds out of the earnings of the property, coupled with a system of monthly sinking fund deposits which automatically ensure the prompt payment of both principal and interest in cash.

Every investor should acquaint himself with the Straus Plan and its time-tested safeguards. Write for our booklet, "Safety & 6%," and for circular describing a specific issue we are now offering with our full recommendation, secured by a closed first mortgage on an exceptional property on one of the best corners of Park Avenue, New York City, yielding 6% with 4% Federal Income Tax paid. CONGRESS TO GET NEW BUDGET BILL

Senator McCormick's Measure Puts Bureau Under Secretary of Treasury.

PLAN TO CUT ESTIMATES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Under a bill to be offered at the next session of Congress by Senator McCormick, Republican, of Illinois, a budget bureau, to be under supervision of the Secretary of the Treasury, is contemplated, to have control of the machinery of making up the estimates of the various governmental departments. This would give the budget bureau wider scope than the one offered in the House recently by Representative Good.

The two measures will be considered by a special Senate Committee on Budget, of which Senator McCormick is Chairman, early next month. He expects the committee will have a report ready by the end of the year.

Senator McCormick in making public today the provisions of his measure, described it as embodying the ideas of such economic and financial experts as Secretary Glass, President Butler of Columbia University, Governor Lowden of Illinois, and former Congressman Fitzgerald of New York. The primary principle of the bill, he said, was to concentrate the responsibility for the effective operation of the budget system on the Secretary of the Treasury.

The Budget Bureau would consist of a director and two assistant directors, appointed by the President, with the consent of the Senate. The director would receive $10,000 a year and his assistants $9,000 each.

Each department would have a budget officer, whose duty it would be to prepare estimates of expenditure and statements of revenue, these to be submitted to the director of budget, who, in turn, would submit the whole lost of estimates to the Secretary of the Treasury. The director of budget and the Secretary of the Treasury would have authority to revise and reduce any estimates submitted.

The complete budget for all departments must be in the hands of the Secretary of the Treasury by Nov. 1 of each year, no changes being allowed by the departments after that time. The Secretary of the Treasury must submit the budget, as revised or approved by him, to the President by Nov. 15, and the President, in turn, must submit the estimate, together with any recommendations, to Congress by Jan. 1 following.

Under this bill, the Budget Bureau would have the power, not conferred under the Good bill, of revising and reducing departmental estimates. Furthermore, Senator McCormick held, his measure would clarify the functions of the Treasury by removing from its supervision various "nongermane functions," such as the control of the Bureau of Public Health Service, the office of Supervising Architect, the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, and the General Supply Committee.

The Illinois Senator indicated that there would be a sharp fight in committee as between his bill and that sponsored by Mr. Good.

"The Good bill," said Senator McCormick, "would make the President, already the most overburdened Executive in the world, his own finance officer. The Good bill, which places the Bureau of the Budget in the office of the President, merely transfers the existing and amorphous functions of the Treasury in assembling the estimates, to this Budget Bureau, of which the vitality will depend upon the energy, the financial skill and the personal attention of the President. It confers on the Budget Bureau no powers to revise and reduce estimates. We may very well have a great President who is so occupied with our industrial and social problems or with grave foreign affairs, that he has no time for the detail of financial policy. We shall never have a President who can do full justice to all the responsibilities of his office if he devotes the time necessary to oversee the preparation of the budget. The truth is that when the original plan of the House bill was conceived, and before Mr. Good fathered it, it was the intention of the bill's progenitors to create the position of Director of the Budget, under the President, to be filled by Mr. Paul Warburg of New York.

"It was a plan apparently built around one man. Now, without arguing for or against Mr. Warburg's qualifications, let me say that there is no graver error than to create the office for the man instead of finding the man for the office. However considerable a man might be secured for the first Director of the Budget, we know that in the long run he could not hold his own in the unequal contest with the great departments all crying for public moneys. Presently an inconsequential Director of the Budget in the President's office, a sort of financial sub-secretary, would be lost to view. He would become liable to the pressure and improper influences of every seeker after pork.

"Now is the time to pass, not a bill which will only promise the ultimate creation of a budget system, but one which actually does create a budget system, based on the experiences of the countries where there are parliamentary budget systems, and of the American cities and American States which have adapted to American institutions the budget practice of other countries. There is no need for hectic haste. The estimates for the ensuing year are practically complete. We have time to pass a genuine measure of reform, so that there may be established by law a true budget system for the preparation of estimates for the session of Congress to follow the one assembling in December.

"Nothing stands in the way of the establishment of a sound system of public expenditure which will lead to genuine retrenchment, unless it be the agitation about to be set on foot by a certain few business men who have accumulated more funds for propaganda than they have experience of public finance.

"Taxes are about ten times what they were in President Roosevelt's time. We cannot check waste by superficial legislation."

Montreal Stock Market.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 27.—There was a good display of strength in the greater part of the Montreal Stock Exchange list in the morning session. With Wall Street dark, the market was literally "on its own." A good part of the incentive was derived from circulation of gossip on pulp and paper stocks in connection with renewal of contracts next month at figures considerably advanced over current levels. These stocks were buoyant and while their great strength was displayed in the early session, the general level was considerably above levels of the past few weeks.

There was a falling off in activity in the afternoon trading and attention was again turned to what Wall Street might do tomorrow.

Your December 1st Income
Will it be Collected Promptly?

MANY security owners have no systematic method for collecting the income from their investments. They may overlook interest dates; they may be traveling when coupons fall due; they may put off cutting coupons and making out Income Tax Certificates. For these and other reasons there may be loss of interest and delay in reinvestment.

A CUSTODY SERVICE ACCOUNT with us will relieve you of these details, and provide other important features of service, among which are:

- Collection of the income from your holdings, and the principal when due;
- Preparation of Income Tax Certificates;
- Preparation, for your signature, of Income Tax return of annual income collected on securities deposited;
- Reporting upon the condition of your investments, when requested;
- Purchase, sale, delivery, and receipt of securities on your written or telegraphic instructions—your securities are always subject to your direct control;
- Payment of taxes, interest, rents, allowances, etc., as you may direct;
- Attention to many other details which have heretofore claimed your personal time and attention.

The fee for this service is very moderate. Our booklet, The Care of Securities, which will be sent on request, gives detailed information; or if you will call at any of our offices we shall be pleased to explain more fully.

ASK HINES TO CONFER ON HIS WAGE OFFER

NO STRIKE VOTE TAKEN

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 27.—The meeting of 500 General Chairmen of the four great railroad brotherhoods which began here last Monday to consider the offer of Director General Hines of time and one-half for overtime in slow freight service, provided all arbitraries and special allowances were eliminated, ended late today with the adoption of a resolution to send a committee, including the four chiefs, and representing all four organizations, to Washington to confer with Mr. Hines.

The convention accepted Mr. Hines's proposal that the pay of train and engine crews will automatically start at the expiration of sixteen hours from the time of release at away-from-home terminals.

No strike vote was taken or ordered during the conference, according to W. G. Lee, President of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

The Director General's proposition to put into effect time and one half for overtime in slow freight service, based on a speed of less than twelve and one-half miles an hour, provided all arbitraries and special allowances now in various agreements are abolished, was neither accepted nor rejected. The four chief executives and one sub-committee will meet the Director General to determine exactly what his proposition means and what arbitraries and special allowances would be abolished.

A record vote was taken on the resolution for the conference, resulting in its acceptance by the engineers, firemen, and conductors, while the Brotherhood of Trainmen rejected it by a large majority, the vote being as follows in so far as membership represented by the General Chairmen present was concerned: Locomotive Engineers, for 53,601, against 4,280; Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, for 62,455, against 14,942; Railway Conductors, for 82,027, against 2,114; Railroad Trainmen, for 19,499, against 106,726.

A BIG SHIP REPAIR JOB.

The American steamship Huron, formerly the German liner Friedrich der Grosse, has just come to the Brooklyn yards of the Morse Dry Dock and Repair Company to be fitted into one of the finest passenger carriers in the service of the Shipping Board. The contract involves a great expenditure of money, and some persons in shipping circles consider the work to be the largest ship repair job ever undertaken in this country.

Steam boilers of the Huron will be replaced with a fuel burning system of twenty-four furnace fronts complete with burners to operate under natural draft, and three oil heaters, any two of which will be capable of operating the entire plant. There will also be placed on board a gyro stabilizer with a foundation for it that will take a maximum thrust of 470 000 pounds.

A gymnasium, located abaft the engine room hatch, is to be constructed of wood, and will have windows of opaque glass with Louvre shutters. A new house for the wireless room will be erected, as will a new house to contain the first and second class hospitals. The entire after end of the deckhouse is to be completely rearranged, and space in the centre is to be used as a library and reading room. These will be finished in hardwood wainscoting and pine paneling.

The second class smoking room is to be fitted with paneled oak settees with spring seats and upholstered backs, and the deck covering will be rubber or cork tile. A printing shop will be erected on the port side. The passenger rooms in general are to be fitted with a view to the utmost cleanliness, airiness, and sanitation. Forty new outside hardwood doors to staterooms are to be fitted in a steel house, and a fire indicating and extinguishing system, to be used in connection with a smothering system, is to be installed.

NO COAL FAMINE FORESEEN.

Producer Says Reserves Will Last Until Strike Is Settled.

T. J. O'Gara of the O'Gara Coal Company of Chicago, one of the largest soft coal producers of the country, who is at the McAlpin Annex, said yesterday that the reserves of coal are holding out and that if the settlement of the coal strike progresses as all parties now anticipate, there will be no famine. He says that most of the foreign workers who intended returning to Europe have aleady gone, and that those who have remained intend to stay.

"The population in the coal camps is being sifted out and the foreign element in the mining districts will stay, it is pretty certain," he said. "They are fast becoming Americans through association with Americans here, and their children all attend the very good schools which the State and towns provide.

"It is not the policy of the operators to advance the price of soft coal materially. It might be that there may be some slight change in the prices, but I do not look for very high prices. I am very hopeful and optimistic about the outcome of the strike settlement. The miner leaders only want what is most fair to them and the operators want to treat them fairly. The foreign element, in so far as our mines are concerned are the best men. They are not agitators. Their leaders are Americans, Irish, Scotch, and British.

"I am hopeful that conditions will soon be normal, for I have confidence in the miners' leaders for a reasonably speedy settlement of the controversy. The strike was foreseen and the operators prepared considerable coal reserves which are holding out very well, so there will be no famine if the settlement progresses according to present indications."

SEEKS SILKMAKING MOVIES.

British Chamber of Commerce at Chefoo Wants to Aid the Industry.

For the purpose of fostering and promoting the pongee silk industry in the district of Chefoo, China, and to bring to the attention of the Chinese the possibilities in the development of the scrub oak and cocoons, the British Chamber of Commerce at Chefoo plans to exhibit pictures which will demonstrate the process of cultivation from the silk worm to the finished article.

The committee of the British Chamber of Commerce, which is interested in the plan, has sent a letter to Lester Maynard, American Consul at Chefoo, saying that it would appreciate his services in putting it in touch with some one who could supply such pictures, especially pictures taken from the Chinese field of operation. The letter adds that the importance of this educational movement will be readily appreciated from an American standpoint, since the American mills are the principal users of the tussah silk, which is reeled in the Chefoo district, and suggests that any firms who can supply moving pictures on this subject communicate with the British Chamber of Commerce at Chefoo, or with Lester Maynard, the American Consul there.

NEW METHOD LIKELY TO CUT COST OF GUNS

Navy to Benefit by "Radial Expansion" by Hydraulics in Built-Up Weapons.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—A new method of gun construction for the navy promises economy in both time and cost, according to Rear Admiral Ralph Earle, Chief of Ordnance, whose annual report was made public today.

"Radial expansion" by hydraulic pressure to obtain the necessary adherent strength, or elasticity, in the "built-up" weapons is the basis of the new plan. It will reduce the number of sections in the guns as compared to the heat shrinking process, the report said, and can be applied to guns up to six-inch rifles, but it has not been worked out for heavy weapons.

Experimental fourteen-inch monoblock, or one-piece, guns have proved thoroughly efficient under test, the report said, indicating further development.

Construction of 16-inch guns for the remaining ships authorized in the three-year program, including the six 43,000-ton dreadnoughts and six battle cruisers, is being speeded up, the report said. More than 95,000 tons of armor plate still will be required for this program.

Supplies of ammunition were said to be abundant, taxing storage depots. During the war, the report said, not a single warship or merchantman was held up by lack of ammunition.

To supply the new ships, it was said, increased facilities for torpedo construction will be needed, and every effort to increase the "destructive force and range" of the torpedo also will be made. The surplus of mines produced in connection with the North Sea mine barrage has caused an overflow at the mine depots, presenting a problem of property protecting this material.

Improved fire control apparatus, based on experience gained in the war, will make the United States Navy the equal in this equipment of any in the world, the report said.

Cancellation of naval ordnance contracts after the armistice has cut off expenditures of $160,000,000, it was said, of the total of $563,270,000 in orders placed from July 1, 1918. An additional $7,000,000 is expected to be saved through adjustments.

Bans Strasbourg's German Clerks.

In connection with the work of ridding Alsace-Lorraine of alleged German agitators against French rule, M. Millerand, the French Commissary General, has ordered all the business houses of Strasbourg to discharge their German clerical employes, preparatory to their expulsion, says a Strasbourg dispatch printed in the Berliner Tageblatt of Oct. 28.

Short Talks to Investors V.

Declining Bond Incomes

IN 1914 an investor whose capital was $300,000 had this entire amount invested in underlying railroad bonds giving him a net income of about 4½%, or $13,500. He refused to recognize or study fundamental tendencies in the investment world and still has his capital tied up in these bonds. Today his principal is only $240,000 in market value and the purchasing power of his income has been cut in half. Further than this, nearly 10% of his income is taken for war taxes.

ANOTHER investor whose capital was $300,000 in 1914, recognized the wisdom of employing expert counsel in diversifying and shifting his investments in harmony with changing conditions, and as a result his principal sum is today entirely intact and his net income is in excess of 6%, or about $18,500 per annum. And his entire capital is today invested in better and more promising securities than it was five years ago.

A man need not be a magician to accomplish this result; but he must be alive, wideawake, have commonsense and be without undue prejudice. He need not be an expert; but he must employ an expert.

Nassau Electric Railroad Co.

To the Holders of

The time for the deposit of the bonds above mentioned under the agreement dated July 21, 1919, has been extended to and including the 15th day of December, 1919. Holders of bonds who have not heretofore deposited them with the Brooklyn Trust Company or the Girard Trust Company, the depositaries named in the agreement, are requested to do so.

The Receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company has been appointed Receiver of the Nassau Electric Railroad Company in proceedings brought in the interest of holders of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. The holders of Brooklyn Rapid Transit securities assert claims that conflict with the interest of the holders of the bonds of the Nassau Electric Railroad Company.

The Nassau Company is in default in the payment of the instalment of interest which became due October 1st, 1919, on bonds secured by mortgages superior in lien to its First Consolidated Gold Mortgage Bonds and the period within which the holders of these bonds may declare the principal due has already expired or will expire January 1st, 1920. Receiver's Certificates for the purchase of cars superior in lien to the lien of the First Consolidated Gold Mortgage Bonds have already been authorized and Receiver's Certificates are liable to be issued at a sacrifice unless the market for them is properly protected. The Company's liens under present conditions are not earning operating expenses.

The holders of the First Consolidated Mortgage Four Percent Gold Bonds should be in a position to cause a suit for the foreclosure of the mortgage securing their bonds to be instituted and to make application to have the properties of the Nassau Electric Railroad Company operated independently of the other properties making up the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system if such independent operation appears desirable and to make such arrangements as may seem expedient to supply the financial requirements of the properties.

To this end it is necessary that a substantial majority of the bonds should be deposited and the delay of bondholders in depositing their bonds may seriously jeopardise their interests.

Time to Think of 1919 Taxes

WITH the end of the year in sight, it is high time to think seriously of the 1919 tax return—especially before the books are closed for the year.

Some organizations who in the past have filed their own tax returns have since found that they unknowingly erred against their own interests.

DRAFT ARMY PROVED HOOKWORM A BLIGHT

The shocking effects of the hookworm disease, as demonstrated by the examinations incident to the organization of America's draft army, and the work being done hopefully for the eradication of the disease from the earth are told in the most interesting paragraphs of Part 1 of the annual report of the Rockefeller Foundation, which was made public yesterday.

"The examinations for hookworm disease made among United States soldiers confirmed in a striking way the board's experience of the last few years, and demonstrated that even light hookworm infections are of great importance," says the report. "Judged by the Binet-Simon and other tests, many full-grown soldiers who harbored comparatively few hookworms had the mentality of persons only 12 years of age. The mentality of 10,000 white men at Camp Travis who harbored the disease was about 33 per cent. below normal. Negroes were infected quite as frequently as whites, but they appeared to be relatively immune to the serious effects of the disease and did not show the same predisposition to other diseases or the same reduction in mentality.

"Mental tests of a similar nature among 340 school children in Queensland, Australia, showed that there was an average retardation of approximately two years among heavily infected children. The longer the infection persisted the greater was the retardation. The average retardation of lightly infected cases was nine months.

"In Siam, the weights of ninety-nine lightly infected soldiers were taken upon their entrance to the army, and again at the expiration of a year. Meanwhile, sixty-nine of these soldiers were treated for hookworm disease, and the other thirty remained without treatment. Those who were treated gained an average of 10.6 pounds in a period of one year; those who were not, an average of only 1.1 pounds.

Efficiency Increased 50 Per Cent.

"In Costa Rica, sixty-six laborers before being treated for hookworm disease normally cultivated 563 acres of coffee monthly. After being treated for hookworm disease they cultivated 750 acres, resulting in a net monthly increase in wages of 27 per cent. after allowing for a 15 per cent. reduction in unit pay. Moreover, in India, Clayton Lane reports that the amount of work increased 20 per cent. on one estate and 50 per cent. on another, and on both was of better quality than before the laborers were treated; while reports from British Guiana indicate that the efficiency of the laborers employed by one company increased from 25 to 50 per cent. after hookworm measures were put into operation."

While the report's discussion of hookworm still presents the disease as a menace to millions of persons, encouraging results of campaigns against it are related, while the report reiterates the great service they have done to communities by demonstrating to them their own responsibility for general health and stimulating among them willingness to finance and carry on public health work of their own.

The part of the report devoted to yellow fever work speaks of the encouraging prospect of demonstrating that the true etiologic agent of the disease was discovered when Dr. Hideyo Noguchi of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research isolated an organism which he called the leptospira icteroides, and to which the origin of the fever is ascribed. The report tells as well of the demonstration through the fight on yellow fever conducted by the board in Guatemala that this scourge "could be controlled with the personnel and facilities available in Central American countries and at a cost well within their financial ability."

It is explained that, aside from its direct menace, the fight on hookworm disease was continued because "the evidence becomes more and more convincing that these measures afford one of the best single means of creating a widely understood concept of what modern health measures may accomplish. Hookworm control demonstrations almost everywhere are being followed by a desire on the part of the people for better health administration.

"Peoples and Governments everywhere seemed actuated by the desire to increase their health activities," the report says. "The people at large are realizing more and more that the health of their communities is their responsibility and that all work for bettering health conditions is their task—theirs to support, theirs to administer, and theirs to profit by."

Prospect Encouraging.

After reviewing the creation in 1916 of a commission to study the endemic foci of yellow fever in all regions in South America where the disease had been suspected or reported in recent years, telling of the interruption of the work during the war and its resumption under Major Gen. W. C. Gorgas, retired, in 1918, the document relates the undertaking of a study at Guayaquil, Ecuador, of the fever and related infections with the view of making more certain the hitherto baffling diagnosis of the disease. Hopefulness of having accomplished this object through Dr. Noguchi's isolation of the supposed germ is expressed and, admitting that much work still was required to demonstrate that the true etiologic agent had been discovered, the report says the prospect of success is most encouraging and adds:

"If the germ of yellow fever has been discovered, it will still further simplify the problem of eradicating the seedbeds of yellow fever; and upon the successful completion of that task the disease should disappear from the earth."

The report covers at length the fight waged against this disease when it appeared in Guatemala in the Summer of 1918, spread to seventeen communities on or near the west coast, and resulted in 550 cases and 200 deaths.

Announcement is made of an arrangement entered into with the Government of Ecuador for an effort to free that country and the west coast of South America of yellow fever to which Government, press, and people have given energetic co-operation. Yellow fever is reported as having been unusually prevalent this season. The report adds: "The work now in progress is expected to result in the near future in a definite reduction in the number of cases, and ultimately in the extermination of the disease."

Many States, foreign countries and South American communities in which the board has engaged in hookworm work are enumerated. Three infection surveys completed during the year indicated that in Jamaica 60 per cent. of the inhabitants have the disease, in Sao Paulo approximately 60 per cent., and in Guam approximately 70 per cent. Comprehensive attacks by the board in the two first-named are to be undertaken, while Guam is expected to conduct its own fight.

The crux of the whole problem is declared to be prevention of infected soil from coming into contact with the bare skin of the human being. This involves teaching millions of persons in some localities new habits, but the provision of adequate latrines tends to help the spread of the lesson.

Work for Malaria Control.

Tuberculosis work carried on by the board in France during the war presumably is to be dealt with in a later chapter, since it is barely touched upon in the present report. Malaria control work is being continued and is said to have progressed far enough "to warrant the assumption that malaria control in the average town in the Southern States may be accomplished at a cost well within the means of the community." It is pointed out that this disease is recognized as one of the most disabling to which man is subject.

The report concludes with an account of the progress made in public health training through the establishment of a Department of Hygiene in the Faculdade de Medicina e Cirurgia at Sao Paulo, Brazil.

The officers and members of the board are: George E. Vincent, Chairman; Wickliffe Rose, General Director; Hermann M. Biggs, Wallace Buttrick, Simon Flexner, Frederick T. Gates, William C. Gorgas, Starr J. Murphy, Walter H. Page, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., William H. Welch; Edwin R. Embree, Secretary.

Wickliffe Rose, General Director.

John A. Ferrell, M. D., Director for the United States.

W. Perrin Norris, Associate Director for the East.

L. W. Hackett, Associate Regional Director (for Brazil).

CAPTURED THROUGH WOMAN

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—Edward R. Snow, a murderer who escaped last night from the State prison, where he had served twenty years of a life sentence, was returned to solitary confinement today after eight hours of liberty. He sought to seek a woman who had befriended him in prison, and this led to his capture early today by a posse on the road between Middleboro and Taunton. While groups of officers and citizens, armed with rifles and shotguns, were searching for him during the night, two of their members were shot by mistake, but not seriously.

Snow, who had been trusted for the last five years, obtained access to the guard room and with a false key opened a gate to a wagon passageway. After getting out he obtained clothes and rented an automobile in a west end garage, made calls in South Boston and Mattapan, and ordered the driver to take him to Brockton. A punctured tire caused delay, and Snow telephoned to Middleboro to the young woman, saying he was on the way to see her. She collapsed and her parents informed the police.

Arriving at Middleboro, Snow was recognized by a policeman while leaving a restaurant. He fled under fire and took to the woods, later striking the road where he was caught. Snow was a foundling left on a doorstep in Holyoke.

Ask Any of These:

E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co.
Export American Industries
Kelly Springfield Tire Co.
Pennsylvania Hotel
Standard Oil Co.
E. W. Bliss Co.

Ask any of these about the effectiveness of Rand Visible Card Records. They use Rand because daily it demonstrates its superiority over the old system of bind es which are so costly to maintain and take so much room and time to operate.

Rand Visible Card Records are instantaneous. They give information in one-seventh of the time required under the old way, so obviously a conservative estimate of the saving in cost of maintenance is 75%.

In all phases of business control—whether in Sales, Promotion, Cost Records, Sales and Stock Records, Personnel, Credit, Production, Planning and Accounting—RAND builds up efficiency while decreasing overhead.
